PREFACE

The event of supreme importance in the year 5679 was the conclusion of the greatest war in history and the drafting of the treaties, which, among other things, dealt with territorial, economic, and political problems arising out of the war. In the two treaties which have already been published, namely, those with Germany and Poland, there are clauses which intimately concern our brethren; similar clauses will be included in the treaties with new states and those whose territories are being enlarged, in which these states will undertake the same solemn obligations for the protection of racial, linguistic, and religious minorities as have been assumed by the new State of Poland. This is one of the most important events in modern history, but inasmuch as not all the treaties in question have yet been published, it was not possible to have this subject dealt with in a special article. For the present the most that can be done is to give in a special section such excerpts from documents emanating from the Peace Conference as are of interest to Jews.

A few months after the close of the year 5678, the war came to end. It was therefore considered not only fitting but also urgent to record, while the recollection was still vivid, the salient facts respecting the participation of the Jews of various countries in the struggle. A series of articles was projected which, for obvious reasons, was confined to the United States and the countries associated with it in the war; but practical difficulties have rendered it possible to present in this volume only articles on the participation of the Jews of Great Britain and of France. The former article was contributed by the Rev. Michael Adler, senior Jewish chaplain in the British forces; the latter was prepared, in a very short time and under great pressure, by Captain Sylvain Halff, of Paris, who exhibits an intimate knowledge of the facts. These articles contain information of intense interest not alone to Jews, but, in general, to all persons who desire to have some conception of the great heroism and sacrifice of the Jews of these countries. As respects the Jews of our own country, the office of War Records of the American Jewish Committee, with the generous co-operation of the Jewish Welfare Board, is engaged in the preparation of a comprehensive record which, in itself, will require several volumes. Accordingly, owing to the magnitude of the task, only a brief summary of the work of that office by its director, Mr. Julian Leavitt, is published in this issue. There is also a timely article by Mr. Joshua H. Neumann on the organization of the Jewish battalions in connection with the British campaign in the Holy Land.

Besides these articles, this volume contains a new Directory of Local Jewish Organizations in the United States, which supersedes the Directory published in THE AMERICAN JEWISH YEAR BOOK 5668. This Directory is based almost entirely upon replies to questionnaires sent to every organization of which there was any record in the office of the American Jewish Committee. In the preparation of this important list, I had the able, untiring, and conscientious assistance of Miss Ada Aneckstein. A large number of persons throughout the country, most of whom are connected with various Jewish organizations, were helpful in supplying important data. The list of these is too long to be given here, and acknowledgment of the debt I owe them is made in the introduction to the Directory.

In compiling the List of Events in 5679, I had to cope with the same difficulties as confronted the editors of the past few issues. With respect to most eastern European countries original information was not available, and fragmentary and often dubious reports which reached the press of England, France, and America had to be used as a basis of selection. The dates given are, in most cases, only approximate, and there is every reason to believe that many significant happenings may not have been reported.

In connection with some of the permanent features of the YEAR BOOK several changes in arrangement have been made. The introductions to the List of Events, Directories of National and Local Organizations, Statistics, and the List of Jewish Periodicals will lead to a clearer interpretation of the facts presented. In the compilation of the chronology and in the preparation of many of the other permanent features of the YEAR BOOK, I had the benefit of the great experience of Miss Rose A. Herzog. The list of those who have rendered great help will not be complete without the name of Mr. I. George Dobsevage, the secretary of the Jewish Publication Society, who gave many practical suggestions and assisted materially in the preparation of the Directory of Local Organizations.

Only the full appreciation of the value of the training and experience which I had received while assisting in the preparation of THE AMERICAN JEWISH YEAR BOOK for the past ten years, and the firm belief that I could call for encouragement and help upon a number of persons of expert knowledge and ability, imbued me with sufficient confidence to accept the responsibility of the editorship of the twenty-first volume of this publication. This reliance on the co-operation of others has been fully justified, and I wish to acknowledge gratefully the kind help of Doctor Cyrus Adler, who, in the midst of his absorbing activities at Paris as a representative of the American Jewish Committee, was always ready to give his valuable assistance and counsel and was good enough to secure some of the special articles; and to Doctor B. Halper, the editor of the Jewish Publication Society, upon whose wide knowledge and sound critical sense I could always rely for helpful collaboration.

is called 680 (תר"פ) according to the short system (לפ"ק). It is a regular common year of 12 months, 51 Sabbaths, 354 days, beginning on Thursday, the fifth day of the week, and having the first day of Passover on Saturday, the seventh day of the week; therefore its sign is הכז, i. e., ה for fifth, כ for regular (כסדרה), and ז for seventh. It is the eighteenth year of the 299th lunar cycle of 19 years, and the twenty-fourth year of the 203rd solar cycle of 28 years, since Creation.

JEWISH CALENDAR FOR ONE HUNDRED YEARS

5585 (1824)–5684 (1924)

The Jewish year consists of 12 months, each month having 29 or 30 days. An intercalated year has 13 months, an additional month, called Adar Sheni (second Adar), being added between Adar and Nisan. Nisan, Sivan, Ab, Tishri, Shebat, and the first Adar (in an intercalated year) always have 30 days; Iyar, Tammuz, Elul, Tebet, Adar (in a simple year, or Adar Sheni in an intercalated year) always have 29 days each. Heshvan and Kislev sometimes both have 30 days, when the year is called “perfect” (Shelemah, indicated by letter ש), sometimes both have 29 days each, when the year is called “defective” (Haserah, indicated by letter ח), and sometimes Heshvan has 29 days and Kislev 30 days, when the year is called “regular” (Kesidrah, indicated by the letter כ). Whenever the month has 30 days, the 30th day of the month is the first New Moon day of the following month, which has two New Moon days. When the month has only 29 days, the following month has only one New Moon day. In order to simplify the following tables, only one New Moon day is indicated, the one which is the first of the month. Thus when there are two New Moon days, the second alone is given.

The Hebrew letters at the top of each column indicate the sign of the year. The first letter indicates the day of the week when the first day of New Year is celebrated; the second letter indicates whether the year is “perfect,” “defective,” or “regular”; and the third letter indicates the day of the week on which the first day of Passover is celebrated.

THE PARTICIPATION OF THE JEWS OF FRANCE IN THE GREAT WAR

BY CAPTAIN SYLVAIN HALFF

Nothing can show in a more striking manner the diversity as well as the moral strength of the elements which constitute the Jewish family of France than the following fact. In July, 1914, some days before the declaration of war, there took place the final examination at the École Polytechnique, the great national institution which gives to the country its best engineers and its most distinguished artillery officers. The first three on the list of successful candidates were Jews. The first—the “major,” as he is called at the school—Sasportes, was an Algerian; the second, Lévy, was a Frenchman of Alsatian origin; the third, Cherechewsky, was a son of Russia, a naturalized Frenchman. That is, in miniature, the physiognomy of French Jewry. Alsace is the cradle of the greater number of the Jews of France. The decree of October 24, 1870, made French citizens of our coreligionists in Algeria. The exodus from the countries where the Jew is oppressed—Russia, Roumania—has brought to France an important contingent of the Jews of these lands. In the atmosphere of liberty they are gradually becoming fused in the national crucible; this fusion is practically complete as regards those who have had a long sojourn among us, and the example of Cherechewsky is not an isolated one. Others, who are still aliens, will follow that example in time. Already, as will be seen further on, they have endeavored to pay their debt of gratitude to hospitable France by rallying in their thousands to its standard.

To estimate the participation of the Jewry of France in the great war it is therefore necessary to examine the rôle which each of the different elements has played in accordance with its origin, its mentality, its intellectual, social, and economic condition; it is necessary to study successively, as we are about to do, how the three elements deported themselves at the front upon the field of battle as also upon the other fields of the struggle for the cause of justice and idealism. The three elements to be considered are:

I. The French Jews who are descendants of those who were emancipated by the Revolution in 1789.

II. Those who became Frenchmen but yesterday—the Jews of Algeria—called upon for the first time to show, at the cost of their lives, that they were worthy of the honor for which they are indebted to their illustrious coreligionist, Adolphe Crémieux, Minister of National Defence in 1870.

III. The Frenchmen to be, strangers from every land, established upon the soil of France, some already assimilated and citizens of the Republic, others but recently emerged from the darkness of the ghetto.

I. FRENCH JEWS

The great majority of the Jewish population of France lives in Paris. To determine the number of this population in a precise fashion is well-nigh impossible. The civil authorities are not in a position to give us any statistical data, for the periodical census of the population takes no account of the religion of the inhabitants. The ecclesiastical administration is not in any better position to furnish complete material, for the reason that participation in supporting religious institutions is optional and because a number of Jews are not inscribed upon the registers of the various congregations. The only basis for calculating the number that we have for Paris is the death rate. The number of those who die is published by the consistorial administration, only such persons being excepted—and they are relatively very few in number—as are buried without any religious rites. The general death rate is known—according to an announcement made by the Academy of Medicine in 1907, it is, for Paris, seventeen per thousand. In 1902, the number of Jewish deaths in the capital was 810. This number increased during the following years, which were marked by the arrival of numerous coreligionists from foreign countries. In 1912, it reached 1070. Assuming that the rate of mortality is the same in the Jewish as in the general population, it would appear that there are in Paris at the present time about 63,000 Jews. The general impression in authoritative circles is, however, that the total figure of the Jewish population should be a little higher, and it has been agreed to estimate it at about 70,000 souls. In this total the native element amounts to approximately 40,000.

It is relatively simpler to enumerate the Jews of the provinces of France. In the smaller settlements people know one another better, approach one another more eagerly and more voluntarily, and participate in numerically greater proportion in religious activity. There again, nevertheless, we cannot have mathematical precision. But we may surely suppose that there are at least 25,000 Jews distributed through the various French departments. We arrive, therefore, for the whole of France at a total of about 95,000 Jews, of whom 65,000 are of French origin. Redeemed Alsace and Lorraine will add more than 25,000 souls to the number of French Jews.

A considerable nucleus in Paris, the rest scattered in groups of unequal importance—such is the distribution of French Jewry. Geographically considered, apart from some fairly large Sephardic communities established in Bordeaux, Bayonne, Marseilles, and Nice, which, from the standpoint of national aspirations, do not present any different aspect from their sister communities, the mass of the Jews of the provinces reside in the regions near the frontier, in the north and in the east, the principal centres of their population being Lille, Nancy, Epinal, and Belfort, and, in the south-east, Lyons. As every man who was mobilized was included in a military unit of the region in which he resided, it is not astonishing that a goodly number of our coreligionists took part in the corps d'élite of the east, troops which were especially high-spirited and which were called upon to participate in all actions involving great shock, such as the famous units called the “iron” and the “steel” divisions of Nancy and of Toul.

The fact that the Jews reside in these regions explains also, but only in part, another phenomenon: French Jewry is not, so to say, represented in the navy. That is all the more reason for citing such Jewish officers of the navy as Marx, captain of a frigate, Diaz de Soria, lieutenant on a battleship, Valensi and Chudake, ensigns on a battleship. But the tastes of the Jews generally carry them elsewhere. On the other hand, their not being common sailors can be explained by a combination of geographical and professional reasons. The common sailors are recruited in the main from a special population, that of the fishermen on the coast and other sea-faring people. French

Jews do not engage in the fishing trade, and very few of them live in the coastal region. With rare exceptions, they do not enlist in the navy.<sup>1</sup>

The Jews of France are essentially city-dwellers. Belonging to the middle class, they devote themselves to commerce, industry, and the liberal professions. A large number of them occupy modest positions as workingmen and office employees; but, in the true sense of the word, no proletariat exists among them. Their mentality is entirely French; they are completely assimilated, being French citizens of the Jewish faith. Their attachment to France is instinctive. In this war it was doubly so because of the feeling that France was fighting for a just cause, which satisfied their ancient, deep, religious ideal. Besides, they were full of hope that a region in which a great number of them originated, and for which they had cherished a deep tenderness, would be returned to the Motherland. During a national manifestation which took place at the Sorbonne, on March 7, 1917, and in which there took part, in the presence of the head of the Republic, all religious organizations, M. Sylvain Lévi, professor at the Collège de France, uttered, in the name of French Jewry, the following declaration: "Israel has received from its prophets the unshakable faith in the triumph of justice. To-day, France, the emancipator-nation, is once again the champion of righteousness. Her children of the Jewish faith will serve her without fail until the day of victory which should give back to the French communities their old birthplace, Alsace-Lorraine."

<sup>1</sup> The young Algerian, Léon Kalifa, should be mentioned here. He was a sailor on board the Victor Hugo, was cited and decorated with the military medal, and died from wounds at Athens on December 2, 1916.

This is truly the spirit in which the Jews of France entered the war. How many examples can be cited of Jews who, animated by this double ideal, rallied to the flag and demanded a place of honor, that is to say, of danger, at the front! Were not many among them prepossessed with the desire of destroying a legend—the anti-Semitic legend that denied to them the French virtues—wishing to help by their valor to exalt the prestige of the Jews? Although exempt from all military obligations, Captain Charles Lehmann, of Belfort, who served in the war of 1870—he was then seventeen, he is now sixty-six—entered the service. Captain René Franck also demanded his reinstatement as captain of chasseurs à pied at the age of fifty-six. Captain Raoul Bloch deemed that he had a double duty to perform, “as Jew and as Frenchman”; he submitted repeated petitions to be sent into action. Ah, to view, in the French uniform, the country of his dreams, Alsace! “Our poor fathers would tremble in their graves!”

All those from Alsace, German subjects by force, who could rejoin France at the time, came to her to fight under her flag. There was Georges Weil, the deputy from Metz; there was Gabriel Meyer, who escaped from Saverne and came to die as a French soldier before Arras. There was David Bloch, of Guebwiller, who, having volunteered under an assumed name lest he should fall into German hands, entered the aviation corps and was made prisoner while effecting a landing in Alsace; his accent betrayed him; the German authorities used every means in their power to make him confess his real civil status. In the presence of his father they took him, put him up against a wall, and shot him. The Alsatians of 1914, joining those of 1870, in anticipation, and across the German trenches—there already we have the realization of the triumph of justice which was Israel's ideal!

The Jews who live in the metropolis, including those who had been cut off from them by violence, were joined by all those who were living in the most distant countries who hurriedly took the first conveyance by which they could return. The appeal to arms made these Frenchmen impatient to occupy their posts. There was, for example, the young lieutenant, Wiener, who came from Buenos Aires, participated in all actions, and fell in battle in the Champagne while leading the company, which he commanded, to the assault.

As to the number of French Jews who have fought in the war, exactitude of figures is again impossible. At the beginning of the war a Jewish commission of historical research was constituted in Paris, with the view to keeping a record of the participation of the Jews of France and of Algeria in the war. Despite its activity, it has not yet been able to establish any definite conclusion. A booklet which is not intended for publication, but which should, on the other hand, by its diffusion in Jewish circles, enable us to complete the collection of the facts already acquired, gives an alphabetical list of 2200 killed, including French, Algerian, and alien Jews.<sup>2</sup> This list is very incomplete. Another memorandum of this nature, containing a list of the Jews who have been decorated or cited, is in preparation. The same difficulties, which present themselves in an attempt to estimate the Jewish population, face us again, and for the same reasons, when it is desired to compile the Golden Book of French Jewry. In the absence of the documentary statistics to supplement the statement that all the Jews from 18 to 47 years, able to bear arms, took their places in the world war, we can at least establish the military virtues of the Jews of France by means of a synthetic consideration, by which there will be placed in relief certain facts which are particularly characteristic of the patriotism of our coreligionists. All having fought in the common struggle, under one flag, for one cause, with equal valor, it would seem somewhat unjust, and in any case artificial, to proceed as we are about to do, by classes. On the other hand, this method will lead to greater clarity in our exposition, and this is the only justification for this mode of treatment. We will therefore examine successively the rôle of the professional officers and that of the civilian, temporary soldiers who abandoned, along with their family firesides, their professional chairs, their laboratories of scientific research, and their offices of juridical consultation, who left their factories, their commercial offices, or who gave up an existence without many cares, in order to be able, as one of them has written, "To fall upon the enemy who has been botching everything in the world for the last forty-four years."<sup>3</sup>

<sup>2</sup> We will only mention for purposes of record two pamphlets: One on "The Jews and the War" (1915-16), published by a reformed anti-Semitic pamphleteer, André Vervoort, "in order to render justice to an entire category of good Frenchmen, too often calumniated," in which are given lists, entirely fragmentary and insufficiently edited, of French Jews killed or cited in despatches. Another, on "The Algerian Jews and the War," appeared in Algeria under the name of Jacques l'Hermite (the pseudonym of a Christian lawyer), but does not give any more guarantee of documentary value.

A. REGULAR OFFICERS

Scarcely was the door of citizenship opened to them, than the Jews had occasion to distinguish themselves in the military profession. As enlisted men or commissioned officers they figured in large numbers among the combatants in the wars of the first Empire. Fifty-two Jews fell at Waterloo. Later at Sebastopol, and still later, in 1870, they won their papers of the great naturalization by their conduct under fire.<sup>4</sup>

GENERALS.—The advent of the Republic, which definitely consecrated the equality of its citizens and permitted to all, without distinction of belief, access to all posts, opened fully to the Jews of France the career of arms. A great many of them found this profession to their liking, and succeeded in attaining high rank. The generation which followed 1870 has given us the following: Lieutenant-Generals: Lévi-Alvares, Hinstin, Léopold Sée. Generals of Brigade (Brigadier-Generals): Lambert, Abraham, Brisac. Generals in the Medical Corps: Aron, Michel-Lévy, Vidal. Intendant General: Lemant.

When the world war broke out, there were two Jewish generals in active service: Valabrègue, lieutenant-general, and Bloch, general of brigade; four in the reserve resumed service: Naquet-Laroque, lieutenant-general; Heymann, Dennery, and Farnctort, generals of brigade. In the course of the war, six other high officers, colonels at the beginning of the campaign, were promoted generals: Geismar, Lucien Lévy, Camille Lévy, Mayer, Alexandre, and Grumbach. To this number of Jewish generals it is proper to add two other under-intendants, promoted during the war to the rank of general: Bloch and Lévy.<sup>5</sup>

What posts did these generals occupy during the war? General Valabrègue, who in peace times commanded the Ecole de Guerre and then had been at the head of the 3rd Army Corps at Rouen and had taken part in the Supreme War Council, was given the command of an army in the field. Later he was recalled to the direction of an important service in the interior, and was promoted grand officer of the Legion of Honor. General Heymann was for two years in command of the 15th Army Corps, and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-general. Having reached the age-limit for active command at the front, he was placed at the head of the 15th region at Marseilles. The general of artillery, Alexandre, at first attached to the great headquarters as colonel, later took command of the artillery of an army corps. The general of engineers, Lucien Lévy, commanded the engineers of the 4th Army Corps. He is the son of a cantor at Blâmont, in the east of France. The artillery general, Geismar, commanded the artillery of the 4th Army Corps. Brigadier-General Camille Lévi was placed at the head of a brigade and then of a division of shock troops (chasseurs à pied). Brigadier-General Dennery commanded, at the beginning, a territorial division of infantry, then was given a command in the interior by reason of his retirement from active service. Brigadier-General Grumbach commanded a brigade of active infantry. Brigadier-General Mayer, a <sup>5</sup> Mention may be made in this connection of the fact that little and heroic Belgium also had a loyal Jewish general, Lieutenant-General Bernheim, who went through the whole campaign and distinguished himself in a particular manner. He was born at Brussels, and he is from Lorraine by descent, being the son of a Nancy father and a Thiaucourt mother.

colonel at the beginning of the campaign, was placed in command of the expeditionary forces to French West Africa, which fought victoriously against the Germans in Kamerun. Lieutenant-general Naquet-Laroque was designated as a member of the Superior Council of Inventions at the Ministry of War. General Francfort commanded the fortress of Epinal until he was overtaken by the age limit. He died a tragic death in the course of one of the bombardments of Paris by the German long-range cannon. General Bloch is one of the chiefs of that garrison of Maubeuge which defended itself so heroically until the day when it was obliged to surrender. He was taken prisoner to Germany.

To say that these glorious soldiers exercised their commands with valor and military talent, which place them on an equal footing with all the other great chiefs, would be almost an insult to them. Besides, their distinctions and citations bear witness to this. It is impossible to relate everything within the limits of this work, and only some indications of the nature of these honors are here given.

General Geismar, then still a colonel, was cited in the army orders for his "talent of organization, his masterful manner, and his activity which are beyond all praise, which permitted him to obtain from all his subordinates, by his personal energy and example, the maximum results."

General Alexandre, as the commander of an army corps, was cited in these terms: "He is, in the most diverse situations, distinguished by the rarest valor; in 1916, at Verdun, he commanded the artillery of an army corps under the most difficult circumstances, in a most remarkable fashion; he organized field and heavy artillery groups with indefatigable activity, absolute contempt of danger, impeccable tactical sense, and efficiency which impressed everyone; he contributed in large measure to the arrest of the German offensive."

General Grumbach "gave proof of great energy and brilliant military qualities in directing, under particularly difficult conditions, a series of attacks which have had happy results."

These high-rank officers are Alsatians by origin and even by birth. The real type among them of the glorious Jewish soldier of Alsace is General Camille Lévi, officer of a division of chasseurs à pied. Born in Ingwiller, graduated from the military school of St. Cyr, breveted at the École Supérieure de Guerre, he had a brilliant career before the war. He is, besides other things, the author of historical military works of standing. A colonel at the beginning of the war, he was soon called to the command of a brigade, promoted to general, and designated later for the command of one of the most glorious divisions. He was cited five times in the army orders. The following is the text of one of these citations, which earned for him, as colonel, promotion to the rank of officer of the Legion of Honor: "M. Lévi (Camille), colonel, commander of a brigade of infantry; superior officer of great value, whom the present campaign has permitted not only to confirm the real qualities of intelligence, of knowledge, of vigor, and of ability to command, which were recognized in him in times of peace, but also to reveal new ones. The regiment which he commanded at the beginning of the war he knew how to mould into a homogeneous unit, very spirited in advancing and steadfast under fire. As a commander of a brigade, he was able, sometimes under very difficult circumstances, not only to maintain inviolably the position which was confided to him or which he had been able to capture, but further by vigorous action to impose great checks upon the enemy."

COLONELS.—To enumerate the colonels, chiefs of regiments, charged with the command of a brigade, or called upon to occupy other posts of honor, is more difficult, because their number is quite considerable. They were to be found in the different branches and in the most varied positions. Nevertheless, we give herewith a list of most of them.

(a) Artillery.—Colonels and lieutenant-colonels: Franck, commander of the artillery of an army corps; Hertz, commander of the artillery park of an army corps; Ulmo, assistant brigade major of an army corps; Alfred Dreyfus, the well-vindicated victim of the famous case, commander of a sector of the intrenched camp of Paris; Edmond Mayer, commander of the artillery in Algeria; Katz, commander of artillery of a fortress; Pompe, assistant brigade major of an army corps; and the following commanders of artillery regiments: Bernheim-Dennery, Braun, Carence, Créange, Carvallo, Deslaurens (seriously wounded), Hauser, Hesse, Henri Meyer, Milhaud, Adam Salomon, and Valabrègue (brother of the general).

(b) Engineers.—Franck, brigade major of an army corps; Jules Lévy, director of the engineers of the étapes of the armies (died of disease contracted at the front); Auscher, director of the engineers of étapes; Bechmann (reserve), chief engineer; I. Lévy, commander of the engineers of a division.

(c) Cavalry.—Colonel Lemant, commander of a brigade of dragoons (son of the intendant-general), died of disease contracted in the field; Lieutenant-Colonel Moog.

(d) Military Police.—Lieutenant-Colonel Lang, attached to the provost of the army.

(e) Infantry.—Lieutenant-Colonel Cahen, commander of the first regiment of colonial infantry, who, in a brilliant attack, succeeded in having his regiment capture five lines of enemy trenches, and fell in action; Lieutenant-Colonel Armand Denery, brigade major of a division; Colonel Gerst, commander of a regiment; Lieutenant-Colonel Kahn, commander of the 36th regiment of infantry, several times cited, notably for having, in leading his troop to the assault of a village, conserved the men under his command to the extreme limit, hit by several balls, and his leg broken by a shell; Colonel Lévy, commander of the 283d regiment; Lieutenant-Colonel Lion, commander of the 221st regiment of infantry; Lieutenant-Colonel Marx, commander of a territorial regiment; Lieutenant-Colonel Ruef, commander of a brigade of infantry in the army of the Orient,* seriously wounded, he resumed, upon his recovery, command of the 272d regiment of infantry; Lieutenant-Colonel Sée (son of General Leopold Sée), commander of a battalion of chasseurs à pied, wounded several times, then placed at the head of the 327th regiment of infantry; Lieutenant-Colonel Strauss, of the 175th regiment of infantry in the army of the Orient; Colonel Alphonse Weiller, commander of the 129th regiment of infantry; Lieutenant-Colonel Léon Weiller, commander of the 21st regiment, wounded.

(g) Pharmacy.—Chief pharmacist of the first class (colonel): Bloch, of the colonial army.

* [The army in the Balkans.—Translator.]

(h) Under-Intendant.—Of the second class (lieutenant-colonel) Charles Léon Lippman.

It will be seen from this enumeration that many of these high officers have paid with their lives for their heroism in combat; others, brave to the point of rashness, were seriously wounded in the course of action. All have unstintedly done their duty; to this the official citations bear witness. It is out of the question to quote all of these. Colonel Franck, "showing in all circumstances the greatest contempt of danger," as well as Colonel Alphonse Weiller (of the 129th), "model of personal bravery and of intelligent energy," are leaders to whom the Jews of France may point with pride. Here is another Weiller (Léon) whose conduct is eloquently described in the various citations which he successively received: At the beginning of the war he ventured out under a violent enemy fire, and brought back his wounded colonel, who would have inevitably fallen into the hands of the enemy. He was promoted commander and chevalier of the Legion of Honor after new exploits. In the night of October 7 and 8, 1915, relates a second citation, he, with fifty men, maintained the defence of a village, attacked by seven companies of the enemy, thus permitting the arrival of re-inforcements; he himself, with his fifty men, took prisoner a lieutenant-colonel and 123 soldiers. In 1916, he was made officer of the Legion of Honor and cited in these terms: "Superior officer of the first order, of rare energy, under a violent bombardment organized his pieces into a redoubt behind which he maintained his battalion for eleven days. Resisted the repeated attacks of the enemy, directing the defence with an exceptional sang-froid. Gave proof of great personal bravery. Was wounded in the course of the attack." Promoted to lieutenant-colonel of the 21st regiment, Weiller is really one of the finest types of French soldiers.

COMMANDANTS (MAJORS).—These are very numerous. As a consequence of their functions, they participated directly and continuously in the actual fighting. They therefore have a large number of losses, and the list of their deaths is very long. Among those killed, it is proper to cite: Infantry: Abraham Bentata; Debenedetti; Marcel Kahn; Julien Kauffmann; Mayer-Samuel; Pereira; Ruef; Joseph Saffar. Artillery: Godchau; Maurice Lévy; Schwab. Engineers: Lévi-Alvares.

How did these brave men die? The two official citations which follow will suffice to answer this question. Commandant Paul Mayer-Samuel "received mortal wounds during a reconnaissance," in the course of which he showed his habitual courage and high spirit. Commandant Ruef (brother of the colonel killed in the army of the Orient) "showed great bravery by walking up and down the length of the trench occupied by his battalion, under a terrible infantry and artillery fire, for the purpose of setting to his men, by his cool attitude, an example of absolute contempt of danger." He was mortally hit. Commandant Debenedetti was cited five times.

The others, those who survived, are not inferior to their fallen comrades. Let us only name the commandants of artillery: Bacharach; Louis Bickart; Georges Bloch; Carrus; Aron Franck; Gouguenheim; Hinstin; Weill. The chiefs of battalions of infantry: Dreyfus (cited three times); Edmond Lévy; Lantz; Mayer; Naphtali Meyer; Eugene Schmoll (cited four times and severely wounded); Weisweiler. The chief of a cavalry squadron: Jacob Gommès. The commandants of engineers: Alexandre Aron and Rheims.

We will now stop our survey of the regular army officers; many long pages would be needed in order to appraise the rôles of the many Jewish captains and lieutenants. Besides, as a considerable number of our coreligionists, who occupy civil positions of the most divers kind, took part in the war as officers of the reserve, we can affirm that among them there obtained the military virtues to the same degree as among their comrades of the regular army. We can certify that these existed as well among all the other French Jews, men as well as officers.<sup>7</sup>

B. THE NATION IN ARMS

(1) THE SONS OF OFFICERS.—Between the regular officers and the temporary military man, which every Frenchman is from 20 to 47 years of age, the sons of officers appear to constitute an intermediate category. At all times the ideal of the French officer has been to have his son embrace the career of arms. The Jewish military men feel the same way. Following the Dreyfus case, this attitude became less marked. For several years, on account of the anti-Semitic campaign, Jewish officers were somewhat snubbed by their comrades; these insults to their pride could not be borne by them; sometimes even their advancement was impeded. These discouragements could not fail to accomplish their aim. What happened? Some, fortunately very few, believed that they could avoid misfortune by forsaking Judaism; others hoped that a change of name would suffice to procure them peace. Still others, more numerous, preferred to submit their resignations as officers. And then in the young generation, which was about to make the choice of a profession, the longing for a career, where one was not in danger of being received with malevolence, manifested itself. Despite the revision of opinion which took place after the reparation of what has rightly been called "the greatest injustice of the nineteenth century," the number of Jewish regular officers tended to diminish. Nevertheless, amongst the sons of Jewish officers the irresistible attachment to the profession of arms persisted. Examples of the late war show this. Regular officers such as Colonel Sée, son of the general; such as the chief of battalion, Mayer-Samuel, son of the colonel; such as one of the sons of Colonel Kahn, or of Colonel Mayer, officers of the reserve; such as the sons of Colonel Dreyfus, or of the commandant Levylier—the sons like the father love the epaulettes and the honor and the danger which they symbolize; the sons like the father have the passion to make sacrifices for France. All this is the heredity of courage. It is a sacred debt. They paid it in full!

Lieutenant Heymann, the only son of the general commandant of the 15th Army Corps, was killed. Lieutenant Auscher, son of the colonel of engineers, fell mortally wounded. Lieutenant Charles Halphen, son of the commandant (deceased), member of the Academy of Sciences, was killed under conditions which are thus described in a posthumous citation: "In command of a sector of trench cannon, he showed in this dangerous post, which he had solicited as a favor, an unconquerable bravery, communicating to his men the ardor which animated him, and winning the admiration of everybody. He fell mortally wounded at the moment when he was delivering his heaviest blows against the enemy."

Of the two sons of Lieutenant Kahn, the younger, Roger, who wished to be a regular officer, like his father, and for that reason went to the military school of St. Cyr, fell on the field of honor at the age of nineteen years; one of his citations qualified him as "a young, most brilliant officer of remarkable ardor and bravery"; the other, reserve officer, was made chevalier of the Legion of Honor at the age of twenty-two.

Colonel Mayer lost three sons: one, Maurice, a regular officer, was killed at his post as officer of artillery, in 1914; the other, Léon, a lawyer, was wounded in the artillery, and became an officer in the aviation corps. It was he, who, after returning from Algeria after his first wound, declared to a newspaper man: "After the joys of a family, come those of war. I do not know which are the sweeter, or rather, yes, I do know it, when it is for France that one is fighting." After recovering, he was placed in the aviation corps, where he carried out reconnaissance raids, "one of which was for 900 kilometers, in the course of which he bombarded the military establishment of an important enemy group." He was killed later. A third son, Lieutenant Paul Mayer, also an aviator, fell likewise on the field of honor.

The son of Lieutenant-Colonel Dreyfus had the good fortune of escaping harm. Sub-lieutenant, later lieutenant, he was promoted captain, and is exceedingly happy to have achieved the rank in which his father was a martyr. He was cited several times for his conduct. Notably at Verdun, during the most tragic days of 1916, he was cited in the following manner in the order of the army: "At the front since the beginning of the campaign, he distinguished himself particularly during the days of the 26th, 27th, and 28th of February, 1916, by giving assurance during those three days of an observation and liaison service under the most perilous conditions, after having requested not to be relieved during that period in order not to risk disturbing the continuity of the service during a critical stage. During the last days of February and the first of March, 1916, he remained continually at this position with his battery, in that way assuring a particularly active service of his pieces under an almost continuous bombardment by enemy artillery."

Similar examples can be multiplied. Those which have just been given appear to be sufficiently eloquent and particularly characteristic.

(2) THE HIGH OFFICIALS AND LIBERAL PROFESSIONS.—In the rank as a simple soldier, in command as an officer, as well as in his research laboratory or in the assemblies directing the country, the Jew held his place with honor and fortitude. Of the eight members of the Chamber of Deputies, one, L. L. Klotz, has been twice Minister of Finance; two others, MM. Maase and Ignace, were, respectively, Under-Secretaries of State and of Military Justice. Three Jewish deputies were officers in the reserve, MM. André Hesse, Camille Picard, Maurice Bokanowski. The seventh, M. Lazare Weiller, who had passed the age at which one fights, gave to France in the person of his son, Captain Paul Weiller, one of the most audacious air pilots.*

Lieutenant-deputy Bokanowski, attached in the beginning as officer to the general staff of one of the divisions in the East, was there cited for his bravery and for the services which he rendered by means of his reconnaissance. Subsequently he happened to be upon the Provence, when it was torpedoed, and this is how the dispatch in which he was cited describes his conduct: "After the torpedoing, by an enemy submarine, of the Provence, he remained until the last moment upon the bridge, near the commander of the ship, encouraging the men, himself assisting in launching the life boats into the water and not claiming a place for himself upon the boats; he did not jump into the sea until the moment the ship sank."

Our savants renounced their private work in order to take their places at the front, where they found use for their special abilities. It is thus that Captain Paul Helbronner, distinguished author of geodetic studies of the Alpine glaciers, became attached to a general staff of artillery. Sub-Lieutenant Pierre-Marcel Lévi directed the photographic and cinema service of the army. The astronomer Charles Nordmann, originally a private in the artillery, later promoted to officer, "made an important improvement in the aiming of artillery and applied it under the fire of the enemy, often under perilous circumstances, giving proof of great energy and much courage." Important work was accomplished by Nordmann in order to estimate the distance of enemy artillery by sound. In a preface which General Nivelle, Generalissimo of the armies of the Republic before Marshal Foch, wrote to a book by Charles Nordmann,<sup>9</sup> he renders homage to the work which this scientist accomplished under his orders (at the beginning of the campaign the general was colonel of the artillery regiment of which Nordmann was a member): "On the very day that you arrived at my post of command, I associated you with our researches of the estimation of the distance of the enemy batteries by sound. On the following day you brought me the formula which has served as the basis of solution of this problem, and which you did not delay, thanks to the extent of your theoretical and practical resources, to translate into the domain of application. Your method has led to numerous modifications, but it remains as the basis of everything which has been done in this field."

Sub-Lieutenant Henri Abraham, professor at the Sorbonne, was made officer of the Legion of Honor for perfecting the wireless telegraph and for his services in the struggle against the submarine.

The University of France also made heavy sacrifices in the patriotism and heroism of its members. There was Henri Hayem, son of the professor of the faculty of medicine of Paris, who returned from Tokio, where he was professor of law, in order to fall gloriously in battle. There was Corporal René Weill, professor of philosophy, who was killed at his post. There was Robert Blum, professor of mathematics, who died gloriously at the age of 23; Sergeant Maurice Léon, professor at the Lycée of Marseilles; Sergeant André Lévy, professor; Maxime David, professor; Lieutenant Adolphe Reinach (son of Joseph Reinach, former deputy, who, during the whole war, wrote for the Figaro a chronicle of the operations which was always deeply appreciated). Adolphe Reinach was a former pupil of the French School at Athens, a young scientist who had already earned a great reputation. There was Sub-Lieutenant Georges Lévy, professor at the Lycée of Aix, who died at Eparges in leading his section to the assault and whose death provoked such regret at the Lycée where he had taught that his colleagues decided to place the flag of the institution at half-mast, to consecrate a commemorative tablet to him, and to place the palm of the brave upon his grave. All these heroes fell for glory, to the great loss of French letters and science.

Among their comrades, like them, pupils or former pupils of the École Normale Supérieure, that nursery in which are trained the élite of the members of the teaching staff of the country, death struck additional hard blows. Killed by the enemy, Sub-Lieutenant Roger Cahen, who "loved the first-line trenches where one enjoys life to the full," fell in the Argonne, mourned by all the men of his company. Lieutenant André Durkheim, wounded in Serbia (son of the professor of sociology at the Sorbonne, Emile Durkheim, who could not survive for a very long time the sorrow at the death of his son); Sub-Lieutenant Robert Herz, who, as he wrote to his wife, was "homesick for this region where great sacrifices are consummated," and who had the feeling that, "if he fell, he would only have repaid a very small part of the debt which he owed to the country"; Sub-Lieutenant Pierre Javal, who, having scarcely recovered from typhoid fever, requested to be sent to the front and fell at the head of his section which he was leading to the attack; Lucien Ulmo, who was the sole survivor of six brothers, and who, without resources, had succeeded by his own efforts in being admitted at one and the same time to the École Normale Supérieure and the École Polytechnique.

The École Polytechnique has also a great page in the war, and a number of its pupils, the élite of the nation, have paid for their heroism with their lives; others, who have had the good fortune to return, have achieved glory and honors. In 1912, 200 pupils were admitted, nine of whom were Jews. Of these nine, three fell in the field; of the remaining six, four were cited several times; only sub-lieutenants at the beginning of the war, they returned to the school, where their studies had been interrupted, as captains. In 1914, of the 415 pupils admitted sixteen were Jews. Four of these were killed; another succumbed to disease after having gone through an entire campaign and having been cited three times. This was the son of Colonel Braun, whose other son was killed at the front as an officer. Eight were cited, four wounded. Among these was the son of the grand rabbin Lévi, who was twice cited and twice wounded.

How did these Jews die? One of them, Sub-Lieutenant Pierre Hadamard, at the age of 20 years (son of the illustrious mathematician Hadamard, professor at the Collège de France, who lost his other son aged 19 years), went out one day in the region of Verdun to endeavor to discover an observation point for his artillery battery. His mission accomplished, he saw, in passing through a trench of infantry, the infantrymen endeavoring to repulse the enemy with bayonet and cannon. The young officer stopped, coolly picked up a rifle, and charged along with them. It was in the course of this charge that he met his glorious death.

Magistrates and attorneys, men of the gown, became men of the sword, and did their duty on the field of battle as in the palace of justice; they fell valiantly. There was Sergeant Albert Feldman, auditor of the Council of State; Sergeant Pierre Gaston Mayer, advocate of the Council of State and at the Court of Cassation, who, "having set out to make a reconnaissance and being stopped by superior forces, preferred to be killed on the spot rather than surrender"; the two brothers Rosenfeld, Sergeant Pierre and Sub-Lieutenant André; Sub-Lieutenant Lévy-Fleur; Sergeant René Cohen; Maurice Ernst; Oscar Franck; André May; Robert Lowys; Oscar Kiefe; Louis Heilbronner, lieutenant of staff—all practising in the Court of Appeals in Paris; Messiah, lieutenant of chasseurs alpins, of the bar of Nice; Judge Samama of the tribunal of Chateaudun.

The physicians exhibited the same spirit of devotion and self-sacrifice as the combatants. To name all those, who, under the most perilous circumstances, gave proof of calm and steadfast courage, would mean to mention all of them. Let us refer only to Doctor Zadoc-Kahn, son of the late grand rabbin, who "stationed in a village which was under a vigorous bombardment, gave proof of exemplary sang-froid and devotion by attending to the wounded under the most difficult and dangerous conditions." Doctor Louis Job, appointed chevalier of the Legion of Honor for having "at several junctures and under the well-directed fire of the enemy attempted to crawl to aid the colonel of his regiment who was seriously wounded only 50 meters from the German lines"; Doctor Fernand Netter, made chevalier of the Legion of Honor, "severely hit while ministering to the wounded under violent bombardment"; Doctor Somen, thrice wounded, cited seven times, decorated with the cross of the Legion of Honor, kept, upon his formal request, as physician of a battalion in the front lines, where he remained for three years; Doctor Kaminer, cited five times, killed while attempting, despite violent bombardment, to rescue a wounded captain.

Artists and writers toiled with the same spirit of the common destiny. Captain Halphen, musical composer, winner of the Grand Prix de Rome, died from disease contracted at the front. The two brothers, Maurice and Léon Bonneff, joint authors of the work Vie tragique des travailleurs, were killed. Henri Bernstein, the playwright, distinguished himself as an aviator. Pierre Mortier, editor of the journal Gil Blas, was several times cited on the western front, and later for "great services which he contributed to the organization of the aviation corps on the Oriental front." The actor Réynal (Lévy), of the Comédie-Française, fell in battle; Julien Feiner of the Opéra Comique, was severely wounded.

(3) FINANCE, INDUSTRY, COMMERCE.—This properly includes the whole of the French Jewish middle class. It may be said that, as a general rule, French Jewish families have fewer members than the families of Algerian or Polish Jews; and it has been inferred from this that the birth-rate diminishes with the decrease in religious observance. This is quite possible. Nevertheless families may still be cited which have observed the letter of the biblical precept: "Be fruitful, and multiply."

A family of Grumbachs, of Belfort, had seven sons, two sons-in-law, and two grandsons with the colors. The Dreyfous-May family, of Paris, had eight sons mobilized. M. Aron Weill, of Gérardmer, had nine sons under arms. Of five sons and one son-in-law serving France, M. Karfan lost his son-in-law and one of his sons, a sub-lieutenant of infantry.

The loss of several children in succession was also a frequent occurrence. We have already mentioned the death in action of the three sons of Colonel Mayer and of the two sons of Professor Hadamard. Mme. Picard, a widow of Rémiremont, lost three children in succession—Private Narcisse Picard was killed in the Champagne in 1914; Sub-Lieutenant Roger Picard fell in the Champagne offensive of 1915; Sub-Lieutenant André Picard, fell at Verdun in 1916 at the head of his platoon. The two brothers, Lieutenants Guastalla, sons of the stock-broker, also fell.

All sections of the Jewish middle class, whether of high finance or of commerce, paid their debt without any stint, in the most divers forms and in the most exposed branches of the service. It is interesting, for example, to read in the list of aviators such names as James Henri de Rothschild, Albert Cahen d'Anvers, Nissim de Camondo. The last, son of Count Moïse de Camondo, a lieutenant-aviator, was overtaken in a chase by a group of enemy fliers at the moment when he was photographing German positions; he destroyed one of his adversaries before he was mortally struck by a bullet. As staff officer of cavalry, Baron Alexis de Gunzberg, was killed in battle on the Yser. Robert de Rothschild, interpreter-officer, was cited three times in terms of highest praise.

It is not possible to enumerate all those heroes who represent so well French Jewry in noble and simple patriotism. Although it would be wrong to the others to cite a few, yet some such choice is forced upon us.

There is first Sub-Lieutenant Lucien Cahen, of the 60th Infantry, cited seven times in terms of highest praise as "a young officer of superb energy, of fine initiative, and great courage," and as "putting to flight an enemy superior in number and already intrenched. He electrified his men by his attitude, himself sounding the charge at their head on a bugle which he had picked up from the ground. He maintained his command, though wounded." In another citation his "remarkable bravery and rare energy" are highly praised.

Louis-Raphael Paul Lévy, captain of artillery, was a "distinguished officer, as remarkable for his bravery and his technical attainments as for the control which he maintained over his troops in the most critical hours."

Captain Maxime Berr, son of a counsellor at the Court of Appeals of Paris, fell gloriously in the offensive of April, 1917, in an advanced position where he went to place his pieces, and to whom a citation in the army orders renders praise in these terms: "Officer of technical value of the first order.

endowed with the finest military virtues: authority, bravery, self-sacrifice." Upon his grave, his colonel rendered him the further praise that he was adored by his men. Another trait which should be noted is kindness. It was to be found among many of the Jewish chiefs; we will see further on the testimony of it given in a touching manner to a brave little Jewish soldier.

Sub-Lieutenant Picard, of Dunkirk, was decorated with the military medal, cited three times, and one citation presents him to us as "a veritable inspirer of men, a specialist in sudden attacks, renowned everywhere for his bravery and his audacity, who begged as an honor to be entrusted with the direction of all perilous enterprises."

Captain Jacques Gompel, wounded while in command of his company in a night surprise attack, had his arm bandaged with the strap of a water-bottle, and remained in command for ten hours under the most violent fire.

Sub-Lieutenant Lang, of the 12th chasseurs, buried in his dug-out in the course of a bombardment, severely wounded and seeing himself lost, began to sing the Marseillaise, thus giving a magnificent example to his company who heard him. In similar circumstances, buried with his men in a dug-out which had caved in, Sub-Lieutenant Ledermann maintained his sang-froid, and sustained the morale of his men to his last breath.

Those who die utter sayings which are sublimely simple. There is Captain Maurice Cromback of the staff of a division; he had fulfilled a mission to a regiment at the moment when that regiment was engaged in counter-attacking the enemy. He personally took part in the operation, and, though severely wounded, had enough strength to say: "Come on, we must push them back still further!" Lieutenant Adolphe Hirsch, of the engineers, was mortally struck at Craonne. "I die," he said, "but it is a consolation to know that we are victorious." Captain Paquin, of the 25th battalion of chasseurs à pied, was mortally wounded. "Forward, even so!" he cried. Lieutenant Guetschel, of the 6th regiment of unmounted artillery, was severely wounded while commanding a battery. Upon leaving the dressing station whither some of his men had come to bid him good-bye, he cried: "Cheer up, my friends; men can be replaced." He died soon after. Paul Levylier, sub-lieutenant of dragoons, son of a former officer, mortally struck, pronounced these final words: "Write to my father that I died for France."

Private Maurice Danziger, of the 41st chasseurs à pied, was killed on October 26, 1918. His brothers-in-arms clubbed together to raise a monument to him upon which they engraved the words which any commentary would weaken: "To know him was to love him."

The chasseur Joseph Cahn, a young business man, also a poet who had sung in sublime verses of the war and of the unrecorded heroism of the trenches, was wounded for the first time. His captain wrote to him: "The memory of brave men like you is ineffaceable in the souls of the chiefs who have had the good fortune to command them." He recovered and resumed his place; he was again wounded, this time severely; his wound carried him off, but earned for him the military medal and this beautiful citation: "Of remarkable bravery, always ready to undertake perilous missions. Having had his arms broken by shells, he gave his comrades a magnificent example of stoicism and of self-sacrifice by refusing to be relieved until his duty as telephone operator had been done."

Bravery pushed to the extreme of pure stoicism joined with goodness, the manifest desire to set an example even unto death—these are some of the beautiful traits of character which distinguish the French Jews.

A type completely embodying all these Jewish and soldierly qualities is to be found in a man whom we have already mentioned several times, but whose beautiful ideal picture it is important to sketch, as it appears to us in the light of the intimate correspondence which his family has piously collected: it is Captain Raoul Bloch. He typifies the French Jew who by his labor had acquired a distinguished position, who lived in a family atmosphere full of tenderness, but who, upon the call to arms, left, without hesitation, his affections and his business, because he wished, as a son of Alsace and a Jew of France, to do his duty, his whole duty. His age caused him to be placed in a unit at a supply base. This made him suffer; "the voice of his ancestors told him that at his age, able-bodied and energetic, one should hunt down the enemy." To see himself in a formation behind the lines was for him "really heart-breaking." He supplicated his friends to intercede for him at the Ministry to enable him to go with a regiment. If need be, he would even join a regiment which had been decimated and deprived of many of its officers. "I have a tempered soul and self-possession, I am certain that I will inspire my men and that I will serve with honor and courage. At my age one should not be kept in reserve; it is a veritable humiliation at this moment" (August, 1914). His duty was to go. He had the conviction that he would come back. He wrote to his wife: "When I return, for I shall return, we will again have one another in our beloved nest, and all six of us will be peacefully proud and contented that the head of the family had simply done his duty like so many others."

The event proved hard for his children, for his companion; but it was that "for all the women of France." In November, 1914, his request was granted, and he was sent to the first lines; his wish was realized; he rejoiced; he depicted with enthusiasm the active life of the trenches, the soul of the poilus who were also his children. From the beginning he won the attention of his superiors. He was happy to be of those who were contributing directly to the reconquest of his native land. What joy to be able to say that one is "part of the numberless hosts that are advancing to establish peace and happiness in the world! Even if one is merely an atom in it, that one is co-operating in the great work and can re-enter his home later, and be able to say: 'I was there.'" Despite his faith, this brave man was not to return. In May, 1916, he was killed, and his heroic end is celebrated by the following beautiful citation of General Nivelle, commander of the 2nd Army:

"Bloch (Raoul), captain of the 306th regiment of infantry, officer animated by an ardent patriotism; asked to leave service in the rear, to which he was assigned upon mobilization, in order to take command of a unit in the first line. Ordered with his company to defend a particularly exposed sector, in immediate contact with the enemy, he set about, with the greatest activity and without thinking of danger, to make of it an invulnerable redoubt. Fell at his post of command; before dying he found the strength to say to his chief of battalion, 'I am hard hit, I regret that it should be in such circumstances; I would have been happy if it were while leading my company to victory! But we'll get them! I made the sacrifice of my life for France.'"

It was "as Frenchman and as Jew" that Captain Raoul Bloch had wished to do his double duty. Still others have expressed the same idea: to give honor to the Jewish name, to enhance by their conduct under fire the prestige of their coreligionists. But religion itself, did it not have any place in their thoughts? An eminent Catholic writer, who formerly coquetted with the anti-Semites, M. Maurice Barrès, has consecrated to the different "spiritual families of France" a series of articles in a great daily paper, and has praised in its pages the patriotism of the French Jews.<sup>10</sup> He seems always to experience something like satisfaction in asserting that those Jews whose moral portraits he depicts had "consciences which appear void of religious tradition."

Such, nevertheless, is not the case in a general way. The Jew of France is not always a very faithful observer of religious practices; but in him slumbers a religious being which this war has often awakened. Let us hear what Captain Maxime Berr says: "Religious morality is the truest, the best of all. I often read over and over again fragments in my little, simple prayer-book." M. Barrès himself received from different sides very explicit declarations which ran counter to his point of view. These he has loyally reproduced in an appendix to the volume, in which he has republished his articles.<sup>11</sup> There is first that of a young Jewish officer, a Lorraine manufacturer, who states: "I am a Jew, sincerely believing in, and attached to, my religion, happy to fight for my country, which I love. In the solitude at the front, my faith has intervened, and saved me morally. I remember the prayer which I used to say, when I was a little child, in the evening before I kissed my mother. I have prayed, and the Lord has sustained me and has given me peace. Each time that I must make a decision, I think of Him, and I am at peace. Each time that I see that it is necessary to brave death, I think of Him and my duty appears natural, without merit."

M. Barrès cites still another testimony: The father of one of the dead heroes, who bears a very prominent name, which, because of his modesty, is not divulged, makes known the sentiments which his glorious son expressed in his war letters. "I have the powerful feeling," he writes in one place, "of the protection of God, in such a manner that I have felt no merit nor experienced any hesitation in throwing myself into the storm of shot and shell."

Finally, we have the testimony which doubtless is most precious in the eyes of the illustrious writer, that of a Catholic priest, who was at the same time a physician to the regiment in which Lieutenant Halphen served. Writing to the mother of the latter, fallen on the field of battle, the priest says: "The friendship between me and your son has been transformed into respect and admiration upon his heroic death. And I wish to say to you also that the infinitely powerful and merciful God in whom we all believe, although of different religion, in whom your son believed—he told me so—has, I hope, taken unto Himself the righteous and loyal soul which was sacrificed for duty, and that He has given him an immortal life."

Sustained by his religious ideals, the French Jewish fighter appears only more sublime than before.

(4) A FORM OF JEWISH COURAGE: THE HEROES OF THE AIR.—Aviation was, in the course of these years of heroic struggle, a branch in which it was necessary, more than in any other, to give proof of poise, of a calm courage pushed to the extreme of almost supernatural rashness, of the constant contempt of death, which could be the result of atmospheric conditions or of some accident, besides combat with the enemy or the shrapnel from his cannon. To be admitted to it, it was necessary to combine conditions of altogether peculiar physical resistance and of moral stamina. We are not at all astonished that the Jews of France combined these qualities to a high degree and that they succeeded in showing their characteristics here as elsewhere. But it is, nevertheless, surprising that such a considerable number of our coreligionists figure in this branch of the service. In the course of this article we have had occasion already to cite some of them. We have given an account of those who distinguished themselves in a particular manner, and do not at all pretend to have exhausted the list. We find in it, however, ninety-one names, among whom thirty-five were killed in aerial combat or fell in active service. Following is this glorious roster, which it is interesting to preserve:

Robert-Moïse Aaronson, sub-lieutenant; Edmond Abraham, adjutant; Maurice Alexandre, lieutenant, killed in action; Al-louch, captain (Algerian); Maurice Aron, captain, killed in action; Balensi, captain (Algerian); Raymond Bamberger, sub-lieutenant, several times cited, decorated with the Legion of Honor; Baranovitch, captain (Russian), wounded; Paul Beer, pilot, killed in action; Jacques Bendix, non-commissioned officer; Benedictus, corporal; Henri Bernstein, lieutenant; Bloch, captain, commander of the squadron which won thirty-four aerial victories officially acknowledged; Marcel Bloch, adjutant, several times wounded; Marcel Richard Bloch; Pierre Richard Bloch, lieutenant; David Bloch, of Guebwiller, executed by the Germans; Raymond Bollack, captain, made prisoner with the dirigible "Alsace," escaped from Germany under peculiarly perilous conditions after a stay of several weeks at Berlin, where, thanks to his knowledge of German, he studied the methods of the manufacturing of war materials and was able to bring back to France very useful information which won for him, upon his return, a decoration of the Legion of Honor; Jules Brandenburg, sub-lieutenant, died in the Orient; Robert Cahen, quartermaster, killed in action; Albert Cahen-d'Anvers, lieutenant; Nissim de Camondo, lieutenant; Pierre Carvallo, sub-lieutenant; Cohen, sergeant-pilot; Maurice Cohen, captain, commander of the dirigible "Alsace," captured by the Germans, made Chevalier of the Legion of Honor upon his return from captivity, for his numerous aerial exploits; Dalsace, captain; Debré, sub-lieutenant; Deitz, quartermaster, killed in action; Dragushin, pilot (Roumanian); Adolphe Dreyfus, sergeant-pilot; René Dreyfus, captain; Dreyfus-Raffalowich, adjutant; Drossner, sergeant, killed in action; Ehrlich, adjutant, wounded, 19 aerial victories; Ehrlich, sergeant, his brother; Enos, lieutenant, killed in action; André Faraggi, sub-lieutenant; Felix, lieutenant, killed in action; Edmond Franck, adjutant, killed in action; Pierre Franck; Georges Franckel, adjutant; Robert Geismar, sub-lieutenant; Edmond Goldschmidt, lieutenant, killed in action; Kolman Gruenblatt, sub-lieutenant, several times wounded; Gouguenheim, sergeant; Max Gouman, pilot (Russian volunteer), killed in action; Grunewald, sub-lieutenant; Charles Guggenheim, adjutant; Robert Halbronn, captain, killed in trying out a new apparatus of his invention; Halphen, killed in the course of a protective flight around Paris; Louis Heimann, pilot; Marcel Heimann, sergeant, killed in action; Hertz, lieutenant; Henri Hirsch, sub-lieutenant; Léon Jerome Kahn, captain, wounded; David Kainscop, corporal-pilot, killed in service; Paul Kauffman, sergeant; Georges Kohn, lieutenant; Albert Lellouche, lieutenant (Algerian); Lehmann, lieutenant;

Albert Lévi, sub-lieutenant, severely wounded; André Lévy, adjutant-pilot, who after having shot down an Austrian hydro-plane in the upper Adriatic, was himself killed in action; Marcel Joseph Lévy, sub-lieutenant, killed in action; Robert Lévy, sub-lieutenant, killed in action; Jacques Libman, sub-lieutenant, killed in action; Georges Marcovitz (Russian volunteer), killed in action; Isaac Mark, killed by accident; Paul Mayer, lieutenant, killed in action; André Mendel; Mesguich, lieutenant (Algerian), killed in action; Misrachi, pilot (Frenchman from Salonica), killed in action; Pierre Mortier, sub-lieutenant; Reiss, corporal-pilot, killed in action; Rosenfeld, captain, commander of a squadron; James Henri de Rothschild; Pierre Rouff; René Ruf, sub-lieutenant, killed in action; Salomon, sub-lieutenant; Samama, adjutant (Tunisian), killed in action; Silberstein, pilot (Russian volunteer), killed in action; Tayeb, pilot (Tunisian); Charles Herbert Weil, sergeant-aviator; Lucien Weil, sergeant-ballooning; Eugène Weissman, sub-lieutenant, killed in action; Paul Louis Weiller, captain, cited eleven times; Armand Weyl, sergeant, severely wounded; Marcel Wolff, lieutenant, wounded; Edouard Wolff, sergeant, severely wounded; Nathan Zachman (Russian volunteer).

We have enumerated in this list of common glory, all the Jewish aviators of France—those who came from the metropolis, from French Africa, or foreign volunteers in the service. Those of them who escaped death have, like their fallen comrades, the most praiseworthy deeds of arms to their credit, each one of them having been cited several times in the army orders. There was Sergeant Gouguenheim, who put to flight six enemy aviators; there was Lieutenant Marcel Wolff, who gave battle numerous times and repeatedly took part in the destruction of enemy batteries; there was Adjutant Ehrlich, who was made prisoner in September, 1918, after his 19th aerial victory, succeeded in escaping from Torgau, and arrived at Metz, soon after the armistice; there was Adjutant Marcel Bloch, who specialized in attacking the Drachen, and after having hit several of them, won the following citation, which relates new exploits of his: "On June 26, 1917, he left in order to attack a Drache, descended to 400 metres, and put to flight three enemy planes. On June 29, he descended to 100 metres, set fire to enemy provision dumps, and riddled with his machine gun the soldiers who wished to extinguish the fire. On July 1, he attacked successively two Drachen at 200 metres in the air, succeeded in firing them despite the intervention of two enemy aviators and of the constant fire of the machine guns and of special anti-aircraft cannon. He came back with his machine riddled with bullets."

There is finally—we greatly limit ourselves—he who embodied all the beautiful qualities of the heroes of the air, Captain Paul Louis Weiller, recently made an officer of the Legion of Honor in the following terms, as related in the Journal Officiel, after having previously won eleven citations in the army orders: "Weiller (Paul Louis), captain of reserves in the 57th regiment of artillery, pilot officer, having a very high conception of duty, and giving, since the beginning of the war, the most magnificent example of bravery and energy. Commander of a group of squadrons of long-range reconnaissance, he obtained, during the offensive of September-November, 1918, in the Champagne and in the Ardennes, the most magnificent results, bringing back to the commanding officer complete information respecting upwards of 100 kilometers of the enemy lines. On October 5, 1918, when he returned from a reconnaissance of more than four hours, executed in atmospheric conditions of the worst kind and at an altitude of 6000 metres, having lost consciousness before landing and having made a drop, in the course of which he received severe wounds, he maintained his command. Four times wounded previously. Four enemy planes shot down. Chevalier of the Legion of Honor for heroic deeds in war."

After the heroes of aviation, it is necessary also to reserve a place for another category of brave men, of marvellous courage, those who led to the assault against the enemy that frightful machine which has been called the tank. In the carapace of this monster the Jews distinguished themselves as they did elsewhere. Extremely laudatory citations recognize the services rendered by Commandant Paul Bloch, of the 8th Battalion of Tanks, Captain Moyse, Lieutenant Baumann, Adjutant Edmond Rosenbaum, and Quartermaster Kopenhagen, and others.

II. JEWS OF NORTHERN AFRICA

(1) THE ALGERIANS.—The Jews of Algeria have endeavored to show in this war that they were worthy of the honor which was done to them on October 24, 1870, in recognizing them as citizens. If, for the Jews of France, the participation in the war was, so to speak, a spontaneous, instinctive thing, these sentiments, among the Jews of Algeria, were supported by reason; with them it was a matter of showing their gratitude to France. Never before had the occasion been offered to them as now, solemn and tragic, to seal with their blood their admission into the French family. Had not, on divers occasions, the legitimacy of their naturalization been questioned? Had they not been, in troubled hours, which are not so far distant, victims of hate? Therefore, they had at heart the wish to show to France that it was not mistaken in welcoming them, and to give the lie to calumny by proof of their unmistakable attachment to the Fatherland.

The most recent statistics, furnished by the governor-general of Algeria, put the Jewish population in this great colony as 65,000 souls. How many Jews were called under the colors? There is no documentary evidence to establish the number. But as they were liable for service under the same conditions as all Frenchmen, and as it is estimated that about sixteen per cent of the population of France was called, it may be assumed that Algerian Jewry has furnished both for the army in the field and for the formations in the rear more than ten thousand soldiers.

There are other significant facts. Many of the Jewish families have large numbers of children, because in Algeria the biblical traditions have been conserved. Following are some of the cases: Mme. Lelouche, of Algiers, had eight sons with the colors; the Tordjman family, of Palikao, had twenty-five members mobilized; M. Borak Touitou had his five sons as soldiers; his family had thirty members under arms; in Algiers, the venerable grandsire, Messaoud Allouche, gave his benediction to his thirty-two children and grandchildren before their departure.

The conduct of the Algerian Jews under fire is shown by the following facts: In the preliminary list which has been compiled, twenty-nine were decorated with the Legion of Honor; ninety-four received the military medal. About eight hundred citations pay tribute to the courage of Algerian Jews. This last figure was made public in March, 1918, by Grand Rabbin Fridmon, in a sermon which he delivered at the great synagogue of Algiers. Since then, additional citations have been received by coreligionists. Thus, in the action for the recapture of Noyon in August, 1918, six Jewish soldiers of a single regiment were cited, and even now the Journal Officiel prints every day citations which have not previously been published. It will, therefore, be some time before a definitive account may be made up.

The first list of those killed in action, which has been drawn up by the Commission Israélite des Recherches Historiques, and which is equally far from being complete, has 2120 names of Jews, killed in the service of France, both Frenchmen and foreigners; 745 of these are the names of Algerians. We find, for example, six Jews of the name of Allouche, eighteen of the name of Amar; fourteen of the name of Amsellem; nine of the name of Azouley; eleven of the name of Bensoussan; eight of the name of Gozlan; twelve of the name of Zerbib.

It is not unusual to find that several children of one family were killed or wounded. The three brothers, Bensaid, of Tlemcen, were killed; the three sons of Rahamin Nahon, of Oran, were killed; of the four sons of Messaoud de Tobelem, of Oran, who were mobilized, two were killed. The four brothers Nouchy were wounded.

The extent of their losses can also be estimated from the fact that since 1917, "l'Oeuvre des Orphelins de la Guerre" (the society for the care of war orphans), one of the most beautiful humanitarian institutions, which grew out of the war, in the French Jewish community, was occupied with the education of 119 bereaved orphans of Algiers alone.

It must not be imagined, however, that the late war was for Algerian Jewry the first occasion of linking itself to the mass of France, or that the emancipation had not borne fruit previously. In the great schools, in the liberal professions, as in the career of arms, the Algerian Jews have shown their mettle. We have already had occasion to note some of them. Among the Jewish regular officers, who fell on the field of honor, we have recited the names of Algerians, Commandant Abraham Bentata and Commandant Joseph Saffar—the first killed in leading his battalion to the assault, the second while assuring himself that his battalion was ready to attack. Another field officer, Commandant Oualid, commanded the engineers of a division of infantry.

Special branches of the service, like aviation, also tempted their courage. Among the best aerial fighters, there have been cited with honor: Captain Allouch, Lieutenant Albert Lelouch, decorated with the Legion of Honor, and Lieutenant Mesguich, who was drowned in the Mediterranean on October 10, 1917, and of whom the following citation speaks with exceptional praise: "Chief of a section of hydroplanes, model of energy and of leadership, despite his age (43 years); very competent in aviation. Twice wounded, four citations in the order of the day. Military medal; chevalier of the Legion of Honor. Exceptional services rendered in the aviation corps, both upon the field and on the sea in search of mines and enemy submarines. Disappeared in the sea, in the course of an aerial reconnaissance, in the performance of his military duty."

The physicians bore themselves with a devotion which won for them laudatory citations; several among them fell in accomplishing their duty; Doctor Carpanetti, killed at a dressing station, was cited three times, and was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor; Doctor Isaac Cohen Adad died from wounds; Doctor Joseph Lévy-Valensi was hit while removing the wounded, and, dying, cried: "Vive la France!" Others, again, were wounded in the performance of their duty;

all distinguished themselves by their high moral qualities in the midst of perilous conditions. Let us mention among the physicians: Maurice Abou, Henri Aboulker (decorated with the Legion of Honor); Samuel Aboulker; Allouche; Bacri (decorated with the Legion of Honor); Benhamon; Dana; Georges Fassina (decorated with the Legion of Honor); Henri Lelouch; Narboni; Pariente; Tubiana.

The intellectual élite rapidly won the chevrons of officers, in the regular army and in the reserve. There were, among others: Dana, captain of artillery; Elghozi, captain of engineers, cited "for having carried his work ahead, under the nose of the enemy"; Captain Léon Lévy, of Oran, killed in Belgium; Benichou, lieutenant of Zouaves, wounded severely while conducting his men to the assault, died six days later; Félix Benoliel, lieutenant of Zouaves, "who took, in the course of an attack, command of the company, all of whose officers had been killed or wounded, continued the action with energy and made a great number of prisoners; he was himself wounded"; Hippolyte Cohen, lieutenant of Zouaves, killed after having bravely led his platoon to the assault of the German line; El Kaim, lieutenant of Zouaves, twice cited, decorated with the Legion of Honor; Jacob Dana, lieutenant of artillery, killed while commanding his battery; the sub-lieutenants Max Adda, Pierre Amar (killed), Jacob Amsellem (killed), Bacri, Bar-katz, Ceddaha, Chalom (decorated with the Legion of Honor), Mardochee Chetrit (killed), Hadjadj, Jais, Karsenty, Zaoui, Georges Zermati, Armand Zermati, and Ziza.

Taken as a whole, the Algerian Jews belong to the middle class, and are engaged in commerce and in the trades. Many of them occupy modest positions. The young men do their three years' military duty in regiments in the interior of France; they are thus distributed among units of the most diverse kinds. The reservists, that is to say, all the men from 24 to 47, were assigned, upon mobilization, to regiments constituted in Algeria. That is why Jews are found by the hundreds in all regiments of the Zouaves, which took such a brilliant part in the operations of the war. When, in the future, the Algerian divisions, which were so often in places of honor and of peril, are spoken of, we must never lose sight of the fact that among them there was a considerable proportion of Jews. Regiments from Oran, or from Constantine, are referred to, of which a third or even a half of the members were Jews. These choice troops were the 37th, 38th, the 45th divisions; the Moroccan division, so called because it was in Morocco at the moment of declaration of war; the third Moroccan brigade and the Algerian regiments on the Near-Eastern front. On the Ourcq, on the Marne, at Ypres, on the Somme, in all the days of great action and of heavy sacrifices, these formations were to be found in the front ranks.

There was a multitude of almost unnamed persons who did their heroic duty simply, of whom many fell, especially at the beginning of the war, whom only their Arba Kanfot permitted to be identified, heroes modest and unknown, whose example was followed by others with the same spirit. Names can be given in multitude; acts of courage can be cited in great number. In the official citations the text is not susceptible of much variety of expression. It is always "the bravery, the contempt of danger." The names are different. Must we choose some of them? There was Corporal Adjadje, of Constantine, cited four times; Joseph Benhamon, of Oran who, wounded six times, continued the charge and was killed; Sergeant-Major Cohen-Solal, cited three times and promoted officer; Sergeant-Major Elyahou Chouraki, a man of indomitable energy, who brought back his captain severely wounded. There was, among others, the non-commissioned officer Zemmour, who, in the course of a battle, distinguished himself by discovering the emplacement of an enemy machine gun which was holding his section in check. With one man, he crawled through the grass up to a few paces from the machine gun. He then jumped upon the Germans, who were serving it, and shot down several of them. The others fled. Zemmour turned the gun against them; later, Zemmour did still better, when, having become temporary officer, it was necessary for him one day to replace his wounded captain. The citation says: "He took command of his company under very difficult circumstances, and acquitted himself perfectly of the task. Spent himself without limit, in order to assure the occupation of the conquered terrain. Maintained on the preceding days a very fine attitude under fire. Distinguished himself again by his intrepidity and calm. Wounded in maintaining his formation on a terrain which was bombarded by a murderous fire, he cried out: 'Is it not a shame to be made to evacuate now?' Young, modest officer of extreme bravery. Two previous wounds."

This simplicity of heroism, this love of France, is to be found among the most humble. There is the Zouave, Juda ben Bourak, who, severely wounded in the chest during an attack, cried out: "My skin is nothing. Vive la France!"—a saying which the general who presented him with a military medal quoted in proposing this Jew as an example to the Arabs. There was the sergeant of Zouaves, Abraham Kalfon, four times wounded, who, in receiving the military medal, said these touching words: "To serve his country, what is there more beautiful for an Algerian, for a little Oranian!"

Can we better describe the moral silhouette of so many of the brave boys than in reproducing in conclusion the terms of a letter, which was written to his family, upon his return from a perilous mission, by Corporal Jacques Nahom? "My lieutenant congratulated me and promised to propose my name for a citation in the order of the day of the army. It is the most beautiful recompense that a French soldier can desire. I am mistaken: there is that of the duty accomplished. Vive la France, and may God accord us victory."

(2) 'THE TUNISIANS.—It is difficult, in making a study of the Jews of Algeria, to separate them altogether in our thoughts from their brothers of Tunis, with whom they have close bonds of origin, of ancestry, of mentality. Nevertheless, their legal situation has nothing in common. Just as the political régime of Algeria, incorporated as a part of France, differs entirely from that of Tunis, which is only a French protectorate, so the status of the Algerian, a French citizen, differs from that of the Tunisian, who is a subject of the Bey.

In establishing her protectorate over Tunis, in 1881, France left to the Bey the greater part of his prerogatives. In the total population of 1,800,000 souls, there are scarcely 130,000 Europeans. These are protected by their states of origin. As for the rest, besides the Jews, who are represented by about 62,000 souls, the native element is exclusively Mohammedan.

From the special point of view of our present interests, the facts of the war, the situation of the Jews is as follows: The army of Tunis is recruited along sectarian lines, the decrees of the Beys who organized it—the latest refers to the year 1892—do not require military service of those who are not native Mohammedans.<sup>12</sup> No Jew, therefore, could form part of the contingents recruited in Tunis, which comprised in the mobilization ten classes of about 4000 men each. (Muslims of the so-called holy cities, such as Tunis, are exempted from military service.) Up to 1897, there were in Tunis quite a large number of Jews of Algerian origin, who, enjoying French protection, had the same rights as Frenchmen, among them that of serving in the French regiments. Since that date, this protection has been withdrawn from them, and the former French protégés have struggled in vain in order to obtain the recognition of their original nationality. In the course of this war, there was the case of a young Jew, Henri Bonan, who, wishing at all costs to be a French soldier, presented himself to the military authorities. The French resident-general had declared that Bonan's father was a French citizen; the young man had the resident-general subpoenaed before the tribunal and won his case. He was recognized as a French citizen. He volunteered, and was received as a student officer at the artillery school of Fontainebleau; at the age of 20, having been decorated with the Croix de Guerre, he was killed facing the enemy.<sup>13</sup>

A law passed by the French parliament in 1910 had in view the naturalization of all Tunisians having rendered important services in the economic development of the regency. But in the four years which have preceded the war, a total of only 26 Jews had obtained their naturalization.

The situation of the Tunisian Jews is therefore altogether special and abnormal; they may not form a regular part of the army of the Republic, because they are subjects of the Bey; they are not admitted into the Muslim corps of occupation of Tunis, because they are infidels. What possibility remained to them to serve France? There was left to them only the right of volunteering in the corps of the Foreign Legion, which is open to all foreigners. Although this corps constituted a special unit, which made itself illustrious on all battlefields, the Tunisian Jews, who in such large numbers are attached to France and have French sentiments, did not wish to have themselves voluntarily considered foreigners, to whom this possibility alone remained to do their duty. Despite everything, there were about 400 volunteers among these Tunisian Jews; about sixty of them fell on the field of honor. There would have been many more, if justice had been done to the claim which they had been making for many years, and if they had been admitted, like their Algerian coreligionists, into the French family.

One is bound to affirm this all the more strongly upon consideration of the attitude under fire of those of them who were in the service; one must admit that they yielded nothing to their comrades in the fight. Let us cite among them Lieutenant Alexander Morali, killed on the plateau of Craonne, while mounting joyously to the assault; the adjutant-aviator Samama, whose machine exploded over Ste. Menehould, causing the death of its pilot who had distinguished himself on every occasion; Doctor Herbert Valensi (nephew of General Valensi, chief of the Protocol of the Bey, deceased in 1918), who, wounded during a bombardment, continued to nurse the injured before having himself attended to; then the volunteers, Victor Zeitoun, three times wounded; George Samama, who took service at the age of 16; Germain Fain, promoted sub-lieutenant for his wonderful conduct; Joseph Seely, who fell in a charge, crying: "Vive la France!" Sergeant Henri-Isaac Bismuth, decorated with the military medal, with the medal of Morocco, with the colonial medal, cited three times in the order of the day, wounded several times, who wished to return home with the chevrons of an officer and the cross of the Legion of Honor, "if he was not killed," and who did die in France, in the assault of the fort of Douaumont, on October 24, 1916, "after having," states the last citation, "led his platoon to the assault in a superb fashion and at the moment when he was trying to become master of an important part of a fortified place."

III. FOREIGN JEWS

In the ranks of the regiments of the Foreign Legion there were also several thousand Jews, "non-Frenchmen" living in France. In their capacity of unnaturalized immigrants, no obligations of any kind to undertake military service lay upon them. It is, therefore, as volunteers that they came to enroll themselves. What motives led them to do this? It suffices, in order to explain these, to read the proclamation which on August 3, 1914, the Federation of Jewish Societies, which had just been created, and which was composed exclusively of foreign Jews, caused to be affixed to the bill-boards of Paris in French and in Yiddish. It was in these terms: "France, the country of liberty, equality, and fraternity; France which has liberated humanity; France which, the first of all nations, recognized us, Jews, and gave us the rights of man and of citizen; France, where we have found, we and our families, for many years, a refuge and a shelter, is in danger! We, Jews, immigrants, what are we to do? While the whole of the French people rises as one man to the defence of the Fatherland, shall we stand by with our arms folded? No, if we are not yet Frenchmen in law, we are so in heart and in soul, and our most sacred duty is to put ourselves at once at the disposal of that great and noble nation in order to participate in her defence. Brothers! This is the moment to pay our tribute of gratitude to the country in which we have found moral enfranchisement and material well-being. Immigrant Jews, do your duty, and vive la France!"

For the French Jew, the love of France is not a matter of reason. It is a part of his moral patrimony, it is his strict duty, absolute, as it is for all Frenchmen, and is impelled by instinct alone. But the Jewish alien, who comes to the standard of France, to him it is an act of reflection; his conscience is ruled by powerful reasons of a spiritual and ideal order. If he has contracted an engagement, it is in order to pay the obligation which he owes to France, "second country of every man who belongs to an oppressed people."<sup>14</sup> It was also because France represented those ideas of Liberty, because her victory would be that of the old Jewish aspiration for justice, for a reign of righteousness.

That was the feeling of the processions of Jews who marched through Paris behind the tri-color flag, during the first days of August. That was the profound feeling of those whose enlistments were registered by the thousands at the Université populaire juive, of those lines of Jews who came to present themselves to the military authorities. Not all of them were accepted; the ghetto, where they were vegetating but yesterday, is not a school of physical vigor, and the medical commission was compelled to reject a goodly number of these people who deliberately came to offer the sacrifice of their lives to a country which was not yet their own. How many among them were accepted? The most conservative estimate places the number at 4000—for a population of 30,000 souls, it will be agreed that even this number demands respect. There were among them men of every age and of every condition—physicians and students, business men who had already acquired a good position, small tradesmen of modest incomes, fathers of families, and bachelors. In the course of a lecture delivered on the Oeuvre des Orphelins Israélites de la Guerre, by M. Armand Feldmann, Counsellor at the Court of Appeals at Paris,<sup>15</sup> we find the following remarks which characterize the situation of the volunteers: "Several names deserve to be recalled, if only by way of example: Léon Kandel had three children; he had a shoe-store which was extensively patronized; Samson Kaufmann was forty years of age, and had four children; he had been working for ten years in one house, in which he was earning a daily salary of ten francs; Max Halperin was forty-five years of age, and had five children; he was making an easy livelihood as a tailor, and was well able to maintain and bring up his little family; Israel Lopato was thirty-five years old; he had just opened a furniture establishment, in which he had invested all his savings; Janckel Wolf Mendelson was forty years of age, and had three children; Henri Najlis, who was earning ten francs a day, had four children; Isaac Sosnovitz was only thirty-eight years old, but he left behind him a wife and six children. There were many others. All of them were killed."

Russian Jews, Roumanian Jews, Oriental Jews, they all occupy the same page of glory in French annals. They were engaged in the severest combats because the regiments of the Legion participated in all the most bloody actions. Hundreds of them fell, notably at the Marne, then later before Carençy in May, 1915, and in the Champagne offensive of September, 1915. A single regiment, which participated in this last action, had, according to the testimony of the Jewish chaplain of the division, seven hundred Jewish immigrants. The losses which the Legion had sustained in the course of these operations were such that it was necessary at that moment to reduce it from four regiments to only one. It was then that a large number of the surviving Jews had the opportunity to be sent into purely French regiments. On various occasions, they had not found in the Legion the welcome which they expected, and to which they had a right. The manner in which this corps was recruited, composed as it was of aliens of every nationality, the necessity of maintaining in it a very rigorous discipline by reason of its heterogenous composition, the fact that it had particularly strict officers and subalterns, who did not always understand the mentality of these strangers, gave rise to many untoward incidents; many of our coreligionists became embittered, not understanding why their whole-hearted devotion to France should be repaid with ingratitude, why the disinterestedness of their beautiful act was suspected, why sometimes they were insulted, even in that which they held most dear, their Judaism. Some complaints were formulated, which the French League for the Rights of Man submitted to the public authorities.

The partial dissolution of the Legion which was effected in September, 1915, remedied this sad situation. The aliens from allied countries, including Russia, were authorized to pass into French regiments, or to return to their native countries. Those of neutral countries—Roumania was at that time among these—were to remain in the Legion. In 1916, when Roumania entered the alliance of the Powers, they were permitted to take their places in the French army, or to return to their country. The aliens from enemy countries—Ottoman subjects, for example—had the choice of going to Morocco, or of remaining in the Legion. In 1917, when the Russian Revolution broke out, the Russian Jews had the choice of returning to their country in order to volunteer in the national army. Many of them did this.

What was the attitude of these foreigners, despite the moral and other sufferings to which they were subjected?

There were, first, the Russian Jews, the most numerous. Physicians, students of medicine in the midst of their studies in the various French universities—they all wished to enroll themselves from the first day. To give the complete list is impossible. Here are some of the names: André Feit, Jacques Goldenberg, Wladimir Rosenstein, Bronislas Winaver, Venceslas Bronislawsky, Jacob Kaminer, Leon Cheuvisse, David Goldzeigner, Isser Seilienger. There were the two brothers Kopelman, of Lodz, both of whom were killed, another brother having fallen on the field in Russia; there was Doctor Chatt, “the little Russian,” as he was affectionately called by the poilus of the regiment,<sup>18</sup> who appreciated the treasure of a devotion which manifested itself even under the most violent bombardment, and who was twice cited in the order of the day, for having given proof, in the care which he lavished upon the wounded, of “the most absolute contempt of danger,” having been wounded in the exercise of his duty and having refused to be removed. There was Doctor

Mendel Cemach, of Radom, who, braving a rain of steel and fire, in order to take care of the wounded, was cited several times, and was killed at his post. Others were killed under the same conditions: Pines, Bortmann, and others, always in giving proof of the same bravery. Let us cite also Doctor Aisik Liber, who was wounded nine times, had a foot amputated, was decorated with the military medal, and who, states a citation, "assured the removal of the wounded without any attention to his own suffering."

The intellectual Russian was symbolized by the beautiful figure of Amédée Rothstein. Pupil of the School of Roads and Bridges, he enrolled on the first day, was incorporated in one of the regiments of the Foreign Legion where his deeds of arms won him the commission of an officer. He was transferred upon the dissolution of the Legion into a regiment of engineers. During the Champagne offensive in September, 1915, he was put at the head of a platoon of infantry of attack; he charged, sabre in the air, at the head of his men, "with a remarkable impetuosity and coolness which won the admiration of both officers and men." Lieutenant Rothstein was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor. Later, before Verdun, in August, 1916, he led his men brilliantly to the assault of a redoubt, strongly held by the enemy, which he succeeded in passing twice. Struck with a bullet in the head in the midst of the action, he died gloriously on August 18.

Then, there is the multitude of modest and obscure heroes, with sublime souls, from among whom it is difficult to make a choice, and many of whom are now reposing in the military cemeteries of France, in the shadow of the Mogen David. There was Sergeant Georges Silberstein, of Lodz, who escaped from captivity in Germany, re-enlisted in the aviation corps, and was killed in the service; Leon Zadickson "who always volunteered for perilous missions, model of courage, who, on August 20, 1917, was among the first to jump into a German trench under the violent fire of machine guns"; Henri Lemal, who, "under a violent bombardment, rescued the chief of his platoon and several men who had been buried under a crumbling dug-out"; Jacques Naymann, who, "seeing three comrades succumb in carrying help to an officer, carried him upon his back, and succeeded in bringing back a wounded man"; Alexander Glantzmann, who, "after having nursed his captain, who was severely wounded, carried him for five hundred metres behind the firing line, traversing a zone which was being intensely bombarded by machine guns, and then rejoined his company"; Sergeant Isaac Stollar, of whom the following lines which his colonel addressed to him when he was wounded, are a most eloquent eulogy: "I was much saddened when I saw you being nursed as a wounded man—return to us soon, for we have always need of men of heart like you."

Men of heart—all were that, and the text of citations celebrates their merits. There is, for example, Joseph Krouchansky, cited three times, and of whom the last citation, in April, 1918, exalts "the remarkable courage, the superb reputation which he acquired by his marvellous deportment under all conditions." In 1917, he had received the military medal on the battlefield.

Then, there is Sergeant Klionsky, with long white hair, who, at Carency, in 1915, was the first, as always, to go forward well in advance of his section, pressing his rifle between his nervous fingers. Two bombs explode; he raises himself, his throat gashed, his mouth bleeding, takes several steps, but his strength fails. Then, with his eyes turned towards the enemy, his right hand still caressing his rifle, he cries to his comrades: "I am accounted for. Do not bother with my skin. Forward, Legion! Vive la France et la République!"<sup>17</sup>

Popular with everybody was the Russian Jew, Litwak, also killed at Carency, who, a short time before the fatal hour which he felt was at hand, wrote to his friends: "I feel instinctively that I will remain upon the battlefield. I will not see my wife and my baby any more. I will tell you all that fills the soul when one knows that one is seeing his last hours with the accompaniment of the cannonade in the midst of the activities of war. The more anxious the heart is, the stronger is the will to act, so that the whole world might see that the Jews know how to die for liberty, for their ideal. Here we are before Arras; in a few hours we will go to the combat with the order that we have received: 'Die, but do not retreat.' I know that we will fight well, that we will die with our chests bared, and that we will show the whole world that the Jews know how to die with pride. Death has no terror for us, when we know that our deaths will not pass without being perceived, that good will result from it for our persecuted Jewish race. And we will demonstrate to France that the Jews know how to die for a country which makes no difference between its children. I am happy to die for noble, republican France, which is worthy of every sacrifice, because she will not forsake my wife, my child. My dear child, thy father is going to his death for a great ideal. He hopes and he wishes that the same fire will burn ever in thy heart. You will kiss my child, you will console my wife, and will say to them that, in dying, my last thought was of them. But enough of sentimentalism! In an hour we will march, and we will die for France, for the Jews, for the emancipation of all the Jews. Long live liberty! Long live the Republic! Long live free, noble, and democratic France!"<sup>18</sup>

Litwak fell in battle; with him many Russian Jews were killed, or were severely wounded. They paid their debt to France and to their Jewish ideals.

The Roumanian Jews were in no way inferior to their Russian brethren; they also were numerous in the ranks of the army. They fought and fell with the same valor. Their state of mind was expressed in a touching fashion by one of them, Rosenzweit, who, before falling upon the field, wrote to his aged parents in some "Jewish street" in Bucharest: "Having found it impossible to remain indifferent when democratic and hospitable France was attacked, I volunteered in the army. If I have done wrong forgive me, and if I die, vive la France!" Their attitude under fire cannot be described better than by reproducing one of the citations of Kraemer, an agronomist in the service of the Alliance Israélite, who was promoted officer for his brilliant services: "On the fifth of May, 1917, under the most murderous fire of machine guns, he led his section brilliantly to assault enemy positions. He held his troops together under violent fire of heavy artillery and Minewerfer. In the course of the night he participated in an energetic counter-attack with hand grenades, maintained in person the barrier which he had just captured, upon which three German attacks broke. Excellent officer of perfect bravery and self-sacrifice."

A number of Ottoman Jews, although their country was one of the enemy Powers, wished, because they owed much to France, to place themselves under her banner of liberty and of justice. Let us cite Doctor Elie Haim, of Smyrna, who, established as a physician in New York, came on the first day to claim his place among his confrères of the medical corps of the French army. Let us also cite the soldier, Alalouf, of the first foreign regiment, who "requested, as an honor, to occupy during the fight the place which he knew to be the most dangerous and who fell gloriously in that place under the blows of the enemy, while giving to all a fine example of courage and of devotion."

Let us recall especially Albert Sonsol, another native of Smyrna, teacher at the School of the Alliance Israélite at Tetuan (Morocco), who symbolizes the most noble aspirations of the Oriental Jewish soul. From the beginning he had wished to fight under the folds of the French flag. But as he was a subject of an enemy Power, his repeated prayers met with numerous difficulties. As a result of his persistence, however, and thanks to the support of the French consul at Tetuan, who knew how to appreciate the moral worth of the young teacher and his enthusiasm for France, he succeeded in being accepted as a volunteer in a colonial regiment. He then wrote to the president of the Alliance Israélite these letters of grandiose simplicity:<sup>19</sup> "July 13, 1915.—I have the pleasure of announcing to you my departure for the 34th Colonial, which is now actually fighting in the Bois-le-Prêtre. It is with a lively joy that I have received the news of this departure which realizes my most ardent wishes. I will at last take an active part in this war for liberty and for justice, the motto of that other little country, the Alliance."—"July 30. We are now in the trenches. It is useless to tell you that I am experiencing deep joy. I expect to do my duty and to be a worthy child of France and of the Alliance. I expect that the baptism of blood will be one of the most brilliant in the danger, which it will present.”—“August 3. We have all done our duty. We are all doing our duty, nothing but our duty, in fighting against the invader of the soil which I have adopted as my country. I have hastened to pay with my blood for this honor and this glory. We are returned from the trenches. My baptism of fire has been the more interesting because of the furious bombardment to which our positions were subjected. Despite the novelty of the situation, I maintained a calmness upon which I was congratulated by my comrades and my officers. I had always had confidence in my sang-froid, but I was myself astonished at the little emotion produced by this first contact with the realities of war. It seemed to me that I was more moved on the day of my teacher’s examination. The enthusiasm which animates me will not abandon me.”

Alas! A chance enemy shell put an end to this beautiful enthusiasm which seemed indestructible. The voice of Sonsol was silenced; but now the French consul at Tetuan, M. Lucciardi, takes up his pen in order to inform the president of the Alliance Israélite of the death of this valiant teacher. He does it in these terms of praise: “I have the sad duty of announcing to you the heroic death of Corporal Albert Sonsol, of the 34th Regiment of colonial infantry, who fell gloriously on the field of honor on October 2, 1915, in the region of Tahure. The valiant and lamented professor fought as a volunteer, and his letters breathed the most pure patriotism, the most beautiful enthusiasm, and the most tender devotion for the country of his adoption. He had written to me upon his return from the trenches of the first line: 'I hope to live a glorious life and to die a glorious death. I wish to deserve the country of my adoption, to serve unto death, and the enthusiasm which animated me when I was at your side is still burning and will never be extinguished. I have not accepted the appointment as Turkish interpreter at the Dardanelles. My place is at the front, in the trenches, and not aboard a ship, sheltered from the shot and shell of the boches. Thanks, my dear consul, for having opened to me the doors of our sublime army, of our beloved France! It is to you that I owe the greatest happiness of my life, and it is with joy that I will suffer and will die for my ideal—the love of France.'” And the consul added: “Death, which shot down this beautiful soul, deprived the country of one of her good servants, of one of her best children.”

There, in these few lines, is briefly told how the foreign Jew served France!

IV. RELIGION AND THE WAR

Although the French state, purely secular since the separation of the Church from the State in December, 1905, does not recognize nor support any religion, it was necessary in times of peace to foresee that in the case of war it would be essential to give satisfaction to the religious needs of the soldier. Various laws, of which the latest are dated April 26, 1910, and May 5, 1913, regulate the situation of the military chaplains of the army. These are nominated by the Minister of War. They are attached to the sanitary service and are connected with groups of litter-bearers; they are on a par with captains in pay, pension, and insignia. In principle, each army corps receives a Jewish chaplain. At the beginning of the war twenty Jewish chaplains took the places assigned to them. But experience showed that, while in certain corps—those of Brittany, for example, which had few Jewish elements—the presence of a Jewish chaplain was not indispensable, it was necessary, on the other hand, to increase the number of chaplains in the formations where, as in the Algerian division, the Jewish soldiers were very numerous. In one of these divisions then received a Jewish chaplain. For the same reason it was necessary to assign several chaplains to the army of the Orient.

When the service was completely organized in conformity with the religious needs of the Jews, there were twenty-one chaplains of army corps, eight of division, and five at fortified places. Their functions were exercised—counting those who became sick and who died—by thirty-seven rabbis or acting rabbis, of whom five were on the Oriental front. Besides these ministers mobilized as chaplains, two rabbis served in the ranks, one as a common soldier in a regiment of infantry; the other as a stretcher-bearer. These two soldier rabbis died, the one, Rabbi Boris, of Lunéville, killed at the beginning of the campaign; the other, Rabbi Vexler, teacher of theology at the Rabbinical Seminary of France, died of disease contracted in the trenches.

Four of the rabbis who were chaplains also died; one was Rabbi Schwartz, assistant to the grand rabbin of Belgium, who, while in the service, contracted a disease which carried him off before his time. Three others were struck down on the field of honor in the exercise of their duties: Grand Rabbin Abraham Bloch, of Lyons, chaplain to the 14th Army Corps, struck by a shell while carrying a crucifix to a wounded Christian, who, on the point of dying, asked him for it. Rabbi Ruff, chaplain at Verdun, mortally struck by a bomb during a bombardment of the hospital at Vadelaincourt, near Verdun, by a German aeroplane. Rabbi Witsen, of St. Etienne, chaplain to the 21st Army Corps, who was killed by an aeroplane bomb which struck him upon the head, in a village in Champagne.

The French rabbinate has, as we see, paid a heavy tribute to death: six of its members have passed away.<sup>20</sup> Two among them, who perished under particularly tragic conditions, MM. Bloch and Ruff, were exempt from all military obligations on account of age; they had wished at all costs to be at the place of honor, that is to say, of danger. The death of Rabbi Ruff was tragic. He had both legs shot away during a bombardment at night; his last thought was for his wife and his children. "Tell them," were his final words, "that I love them very much." The death of Rabbi Bloch, which is a most beautiful example of human solidarity, is recounted in the following words by a priest, Father Jamin, who was present during his last moments: "On Saturday, August 29, 1914, in a village in the Vosges, the Germans destroyed by shell fire a farm-house in which 150 wounded men had been sheltered. A fire broke out, and the stretcher-bearers had to take the men out under a rain of shells. It was in the course of this evacuation that a soldier, seriously wounded, taking the rabbi for a Catholic priest, asked him for a crucifix which he wished to kiss. Simply, without hesitation, careless of danger, the rabbi began to seek the crucifix which was asked of him, succeeded in finding one, and carried to the anxious soldier the symbol of his faith. It was after having accomplished this act of charity that the rabbi left the farm-house, accompanying another wounded man up to the nearest ambulance. The shell which killed him exploded several paces in front of the ambulance into which the wounded man had just been placed."

In reporting the recital of Father Jamin, M. Barrès expresses himself in these words: "No commentary would add anything to the emotion of sympathy which such an act inspires in us, an act so full of human tenderness. Here, human brotherhood finds its perfect expression; the old rabbi presenting to the soldier, who is dying, the sign of Christ on the Cross—it is an image which shall never perish."<sup>21</sup>

"Was it not sublime?" writes M. Barthou, formerly Prime Minister. "And what Catholic will deny to this rabbi the pious homage of a grateful admiration?"<sup>22</sup>

The benevolent activities displayed by the members of the rabbinate and the services which they rendered have been recognized by a number of important distinctions. Two were decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor: Rabbi Albert Hertz, of Paris, chaplain to the 4th Army Corps; Rabbi Pruner, of Avignon, chaplain to the Expeditionary Corps to the Near East. Nineteen were cited: Rabbi Back, of Paris; Grand Rabbin Bloch, of Lyon; Cohen, of Bayonne; Eisenbeth, of Constantine; Ginsburger, of Geneva; Haguenaue, of Besançon; Rabbi Hertz, of Paris; Acting Rabbi Hirschler, of Marseilles; Rabbi Henri Lévy, of Mascara; Nathan Lévy, of Rouen; Maurice Liber, of Paris (twice cited); Poliakoff

<sup>22</sup> The grand rabbi of Belgium, Armand Bloch, the brother of Grand Rabbin Abraham Bloch, had the honor of being condemned by the Germans to six months imprisonment for having in his Passover sermon, in 1916, pronounced these words: "Those people who do not demand their liberty, and who resign themselves to slavery, are dastards."

(thrice cited, once as non-commissioned officer before his nomination as chaplain); Pruner, of Avignon; Ruff, of Verdun; J. Sachs, of Chalons; Schuhl, teacher at Paris; Sommer, of Tours; Mathieu Wolff, of Belfort; Zeitlin, teacher of Hebrew at Paris.

Where and how did our chaplains exercise their ministerial functions? First, by assisting the wounded. This they did everywhere, at the first-aid posts of the battalions, in the ambulances at the front, where the first evacuation took place—wherever they knew there were Jews who were suffering. They saw to it also that the dead Jews were identified, that the last religious honors were rendered to them, and that a Jewish emblem appeared upon their graves. An order from the Great General Headquarters authorized them on December 10, 1915, to substitute for the cross, which, in error, had been placed upon the graves of Jewish soldiers, a symbol in the form of the tablets of the Ten Commandments.

The chaplains also exerted themselves, and quite naturally, to endeavor to intensify the religious sentiments in the hearts of the Jewish soldiers. The organization of regular religious services was frequently a difficult task.<sup>23</sup> But whenever it was possible to hold regular services, our chaplains hastened to assemble their faithful followers. Here is a minyan, hastily collected, right near the trench, to which our rabbi, who, when a civilian, had never practised riding, has come on horseback or by whatever means offered. There, the chief officer of a corps is telling the Jewish soldiers that their chaplain will hold services in such and such a barn, or village school, under a ruined roof, between walls which are menaced by imminent ruin, or in some subterranean shelter, which is not entirely proof against a death-dealing shell. They assemble just the same, with cheerful hearts and with joy, whenever there is an opportunity to chant the Megillah or to celebrate the Seder. When circumstances are more favorable and our Jewish poilus are at rest in the proximity of a city, where there is a synagogue—or even the last remains of a synagogue—then their pleasure is at its height!

<sup>23</sup> A soldier's prayer-book, prepared by Rabbi Maurice Liber, military chaplain, was distributed to Jewish soldiers. It had three successive editions. In the Hebrew portion, it contained the principal prayers for the days of the week, for the Sabbath, and for the Festivals, also a certain number of prayers for special occasions. The French portion was composed of translations and of imitations of the Hebrew prayers.

The martyred synagogues of the French front—how many pious reunions were held in them to the great edification of our soldiers! All of them have been more or less affected—in the part of Alsace, reconquered during the very first days, as well as in the parts of France which constituted the advance lines of the defence. Destroyed in Alsace were the synagogues of Thann, of Seppois le-Bas; the temple at Etain, a city occupied for four years by Germans and possessing an old Jewish community, was burned; those of Verdun (which had been burnt in 1870), of Pont-à-Mousson, of Rheims, of Chalon were seriously damaged. From that of Blâmont the Germans stole all the copper utensils; those of Belfort and Rouen were subjected to aerial bombardment. That of Lunéville, fortunately, remained intact; only the communal house, with the archives, was burned.

Thus, it appears that it was necessary that the Houses of God and of Israel should also pay their tribute to this atrocious war.

V. CONCLUSION

These pages of glory and of mourning do not describe the entire picture which we have endeavored to sketch of the participation of the Jews of France in the most bloody of wars. The war was not only that of the trenches. The valiant nurse, who, in the ambulances and at the front, in sight of constant danger, devotes her life to the wounded, is in her own way also a soldier. Did she not show military heroism, this Mlle. Blanche Lévy, that the Croix de Guerre came to recompense her because near the firing line, at Commercy, for 35 months, she watched the wounded during the most violent bombardments? A little further from the line, but exposed to aerial bombardment, there was Mlle. Sophie Friedmon, chief nurse of the hospital of Berck, whose devotion won her the Medaille de la Reconnaissance Française. There were also others, very numerous, at the front and in the interior—lay sisters of charity of the most admirable devotion.

It is also necessary to reserve a place for those civilian Jews of the north and of the east, of the France occupied by the enemy, or within range of his cannon, who gave the most beautiful examples of patriotism. At Lunéville, temporarily occupied, there was the brave old man, Kahn, who, upon the arrival of the Germans, ran toward them, displaying the French flag, and, struck by their bullets, he fell crying: "Vive la France!" At Lourches, in the north, there was the mayor, Dreyfus, a great manufacturer, condemned to three years hard labor by the German Council of War, and interned in the prison of Siegburg, for having helped young men to flee from the commune; the French Government decorated him with the Legion of Honor, after the victory, because he sent food to the population of Valenciennes at the peril of his life. There were other brave men cited in the "order of the nation." M. Marcel Bernard, sub-prefect of the arrondissement of Bontoise, who, in September, 1914, "under particularly critical circumstances, when the enemy was menacing the arrondissement, reassured the population, arrested the exodus of the inhabitants from the region, and gave to all powerful comfort." M. Lévy, of Epernay, who, during the bombardment, removed the wounded from the hospital. M. Francfort, deputy-mayor of Amiens, who, "during the German occupation was entrusted with relations with the enemy authorities, fulfilled his mission with courage and dignity, and gave a fine example of poise and of civic devotion"; M. Jacob Blum, municipal councilor at Pont-à-Mousson (a city which was for a moment in German hands and which remained later always near the lines), who is the object of the following beautiful citation, in "the order of the country": "He rendered to the city most signal services during the most tragic hours. During the seventeen days of bombardment and the period of the German occupation, he aided, despite extreme difficulty, in feeding the population, composed in great part of women and children. He did not cease to give proof, on every occasion, of courage and initiative."

It is necessary to refer finally to the various institutions of solidarity and of humanity, due to the initiative and to the generosity of the Jews: L'Oeuvre des Orphelins Israélites de la Guerre, which we have already had occasion to mention, and which has been honored with a prize by the French Academy; the Aide Fraternelle, which gave material and moral help to Jewish alien volunteers, whose families were without resources or who lived in countries with which all correspondence was impossible; the hospitals supported by generous Jews, and which are devoted to the wounded of France (among which Rothschild Hospital occupies the first rank). Besides this, other establishments were instituted by the Rothschild family for the care of the wounded and the sick. Let us mention finally the beautiful establishment of M. Jacques Seligman, who put at the disposal of blind soldiers of the allied army his Chateau de Madrid, with its 160 rooms, and devoted to its upkeep an annual stipend of 75,000 francs, attaching to his liberality only one condition, that American blind soldiers should be cared for here in the same way as their comrades.

Everywhere the Jews of France have given the most beautiful example of that "sacred union," which has become the sublime slogan of this war. Doing so, they have the feeling of having accomplished only their duty—their duty as Frenchmen for those who for a long time formed an integral part of the French country; their duty of gratitude toward France for those who, but strangers yesterday, acquired their naturalization papers at the price of their blood; their duty as Jews for those and the others, since in serving France, they were serving the cause of justice, they were serving the cause of the "ideal," of which, to use the strong words of the great citizen, Clemenceau, on the day following victory, "France is a soldier—always."

THE STORY OF BRITISH JEWRY IN THE WAR

BY THE REV. MICHAEL ADLER, D. S. O., S. C. F., B. A.

Thou hast given us home and freedom, Mother England,
Thou hast let us live again,
Free and fearless, 'midst thy free and fearless children,
Sharing with them, as one people, grief and gladness,
Joy and pain.

For the Jew has heart and hand, our Mother England,
And they both are thine to-day—
Thine for life and thine for death—yea, thine forever!
Wilt thou take them as we give them, freely, gladly?
England, say!

VOLUNTARY ENLISTMENT

The sentiment conveyed in these stirring lines by Mrs. Lucas represents to the full the spirit in which the Jews of the British empire came forward to play their part in the struggle that commenced in August, 1914. The number of men of our faith then attached to the regular branches of his Majesty's forces was comparatively small, about fifty being known to be in the Royal Navy, four hundred officers and men in the Regular Army, and about six hundred in the Special Reserve and Territorial Forces. In response to the appeal for volunteers, Jews came from all classes and from all parts of the world to uphold England's cause, and the lists published from time to time in the Jewish Chronicle, with the names of officers and men who were on Active Service before conscription came into force, gave a total of about 10,000, of whom 1,140 were officers. In the British Dominions (Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa), in the British West Indies, and other colonies, the proportion of Jews who enlisted was very high. In Australia, for example, out of a total Jewish population of 19,000, there were 1,800 enlistments and 250 deaths in action. Of the families of English birth, the proportion of voluntary enlistment was something approaching 90 per cent of the available young men, whilst British-born sons of alien immigrants from countries like Russia and Poland contributed a large number to the ranks. Thus, from the well-known Jews' Free School in the East End of London, some 1,200 old boys joined up, and the Jewish Houses at the public schools of Clifton and Cheltenham can point to the proud record of practically every one of their present and past pupils of military age having taken a commission. It is further striking evidence of the enthusiasm of the English Jews in joining the forces at the outbreak of the war that the Jewish Lads' Brigade, which both in London and the provinces trained Jewish boys in military exercises without being regarded as a part of the army, contributed eighty officers out of a total of ninety young men who were serving as officers of the Brigade at the time.

CHAPLAINS

As soon as it was known that so many men joined up, active steps were taken to safeguard their religious welfare. An abridged prayer-book was prepared by the Rev. Michael Adler, the senior Jewish chaplain, for the use of sailors and soldiers. This book was afterwards enlarged under the editorship of the chief rabbi, and widely circulated, 101,000 copies in all being printed, of which about 11,000 were despatched to the troops of the United States, in France. Subsequently, an additional chaplain, the Rev. S. Lipson, was appointed, and a number of ministers throughout the United Kingdom were designated by the War Office to take charge of the spiritual interests of the men in the various camps scattered throughout the country. Services were regularly held, and hospital visitation carefully organized. In January, 1915, the first Jewish chaplain to proceed on active service with the British Army went to the front in the person of the Rev. Michael Adler, to organize religious work among the scattered Jewish troops in the field. As a distinctive sign he wore on his uniform the Shield of David, which badge was officially accepted by the War Office in place of a cross, both on uniforms and as a memorial over the graves of Jewish dead. During the course of the war, sixteen other chaplains were appointed, and they served in various areas, whilst two chaplains accompanied the Australian forces in Gallipoli and France. The Very Reverend the Chief Rabbi (Dr. J. H. Hertz) visited the bases and front areas of France and Belgium in 1915 as the guest of Field Marshal Lord French.

JEWISH WAR SERVICES COMMITTEE

Until the middle of 1916, the Visitation Committee of the United Synagogue of London was officially recognized by the War Office as the authority in matters relating to Jews serving in the forces; but, owing to the remarkable growth of the work in all directions, a special body representative of all sections of the community was formed and called the Jewish War Services Committee, the chairman of which was Mr. Edmund Sebag-Montefiore, C. B. E., and the vice-chairman was Major Lionel de Rothschild, M. P., O. B. E. Major W. Schonfield was appointed officer in charge of administration, and a large amount of valuable work was performed in the interests of the Jews in the services. Towards the close of the war, the Central Council for the Welfare of Jewish Members of the Forces was established under the chairmanship of Mr. R. Waley Cohen, and a Jewish branch of the Y. M. C. A. opened in West London. In the general work of the Y. M. C. A., both at home and abroad, English Jewish communities took an active part, considerable sums being raised both in Australia and in the United Kingdom, and several huts being contributed. Lieutenant Harold Boas, of Australia, was officially attached to the Y. M. C. A. work in England and in France, with especial regard to the needs of the Jewish soldier.

HOSPITALS

Mention should also be made of the special work carried on in connection with the care of the sick and wounded. In addition to a number of physicians and nurses serving, a hospital called Beech House Military Hospital was organized in North-West London, and was entirely staffed by Jewish ladies and gentlemen under the direction of Dr. M. A. Dutch, Mrs. Marsden (Royal Red Cross Decoration), and Mrs. F. Davidson, M. B. E. Lady Samuel, the wife of Sir Marcus Samuel, Bart., placed her country residence, "The Mote," Maidstone, Kent, at the disposal of the authorities as a military hospital, and a Convalescent Home, established near Brighton by Mr. John Howard, was also utilized for a similar purpose. Towards the end of the war, Mrs. Bischoffsheim opened "Tudor House," Hampstead, London, as a military hospital for Jewish soldiers, with fifty beds—an institution which performed most valuable service.

RECORDS

In the early battles of the war Jews who were in the Royal Navy and the Regular Army took part, and on one of the first ships sunk in the North Sea, H. M. S. Pathfinder, Stoker William Stern, who had been a sailor for some time, was drowned. Lieutenant R. L. Q. Henriques, of the 1st (Queen's) Royal West Surrey Regiment, was the first Jewish officer to lay down his life at the battle of the Valley of the Aisne, in September, 1914, and to commence that long and sad casualty list which is now on record as evidence of the manner in which the Jews of England and the empire played their part.

The record of the number of Jews who were on active service throughout the whole war will never be accurately known, owing to the difficulty of compiling complete lists. The military authorities rendered, from time to time, both abroad and in the United Kingdom, nominal rolls of Jews who were serving, and, in addition, the chaplains and officiating clergymen, in the course of their ministrations, discovered many other men; but the experience of all associated with the work showed that only two-thirds, if as large a proportion, of the actual number of men on service ever became known. All figures, therefore, relative to the number of men in the army, number of casualties, number of honors and distinctions gained, must be qualified by this knowledge.

The total Jewish population of the United Kingdom is computed at 275,000. To these figures must be added the numbers in the Dominions from which men were recruited, a further 145,000, making, in all, a rough total of 420,000 for the British empire, including women and children. Among the male population, a large proportion of Jews of alien birth were not available as soldiers, so that the exact total of acceptable men cannot be accurately ascertained. As far as existing records testify, some 50,000 Jews, from the beginning to the end of the war, were in some branch of his Majesty's forces. The manner in which Jewish officers and men were distributed among the thousand and one units of the forces renders the task of compiling exact records an unusually complicated one. The battalions and divisions recruited from the large centres of Jewish population in the United Kingdom, as London, Manchester, Liverpool, and Leeds, naturally contained the largest number of Jewish representatives, but they were also to be found scattered by ones and twos in every kind of formation.

JEWISH UNITS

In the early part of the war, the War Office gave facilities for an attempt to be made to enlist Jews to serve together in units on the principle of the "Pals" battalions which were so popular in some of the provincial towns, but the result was not a success. In Egypt, however, a unit was recruited, early in 1915, to be sent to the expedition in the Dardanelles, and, under the able leadership of a non-Jewish officer, Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Patterson, D. S. O., this body of men, about 1,000 strong, was known as the Zion Mule Corps, and performed extremely valuable service in taking up supplies and ammunition to the forces on the Gallipoli peninsula. These Jews wore the badge of the Shield of David on their uniforms, and were recruited both from the Palestinian colonists, who had taken refuge in Egypt, and from among the Egyptian Jews. After they had completed their service, in January, 1916, the corps was disbanded.

Colonel Patterson was also prominently identified as the first commanding officer with the successful raising in England of the "Judeans," or Jewish Units of the Royal Fusiliers, which came into existence early in 1917. In their desire to enlist Jews of Russian birth in the British army, the Government accepted a proposal for these men and other Jews to be placed in a regiment together, with special privileges as regards the practices of their faith, and later decided to send these units to Egypt and Palestine. In all, three battalions, the 38th, 39th, and 40th Royal Fusiliers, were despatched to the East. Over 4,500 men belonged to the "Judeans," including some 1,000 Russian Jews recruited from the United States, who were stimulated by their Zionist ideals to join the British army and fight for the possession of Palestine. The 38th and 39th battalions arrived in time to take part in the final advance, by which General Sir Edmund Allenby concluded the conquest of Palestine in September, 1918, and acquitted themselves with great distinction. The 39th battalion was commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel E. Margolin, D. S. O., who had served as an officer in the Australian forces, and the 40th battalion was under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel F. D. Samuel, D. S. O., who, after taking part in some of the heaviest fighting in France and Belgium, was transferred from the 3rd London Regiment to take charge of this section of the Jewish Unit.

CASUALTIES AND HONORS

The large majority of Jews wearing his Majesty's uniform thus remained scattered in smaller or larger groups, and fought side by side with their comrades of other faiths. The record of casualties demonstrates that, whilst the largest number of deaths, over 1,800, occurred in France and Belgium, Jews took part in the fighting everywhere, and there was scarcely a unit in the whole navy, army, and air force which did not include some Jews on its strength.

The casualties, as known up to the date of this article, number:

Total .....	8674

The decorations and honors awarded for services rendered were, as far as have been ascertained, as follows:

THE VICTORIA CROSSES

The official records of the exploits of the five V. C.'s are as follows:

LIEUTENANT FRANK ALEXANDER DE PASS, late 34th Prince Albert Victor's Own Poona Horse.—“For conspicuous bravery near Festubert on November 24th, 1914, in entering a German sap and destroying a traverse in the face of the enemy's bombs and for subsequently rescuing, under heavy fire, a wounded man who was lying exposed in the open. Lieutenant de Pass lost his life on this day in a second attempt to capture the aforesaid sap, which had been re-occupied by the enemy.”

No. 168a. CORPORAL ISSY SMITH (SHMULOVITCH) 1st Battalion, Manchester Regiment.—“For most conspicuous bravery on 26th April, 1915, near Ypres when he left his company on his own initiative and went well forward towards the enemy's position to assist a severely wounded man, whom he carried a distance of 250 yards to safety, whilst exposed the whole time to heavy machine gun and rifle fire. Subsequently Corporal Smith displayed great gallantry when casualties were very heavy in voluntarily assisting to bring in many more wounded men throughout the whole day, and attending them with the greatest devotion to duty regardless of personal risk."

PRIVATE LEONARD KEYSOR, 1st Battalion, Australian Imperial Force.—"For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty at Lone Point trenches in the Gallipoli Peninsula. On August 7th, 1915, he was in a trench which was being heavily bombed by the enemy. He picked up two live bombs and threw them back at the enemy at great risk to his own life, and continued throwing bombs, although himself wounded, thereby saving a portion of the trench which it was important to hold. On August 8th, at the same place, Pte. Keysor successfully bombed the enemy out of a position from which a temporary mastery over his own trench had been obtained, and was again wounded. Although marked for hospital he declined to leave, and volunteered to throw bombs for another Company which had lost its bomb throwers. He continued to bomb the enemy till the situation was relieved."

No. 18105. PRIVATE J. WHITE (WEISS), 6th King's Own Royal Lancs. Regiment.—"During an attempt to cross the river Diala (Mesopotamia), he saw the two pontoons ahead of him come under machine gun fire, with disastrous results. When his own pontoon had reached mid-stream, with every man except himself either dead or wounded, finding that he was unable to control the pontoon, Pte. White promptly tied a telephone wire to the pontoon, jumped overboard, and towed it to the shore, thereby saving an Officer's life, and bringing to land the rifles and equipment of the other men in the boat, who were either dead or dying."

CAPTAIN ROBERT GEE, M. C., Royal Fusiliers.—"For most conspicuous bravery, initiative and determination when an attack by a strong enemy force pierced our line on November 30th, 1917, and captured a brigade headquarters and ammunition dump. Capt. Gee finding himself a prisoner killed one of the enemy with his spiked stick, and succeeded in escaping. He then organized a party of the Brigade Staff, with which he attacked the enemy fiercely closely followed and supported by two companies of infantry. By his own personal bravery and prompt action he, aided by his orderlies, cleared the locality. Capt. Gee established a defensive flank on the outskirts of the village, then finding that an enemy machine gun was still in action, with a revolver in each hand, and followed by one man, he rushed and captured the gun, killing eight of the crew. At this time he was wounded but refused to have the wound dressed until he was satisfied that the defence was organized."

ON SEA

British Jews bore their full share in the operations in every quarter of the globe. On sea, while their number in the navy was not large, they took part in every action of importance, and Jewish men are known to have served in every kind of vessel afloat and under the sea. In the famous naval operations for the blocking of Zeebrugge and Ostend, which took place in the spring of 1918, several Jewish officers and men took part, and Lieutenant-Commander R. Saunders was one of the seven officers who obtained the D. S. O. in recognition of gallantry on that occasion. In the fighting around the British Isles—in the Heligoland Bight—the battle of Jutland (where a Jewish warrant officer was yeoman of signals on board the admiral's flagship), the battle of Coronel, the battle of Falkland Islands, and in the Adriatic Sea, representatives of Jewry are known to have had a share. In the attack on the town of Akaba in the Red Sea, early in 1915, a Jewish warrant officer, M. M. Bright of H. M. S. Minerva, was in charge of one of the landing parties that took the town. In the landing of the Dardanelles, Admiral de Robeck, in the course of his despatch describing the stirring fights at Gallipoli on April 25 and 26, 1915, recommended, for gallant service in action, a Jewish sailor from the East End of London, by name Lewis Jacobs, belonging to H. M. S. Lord Nelson. The admiral reported that "Jacobs took his boat into V Beach, unaided, after all the remainder of the crew and the troops were killed or wounded. When last seen, Jacobs was standing and endeavoring to pole the cutter to the shore. Whilst thus employed, he was killed." On board the cruiser H. M. S. Sydney, when it destroyed the German raider, the Emden, off the Cocos Islands in November, 1914, were two Jewish sailors, and in the Homeric struggle, when the torpedo-boat H. M. S. Broke, together with the Swift, defeated the enemy flotilla in the Downs in April, 1917, Jewish sailors were in action.

Among the other naval duties undertaken by Jews was that of mine-laying and mine-sweeping, submarine work, and the Royal Naval Air Service, which, later on, was amalgamated with the Royal Air Force.

ON LAND

The operation on land likewise saw Jews in every part of the war area. In the advance on German South-West Africa, General Botha had under his command a considerable number of Jews from Cape Town, Natal, and the Transvaal, many of whom afterwards took part in the fighting in German East Africa and later came to Europe with the South African Brigade. In the forces from the Dominions, the officer to reach the highest rank was Lieutenant-General Sir John Monash, K. C. B., etc., etc., who first landed in Egypt as a colonel, in 1914. Before the war he had been an engineer, and served as an officer in the Australian military forces. Subsequently he took part in the operations in the Dardanelles, arriving in France as a brigadier-general, in 1916, was given command of and trained the 3rd Australian Division in England as major-general, and accompanied his division to France. He achieved renown for his work in the battle of Messines in June, 1917, in which his division played a prominent part, and in April, 1918, when General Sir William Birdwood was transferred from the Australian Corps to take command of the Fifth Army at a most critical period of the war, Sir John Monash was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-general and placed in command of the Australian forces on the western front. He led his men from victory to victory in the days from August 8th, when the British Army advanced and drove back the enemy, until the close of the war, receiving many distinctions, both from the British and foreign armies, for his successful leadership. The only other Jewish officer to reach the rank of general was Brigadier-General H. J. Seligman, D. S. O., who was a regular officer attached to the Royal Artillery and went through the war from beginning to end.

Many other officers of high rank who played a prominent part in the various campaigns deserve to be mentioned. Lieutenant-Colonel E. H. L. Beddington, D. S. O., M. C., who first proceeded to France in August, 1914, as a captain in the 16th (The Queen's) Lancers, went through all the early fighting, and was afterwards appointed staff officer to the Fifth Army. Lieutenant-Colonel C. J. Elkan, D. S. O., of the Royal Irish Fusiliers, was also a regular officer who fought at Mons and later became a well-known staff officer, first at one of the big bases and, later on, at general headquarters. Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Levey, D. S. O., had originally been in the Regular Army as a private in the Scots Guards, and had seen active service in South Africa. At the beginning of the war he was sergeant-major to the 3rd Scots Guards. He was given a commission in the Gordon Highlanders, but, before proceeding to his battalion, was appointed chief instructor to the Royal Naval Division which saw active service in the Dardanelles, at Antwerp, and on the western front. Colonel Levey became a commandant of a corps school in France, and was given command of a battalion, 13th Royal Sussex Regiment, late in 1917, and won the D. S. O. in the battle for the Paschendale Ridge.

Other officers of similar rank who gained distinction were Lieutenant-Colonel H. E. Cohen, D. S. O., of the Australian Artillery; Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley G. Cohen, who led the 5th King's Liverpools into action; Lieutenant-Colonel H. J. Solomon, M. C., of the Army Service Corps, who was in charge of the main base dépôt for the supply of the army in the field at Havre and, later on, at Salonica; Lieutenant-Colonel F. H. Kisch, D. S. O., and Lieutenant-Colonel R. H. Joseph, D. S. O., in the Royal Engineers; Lieutenant-Colonel

H. Weisberg, D. S. O., of the City of London Yeomanry, who fought in Gallipoli and Palestine; Lieutenant-Colonel W. H. Samuel of the 11th Middlesex Regiment, and Lieutenant-Colonel C. Beddington who was in command of the Divisional Mounted Troops of the 20th Division in France. Lieutenant-Colonel C. S. Myers, Royal Army Medical Corps, was one of the principal medical officers in France engaged on work in connection with nervous diseases and shell-shock, whilst Lieutenant-Colonel B. E. Myers was in charge of the hospitals of the New Zealand forces in the United Kingdom. Lieutenant-Colonel R. Q. Henriques was in charge of the engineers in the 60th London Division, both in France and Palestine. The post of divisional officer of signals and later that of principal signal officer of the Independent Air Force was held by Lieutenant-Colonel J. Waley Cohen, D. S. O., of the 16th (Queen's Westminster) London Regiment, whose brother Lieutenant-Colonel C. Waley Cohen, C. B. E., Royal Army Service Corps, held an important post in the Salonica forces. Another example of an officer to rise from the ranks and become a lieutenant-colonel of a battalion was J. S. Miller, D. S. O., who later was appointed in charge of the dépôt of the Jewish battalions in training in England.

Major Sir Philip Sassoon, Bart., M. P., C. M. G., of the Royal East Kent Yeomanry, proceeded to the front as private military secretary of the first Field Marshal of the British Army in France, Lord French, and held the same important office throughout the whole war to Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig. Among the men to whom was due the invention of the tank, which weapon played so important a part in bringing about a successful issue to the war, was Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Albert G. Stern, K. B. E., C. M. G., a member of the well-known banking firm of Stern Brothers, and the first group of tanks to be sent into action in September, 1916, were painted by the brush of Lieutenant-Colonel S. J. Solomon, the renowned artist of the Royal Academy. Lieutenant-Colonel Solomon was sent on a special mission to develop the art of camouflage at the front, and he spent the whole of the period of the war in this work. He also established a school of instruction for this purpose in London. Another artist to proceed to France at the invitation to the War Office was Professor W. Rothenstein who was commissioned to paint pictures of the war area for the Government.

Among the best-known families of the community to send sons into the war were the Rothschilds, of whom all three sons of Mr. Leopold de Rothschild were on duty. Major Evelyn de Rothschild fell at the head of his men of the Royal Bucks Yeomanry in a charge in the campaign in Palestine, and Captain Anthony G. de Rothschild of the same regiment was wounded in action at Gallipoli. The Sassoon family contributed ten officers, three of whom won the M. C. The family of Sir Isidore Spielmann, C. M. G., and his relatives who were engaged in the war number, in all, forty-one, who were all commissioned officers, and of whom Captain H. I. L. Spielmann, of the Manchester Regiment, was killed in action at Gallipoli; two others fell in France, and twelve were wounded. The Beddington family contributed in all thirty-seven members, and of the sons of Mrs. Arthur Sebag-Montefiore all five held commissions. Captain Robert, the eldest, of the Royal Horse Artillery, won the D. S. O. and M. C., and Captain William became a staff officer to the Heavy Batteries in France. Sir Charles Henry, Bart., M. P., lost his only son, Lieutenant Cyril Henry, Worcester Regiment; Sir Lionel Abrahams, of the India Office, suffered the same bereavement with his son in the Coldstream Guards, and the second son of Sir Marcus Samuel, Bart., Lieutenant Gerald Samuel, fell at the battle of Messines. The elder son, Captain Walter Samuel, gained the M. C., and was a staff officer.

Jewish officers occupied important posts in the administration of the army, both at home and abroad, serving as town majors, railway transport officers, and interpreters, and were especially helpful in connection with intelligence work. Officers and men alike won distinction by their gallant conduct in such hard-fought fields as the battles of Flanders and the Somme, in the Dardanelles, and in Mesopotamia, and some were among the prisoners at the fall of Kut. Many were met by the chaplains in the expeditionary forces in Italy and on the Salonica front. Others were present at the capture of Bagdad, whilst in Palestine, in addition to the men in the Judean Units, there was a considerable body of Jewish soldiers in the 60th London Division who were at the taking of Jerusalem. In the lesser operations of the British army, Jews were also to be found. As an illustration of this, one may mention the daring march of General Dunsterville's small force from Bagdad to Baku, in 1917. This force held Baku for a short time, when it was almost overwhelmed by the Turks and obliged to evacuate the city. One of the survivors of this daring exploit was Sergeant Joseph Abrahams, of the 5th Royal West Kent Regiment, and another, Private N. Vigneskies, of the 7th Gloucester Regiment, both of whom ultimately returned to Mesopotamia in safety. In East Africa, Private R. Davis, of the 25th Royal Fusiliers, gained the Military Medal by helping to rescue the body of the famous hunter, Captain F. Selous, from the hands of the enemy.

Jews took part in the capture of Samoa by the New Zealand forces, and, besides serving in Siberia, helped to hold the lines against the Bolshevik troops in the North Russian expedition. A number of them were included in the troops sent to garrison India to take the place of the regular regiments who were despatched to the western front, and a special committee was formed in Calcutta to take charge of the spiritual interests of these men, so that at the high festivals, by the kind assistance of the army authorities, the soldiers were allowed to be billeted with Jewish families in various cities in India and to observe their religious ceremonies.

It is a striking fact that a large majority of Jews engaged on active service belonged to the fighting units of the army, such as the infantry, artillery, tanks, machine-gun units, and the special brigades of the Royal Engineers who were in charge of the gas operations. In the administrative departments they appear to have been comparatively very few in number. In the Royal Army Medical Corps, there was a considerable number of Jewish physicians, several of whom were killed, and most of the men are known to have acted as stretcher-bearers on the battlefields, and performed extremely good work under the most dangerous conditions, winning many honors. Attached to the medical staff of the Second Army in France, and afterwards in Italy, was Major M. Coplans, D. S. O., Royal Army Medical Corps, whilst Captain H. Lightstone, Royal Army Medical Corps, was in charge of the important work of evacuating the wounded from the front areas during the whole of the Somme battles, July to October, 1916.

The story of the deeds for which Jewish officers and men won their distinctions on the battlefield, if set forth in detail, would make a very thrilling narrative. The exploits of the men who won the V. C. are told above. Two examples, in addition, may be given here. The first relates to Lieutenant Solomon Benzecry, a young officer of the 17th Royal Fusiliers, who was a student of the Jewish House at Clifton College, Bristol, reference to which has already been made. On November 30, 1917, the enemy made a sudden counter-attack which drove back the British front lines. As the men retired, Lieutenant Benzecry and his senior officer, Captain Stone, V. C., realized the danger in which their area was involved, and it was decided that, in order to enable the bulk of the troops to establish themselves in a new position, somewhere in the rear, it was imperative that the advancing enemy should be opposed and delayed as much as possible. Captain Stone, V. C., and Lieutenant Benzecry, with a handful of men, volunteered to remain behind, and bore the brunt of an attack of an overwhelming force of the enemy. No one escaped, but as a result of the self-sacrifice of the rear guard, the rest of the British troops were able to consolidate their position in time to meet the new advance that was made against them. Special mention was made in the official despatches of this gallant conduct, at Bourlon Wood, on the part of this Jewish officer.

Another example of bravery refers to Lieutenant A. A. Robinson, an officer from Manchester. He obtained a commission in the 7th King's Liverpool Regiment, and won the M. C. in September, 1917, for the following action. In the course of some very heavy fighting, Robinson found himself the only remaining officer of the company. Although a junior officer, he took command, and captured his objective against intense machine-gun fire. In front of him he saw a trench occupied by the enemy, threatening the captured lines. He forthwith advanced with four men, in spite of heavy fire, and took prisoner three German officers and thirty men. For three days he held his position until relieved, and set a remarkable example to his men. He was twice wounded, and, on returning home to England, he joined the Royal Flying Corps, and was sent to France in May, 1918, as a balloon observer. His balloon was attacked by enemy aircraft and riddled by bullets, and Robinson was compelled to make a rapid parachute descent. Though wounded, he immediately asked and obtained permission to ascend in another balloon, in which he carried on his observations. He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross in September, 1918.

Other typical examples of gallantry which were rewarded by receipt of distinctions are the following, which are a few selected from a large number:

SECOND LIEUTENANT FELIX JOSEPH BENZIMARA, M. G. C. Awarded Military Cross.—“For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when commanding his section of guns in a forward position. He maintained his ground, in spite of intense enemy fire and hostile counter-attacks, by his timely aid greatly assisting to defeat the latter. Although twice buried and gassed, he refused to leave his post, and only reported sick on his return to camp on the following day.”

SECOND LIEUTENANT E. M. WOLF, Royal Irish Regiment, Special Reserve, attd. Tank Corps. Awarded Military Cross.—“He commanded his tank with the greatest skill and gallantry in very difficult ground, and, although it became ‘bellied’ early in the day, held on to his position in front of the infantry and kept the enemy fire down with his Lewis guns. Although 26 hours in action and very exhausted, he and his crew completely broke up a hostile counter-attack, and saved a critical situation. He displayed throughout the day a magnificent example of courage and endurance."

CAPTAIN C. JACOBS, M. C., M. B., Royal Army Medical Corps, Special Reserve. Awarded Bar to M. C.—"For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in forming his dressing station under heavy fire. It was once blown in on top of him and five casualties occurred, but he remained at his post, and managed to evacuate all wounded. On the following day he cleared the battlefield in spite of heavy fire, and brought back twenty badly wounded cases."

CAPTAIN J. B. SOLOMON, Oxford and Bucks Light Infantry and Royal Flying Corps. Awarded Military Cross.—"He carried out a patrol lasting nearly three hours in a very high wind and low clouds, flying at an average height of 500 ft., and brought back a valuable report. During this flight he attacked and drove down an enemy two-seater machine under heavy rifle and machine-gun fire from the ground. He also made a valuable reconnaissance in very bad weather, flying at an average height of 100 ft., under fire from a hostile battery with his machine gun. He set a splendid example of courage and determination."

CORPORAL ARNOLD JACKSON, Army Service Corps. Awarded Military Medal.—"For rescuing his convoy of seven cars and men from an ambush at a considerable personal risk. He showed splendid pluck and resource."

CAPTAIN L. C. MANDLEBERG, Lancashire Fusiliers. Awarded Military Cross.—"During a raid, despite the failure to explode two Bangalore torpedoes, he personally directed the laying of a third torpedo under heavy machine-gun fire. When the party laying this became casualties, he at once reconnoitred for another means of entry through the hostile wire. Before returning to our lines he carried back the body of one of the men killed, in the face of heavy machine-gun fire at close range. He displayed the highest courage and powers of leadership."

No. 26619 CSM. J. GILBERT, 16th Battn. Manchester Regiment. Awarded Distinguished Conduct Medal.—"For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. When all the machine and Lewis gunners became casualties, he mounted a Lewis gun under a hail of rifle and machine-gun fire, and effectually held up the enemy's enveloping attack on the flank. His coolness greatly encouraged the men, who put up a splendid fight, until re-inforcements arrived and the crisis was passed."

AVIATION

The air fighting, which led to the wonderful development of the Royal Flying Corps, afterwards called the Royal Air Force, attracted a large number of Jewish young men, many of whom gained distinction as aviators. In the first list published of the awards of the Distinguished Flying Cross, the name of Captain D. C. Bauer was included, and Major J. Kemper, who had risen from the ranks, originally in the infantry and afterwards in the Royal Flying Corps, was given charge of a large dépôt near one of the bases. Captain Desmond Tuck was attached to the French Flying Corps in the Salonica area, where he won the Croix de Guerre. In the first raid made upon a German aerodrome, Major R. L. Marix took part, and won the D. S. O., and Captain J. I. Barnato flew one of the machines that dropped bombs on the city of Constantinople, feats which, in the early days of flying, created a great sensation. Among the rank and file of this corps was included a large number of Jewish tailors and other workmen who were busily engaged in preparing the different parts of the machines, which were used in action, and in the photographic branch.

Towards the end of the war, numerous labor companies were formed of men who were unfit for the firing line, and a considerable number of Jews, mainly of alien birth, were found in these units. They did valuable work behind the lines, and some of them gained awards for gallant conduct during air raids and under other conditions.

A striking feature of the general utility of the Jewish soldier is to be noted in the number of Jews who were engaged in the necessary work of entertaining and amusing their comrades in the various divisional concert parties, where their talents as musicians and performers found full play.

In conclusion, reference should be made to the remarkably friendly relations which existed everywhere between Jew and non-Jew in every branch of the forces. The value of the work of the Jewish sailor and soldier was fully recognized, both by the authorities and by their brothers-in-arms, and the consideration shown by the authorities to enable the men to observe as much of their religious ceremonies as possible under the difficult conditions of war was one of the most pleasant experiences of the chaplains working among the men. The excellent literature, such as the Book of Jewish Thoughts and the books on Jewish history, circulated by the Chief Rabbi's Literature Fund, also contributed in a marked degree to a better understanding of the ideals and character of the Jew, and so helped to unite men of all faiths in a spirit of comradeship in the great task to which they had set their hands.

THE JEWISH BATTALIONS AND THE PALESTINE CAMPAIGN

BY JOSHUA H. NEUMANN

I

One of the interesting developments in Jewish life in connection with the war is undoubtedly the organization of specifically Jewish military units. Although such bodies have not been entirely unknown in the past,<sup>1</sup> it remained for the great European war to connect the organization of such units directly with the national aspirations of the Jews and with Palestine.

Attempts to organize Jewish fighting units in the countries of the Entente in the early stages of the war met with scant success. On August 3, 1914, a petition was submitted to the French Minister of War setting forth the "earnest desire of the unnaturalized Jewish residents of Paris to repay a debt of gratitude to France, the first to proclaim the rights of man and to grant complete civil equality to all," and requesting permission to organize a Jewish battalion in the Foreign Legion. The petition was rejected, although some four thousand Jews had volunteered at the time and were received in the various regiments of the army.<sup>2</sup> In England, too, a similar attempt was made to organize "Battalions for Jews." Although the sponsors of the movement had succeeded in obtaining the favorable attention of several members of the British War Cabinet, the plan was abandoned in November, 1914, because of serious disagreements among the Jews themselves as to its advisability.<sup>3</sup>

The attitude of the Jewish press, both in the warring countries and in neutral states, was hardly favorable to these attempts. Some were indeed most emphatic in their opposition. The opinions of these latter and their objections were ably summed up in an editorial in the Jewish Daily News (New York), which pointed out the obvious political risks involved and branded the movement as a "piece of folly that would neither shed glory on the Jewish people nor bring practical benefit to the Zionist movement."<sup>4</sup>

The agitation for a Jewish military unit, however, seemed to strike root in a most unexpected locality. When Turkey entered the war towards the end of October, 1914, there were in

<sup>2</sup> A full account of this attempt appeared in the Palestinian weekly Shai shel Safrus, the literary supplement to the Palestine News, Vol. 1, No. 18, March 13, 1918. "The day that we were accepted for service in the French Army," says the author of that article, "was one of the happiest days in our lives. Four thousand strong, we marched through the streets of Paris, singing 'Hatikvoh' and Byalik's 'Birkat 'Am,' down to the Hotel des Invalides, where we deposited the Zionist flag among the banners of the various allies."

<sup>3</sup> In October, 1914, a petition was submitted to the War Office asking permission to form a special Jewish battalion. The petition was opposed by the Rev. Michael Adler, the senior Jewish chaplain. Correspondence relative to this controversy appeared in the London Jewish Chronicle in the issues of November 13 and December 4, 1914.

Palestine a number of European Jews, who, though they had been living there for many years, had failed to become Ottoman subjects. They still claimed the protection of the various European countries from which they had come, and constituted politically a distinctly foreign element. Early in November, 1914, the Turkish Government announced that it would permit the naturalization of these "foreigners," although some of them were, at the time, nationals of states with which Turkey was actually at war. At Jaffa and the colonies a few Jews accepted Ottoman sovereignty, while the majority elected to retain their alien allegiance. In November, 1914, the Turkish authorities in Palestine brutally expelled many of the latter, some of whom subsequently made their way to Alexandria in Egypt.

This expulsion was the culmination of a series of outrages against the Jewish population of the Holy Land. A change in the attitude of the Turkish authorities in Palestine toward the Jewish element became noticeable as soon as Turkey entered the war, when Palestine was made the base for military operations against Egypt. Almost the very first official act of Djemal Pasha's, when he assumed command of the army in Palestine, was to issue a long manifesto against Zionism—"that revolutionary and destructive element aspiring to the creation of a state in our country." He forbade the erection of any new Jewish settlement, and ordered the disbanding of the organization of Jewish police, "ha-Shomer." He decreed the confiscation of all paper money and banknotes of the Anglo-Palestine Company, the Zionist financial agency in Palestine, and even banned the use of Hebrew in street signs or in private correspondence. He seemed to nourish a special bitterness toward those who made use of the stamps of the Jewish National Fund. "Anybody in whose possession such stamps will be found," he decreed, "will be liable to death."<sup>5</sup> A short time later he arrested a number of Jewish notables merely because of the fact that they had been connected with Zionist endeavor in the Holy Land, and ordered them to leave the country at once. Many of these leaders, too, subsequently made their way to Alexandria.

In this way there grew up in that city a colony of Jewish refugees from Palestine. To these were added later a number of other Jews who had become stranded in various parts of Europe at the outbreak of the war. Among the latter was the well-known Russian Zionist leader, Vladimir Jabotinsky. When the Russian consul at Alexandria learned of the presence of a large number of able-bodied Jews who claimed Russian protection in Palestine, he proceeded to induct them into the Russian army. It was then that Vladimir Jabotinsky first suggested the voluntary enlistment of these Jewish refugees in the British service. Later, when British military action against Turkey was imminent, Jabotinsky suggested the raising of a body of Jewish soldiers from among these refugees to fight shoulder to shoulder with the British troops for the liberation of Palestine.<sup>6</sup>

<sup>5</sup> See Israel Cohen, The Turkish Persecution of the Jews, London, 1918, pp. 8-10.

<sup>6</sup> The "father of the Jewish Legion," has had a very interesting career. Born in Odessa, in 1880, he studied law at Berne and at Rome. While abroad he acted as foreign correspondent to several Russian newspapers. In 1902, he produced two plays for the Russian Theatre. In 1903, he entered the Zionist movement, and became one of the founders of the Rasviet, the Zionist official periodical. In 1910, after visiting Palestine, he lived for a short time at Constantinople, where he carried on Zionist propaganda among the Spanish Jews. In Hebrew literature, he is known as a critic and an essayist. He also translated Byalik's poems into Russian. In 1916, he published an interesting study of the political situation in the Near East, entitled "Turkey and the War." In 1917, he volunteered as a private in the Jewish Legion, in which he now holds the rank of honorary officer.

His appeals met with a fair degree of success, for in a comparatively short time he succeeded in raising a force of six hundred volunteers for service against the Turks. British authorities gladly accepted the services of the Jewish soldiers, and formed them into a distinct Jewish battalion officially known as the Zion Mule Corps. In April, 1915, after a very short period of training, they were dispatched to the Dardanelles, where they fought through the whole ill-fated Gallipoli campaign. Of the 652 Jews who had enlisted, 560 saw service at the front. The casualties of this unit included six killed in action and fifty-five wounded. Three of the volunteers received military honors, one of them obtaining the Distinguished Service Medal.<sup>7</sup> Their bravery under fire, in spite of the dangerous character of their work (they were used to carry ammunition and supplies to front-line trenches), earned for them the high commendation of their British officers.<sup>8</sup> When the Gallipoli expedition was withdrawn, in the early part of 1916, the unit was disbanded.<sup>9</sup>

The Jewish press throughout the world was hardly more favorable to this project than it had been to previous attempts. Jabotinsky was looked upon as a victim of war neurosis. His plan was decried as a dangerous experiment, as a wild quixotic project. Even the Provisional Zionist Committee, acting as the executive body for general Zionist affairs, issued a statement censuring the individuals who were undertaking work that would be likely to cause serious political complications.

<sup>7</sup> Nissel Rosenberg, Z. M. C., killed in action at Gallipoli. Another member of the unit, S. Grochokowsky, received a medal for conspicuous gallantry. Although he was shot in both arms during an engagement, he continued to perform his duties until he was relieved.

<sup>8</sup> The unit was mentioned in the dispatches of the commanding officer, and was also publicly commended by General Sir Ian Hamilton, the British commander-in-chief at the Dardanelles.

<sup>9</sup> The commander of the Zion Mule Corps, Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Patterson, subsequently published a book, in which he gave a stimulating account of the experiences of his unit. The author makes up in genuine interest in the affairs of his unit for his lack of acquaintance with Jewish history or his understanding of the Zionist ideal.

After the disbanding of the Zion Mule Corps Jabotinsky left for Europe. He arrived in England at the time when the agitation was beginning for the formation of specifically Jewish military units from among the Russian immigrant Jews, who, at the beginning of the war, had not volunteered for service under the British flag, and who had later, when conscription came into effect, applied for exemption from military service on the ground of their foreign nationality. Their conduct aroused indignation in the English press. Jabotinsky then proposed the formation of a volunteer Jewish military company for home defence and for service in Egypt and Palestine under the British flag. In order to propagate his ideas, he published a daily paper, Unser Tribune, in which he outlined his plan in greater detail. He answered the objections, which had been raised in regard to the political complications that his plan might evoke, by pointing out that the Zionist policy as regards Turkey could no longer remain neutral.

The result of Jabotinsky's appeals was the formation of a "Committee for the Jewish Future," to undertake active recruiting for the proposed Jewish Battalion. Jabotinsky's recruiting meetings met with very little success. His first public gathering, in Whitechapel, was a scene of most pronounced disapproval on the part of the audience; the second ended in disorder. Convinced that his plan at that time was hardly acceptable to the mass of Russo-Jewish immigrants in England, Jabotinsky temporarily suspended his activities. In the last issue of his paper he acknowledges the failure of the movement in the following words: "Some weeks ago we started this paper with the purpose of pleading for an honorable compromise on the question of Jewish immigrants' military service. . . . Our suggestion was voluntary enlistment in a Jewish legion reserved for purposes of home defence within the frontiers of the British empire, including Egypt, and for military operations in Palestine. Our practical aim was to collect a number of signatures under petition, asking the Government to form such a legion and pledging the signatories to join it when formed. In this practical task we have failed." Jabotinsky goes on to attribute this failure to the fact that the British Government had not given any public expression as to its attitude in regard to Palestine. Once the sympathetic attitude of that Government towards the Zionist movement were made known, he argued, the legion would surely be successful.

Jabotinsky's prophecy came true. In November, 1917, the British Government made public the now famous Balfour declaration in regard to the establishment of a "national home for the Jewish people" in Palestine. The effect of this declaration on recruiting for the Jewish battalion was most remarkable both in England and in other countries. A fairly large company of Jewish volunteers had already been organized in England during the latter part of 1917 for general military service. In its issue of December 7, 1917, the Jewish Chronicle suggested that this battalion be sent to Palestine. The suggestion met with favor, and a short while later it was definitely announced that the battalion would be sent to the Palestine front. Officially the body was known as the 38th Battalion, Royal Fusiliers, and was in charge of Lieutenant-Colonel J. H.

Patterson, D. S. O., who had formerly served as the commanding officer of the Zion Mule Corps. This unit, the total strength of which was about 900, left for Palestine in February, 1918. To this was added a second unit, the 39th Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers, consisting of about 600 men, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel E. Margolin, D. S. O. This body proceeded to the East two months later, in April, 1918. The third battalion, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel F. D. Samuels, D. S. O., and consisting of about 1100 volunteers, followed in August.<sup>10</sup>

In the United States, too, the spread of the battalion movement and even its origin may be traced directly to the enthusiasm for a Jewish Palestine called forth by the Balfour declaration. In the beginning the movement was purely spontaneous, a number of volunteers having applied at the British recruiting offices in New York, Philadelphia, and Chicago, as early as December, 1917, for enlistment in the Anglo-Jewish Battalion. With the help of the Zionist Organization these attempts were co-ordinated, and a central bureau opened in New York for the purpose of carrying on an active recruiting campaign among the Jewish youth. On February 27, 1918, the first contingent of American volunteers, consisting of about 200 young men, left New York for the British training camps at Windsor, Canada, preparatory to their transportation to Palestine. Subsequent units, some of them numbering as many as 500 men, left the United States at regular intervals every three weeks.

<sup>10</sup> These numbers do not take into consideration the 1800 men left in the Depôt in England in December, 1918, and the Palestinian volunteers of the Legion. There was also a further body of 500 men who enlisted in England, but who did not proceed to the East, and were transferred to other regiments. From figures available at present, it appears that the total number of volunteers from all countries, for these three Jewish units, was between six and seven thousand.

The campaign for the Jewish battalion was one of the most interesting phenomena of American Jewish life during the war. The press and the pulpit granted the movement their heartiest co-operation. Gray-bearded Orthodox rabbis frequently addressed the recruiting meetings that were held in Jewish centres throughout the whole country. The Yiddish papers, in particular, published fervent appeals to Jewish young men not subject to the American draft to enlist in the battalion.

A society called the Red Mogen David was organized in April, 1918, for the purpose of carrying on among these Jewish recruits work similar to that which was carried on among the American armies by such agencies as the Jewish Welfare Board and the Red Cross. The organization's central office is in New York City. It has branches in many of the larger cities of the Union. It is endeavoring to raise a fund of $100,000 for the purpose of supporting the families of the legionaries and rendering financial assistance to the volunteers who have chosen to settle in Palestine after the war.

The records of the various American contingents of the Judaeans available at the offices of the Zionist Organization of America throw an interesting light on the character and composition of these units. These statistics show that about 2700 men were ultimately accepted in the United States by the British authorities for the three Jewish battalions. When one takes into consideration the shortness of the recruiting campaign, the heavy demands of the American draft, and the fact that only unnaturalized Jews were accepted, this number appears fairly large. The volunteers came from every important Jewish centre in the Union and from every state. A few even came all the way from Mexico and the Central American republics. Indeed, in the later units which left New York for training at Windsor, Canada, were men who hailed from almost all of the countries of Europe; Asia and Africa were also represented. Even enemy states, such as Austria and Turkey, appear as the countries of birth of some of the recruits. One can gauge the high intellectual level of these contingents by the unusually high percentage of representatives of the liberal professions and the skilled trades.

The battalion movement spread to other countries. Russia, which was passing through the last days of the Kerensky régime, displayed a tremendous enthusiasm for the movement. Periodicals and private opinion are unanimous that the movement would have been extraordinarily successful in that country had it not been for the disorganization which set in with the Bolshevik revolution. In spite of the many obstacles the movement had to encounter from the Government authorities, recruiting was begun in a number of Jewish centres. A body of volunteers was raised, of whom 5000 succeeded in reaching Vladivostok and Kharbin on their way to England. The leaders of the movement, however, Pinchas Ruthenberg and Captain Trumpeldor (the latter a member of the original Zion Mule Corps), were both thrown into prison for their activities on behalf of the battalion. It has also been reported that at Odessa, which was for a time under German control, the German police discovered a secret society, the object of which was to recruit former soldiers of the Russian army to join the English army in Palestine by way of Vladivostok. From the Argentine Republic, too, a contingent of 52 volunteers reached England after a journey of 35 days. In Salonica, Greece, a spontaneous movement to organize a Jewish battalion from among the Sephardi residents of the town won the approval of the Greek authorities. In the part of Palestine that had already been freed from the Turks voluntary enlistment in the Jewish units was so great that steps had to be taken by the responsible authorities to prevent a wholesale desertion of young able-bodied Jews from the productive industries to the army. In Jaffa and Jerusalem 900 Jews, including a very large number of teachers in the various Jewish schools, and almost all of the students of the graduating class of the gymnasia enlisted in less than a month. Indeed so large was the number of recruits obtained in Palestine that an entire battalion was raised and maintained from these volunteers.

The movement for a Jewish unit was so late in organizing that only a small percentage of the total number of recruits saw actual service on the battle front. The 38th "Judacan Battalion," however, which arrived in Palestine in April, 1918, was dispatched to the front a few months later, and for more than five weeks held a difficult position on the extreme right flank of the British army, on the Wadi Mellahah, a tributary of the Jordan. This battalion rendered efficient service in the great drive of September 18 to 22, 1918, which resulted in the collapse of the Turkish armies in Palestine. On September 28, the battalion entered Jerusalem in triumph after having pursued the enemy across the Jordan and having captured over 4000 Turks. In this latter action the 39th "Judaean Battalion" also took part.<sup>11</sup>

<sup>11</sup> The casualties of these units were unusually heavy. In a letter of Colonel Patterson's, printed in the London Jewish Chronicle, December 6, 1918, that officer states that over twenty-seven officers and 300 men of his command were in the military hospitals. Most of the cases were, however, due to the spread of fever and malaria among the soldiers.

The conduct of these three units in camp and on the battle-field earned for them the high esteem of their officers. A number of honors of various degrees were conferred upon several members, and one Jewish officer was awarded the much coveted Military Cross. The commander-in-chief of the Egyptian Expeditionary Forces, General Sir Edmund Allenby, has frequently praised the Jewish regiment for the "consistently good work it has done," and congratulated Jewry at large for the self-sacrifice of these, its brave fellow-members.

II

Because of its general historical interest for Jews and its relation to the Jewish battalion movement just described, a brief outline of the British campaigns in Palestine is given. This campaign was a comparatively minor detail in the plan of military action against the Ottoman empire, a plan which aimed at the thwarting of German aspirations in the Near East. When, at the end of October, 1914, three months after the outbreak of the war in Europe, Turkey ranged itself on the side of the Central empires, the Entente Powers began military operations against the Ottoman empire. Four campaigns were initiated in four different localities at almost the same time. One aimed at the heart of Turkey by forcing the Dardanelles and seizing Constantinople; another, at the terminus of the great Oriental railway at Bagdad; a third, at the freeing of the Armenian districts of Asia Minor by an invasion directed from the Russian provinces of the Caucasus; and the fourth, at detaching all of southern Arabia from the Turkish empire.

The first two of these campaigns ended disastrously. The drive for Constantinople was halted because of the serious reverses which the Allies suffered at Gallipoli and the Dardanelles, and which resulted in the loss of many powerful warships and over 200,000 lives. It was in this campaign that the Zion Mule Corps, the first specifically Jewish unit of the war, took an active part. The drive for the terminus of the Berlin-Bagdad railway at first fared no better, and a part of the British army surrendered at Kut el-Amara.

In the early part of 1915, the Turks, under the command of Djemal Pasha, Minister of the Navy, assembled in Palestine, just within the Turkish side of the Egyptian frontier, an army of about 250,000 men, in an attempt to capture the Suez Canal. Fortunately, British land forces, assisted by monitors and small cruisers on the Canal, succeeded in breaking up the Turkish attack. In a short while, however, the Turks returned re-inforced and better equipped, but this time they were so decisively beaten that they retreated in disorder to the desert and to the mountains of the Sinai peninsula.

It then became evident to the British authorities that, as long as the Turk could manage to keep within striking distance, the Canal would not be safe, nor the British position in Egypt or India secure, and it was decided to launch a powerful attack against the Turk that would permanently remove this menace. A strong British army was concentrated in Egypt under the command of General Sir Archibald Murray and held in readiness for an advance on the Turkish bases in Palestine.

The first Palestine campaign began in the winter of 1916-17. The Sinai peninsula was quickly cleared of the enemy's troops. Then the British felt their way northward, along the Mediterranean coast, up to Palestine. This work was difficult and progress slow, as the British had to march through the great uninhabited desert which lies between Egypt and Palestine, the famous "way of the land of the Philistines," mentioned in the story of the Exodus. However, in spite of these obstacles, Sir Archibald Murray succeeded in bringing his army right up to Palestine in the early part of 1917.

Early in March, General Murray reached Gaza, the ancient stronghold of the Philistines, the first important city in southern Palestine. After a brief pause, he attacked the Turkish positions on March 26. Although the attack was carried through with great dash and courage, it failed of its purpose because a dense sea-fog, common in that part of the country, had suddenly arisen in the early morning, and, covering the whole battlefield, had prevented the various parts of the army from acting as a unit. On April 17, a second attack under slightly better conditions also fell just short of success. The British thereupon withdrew to a prepared position on the Wadi Ghuzzeh (river of Gaza), a few miles south of the city.

The first and second battles of Gaza had thus failed to accomplish anything of importance. The summer months then followed and prevented further operations on a large scale.<sup>12</sup> Sir Archibald Murray was succeeded by Sir Edmund H. H. Allenby, who had shown fine qualities as a fighter on the western front.

<sup>12</sup> Almost all of the serious fighting in Palestine was done during the winter season, that is, from the middle of September to the end of March. The climate of southern Palestine prevents any active campaigning during the "dry" or summer season, when the days are very hot and the nights cold. Besides, there is almost no rainfall during the summer, and the sand and dust get into one's eyes, nose, and throat, and marching or active campaigning is an extremely difficult task.

Several circumstances rendered the British position before Gaza insecure, and prevented further aggressive warfare. The railroad, which the British had built from Egypt up to Palestine in order to supply the necessities of the army, did not go far enough. Besides, the British army in Palestine was still on the edge of the desert, and could not get sufficient water for its purposes. In order to meet these difficulties, the building of the railroad was rapidly continued until it reached the main British positions before Gaza, and a long pipe line was constructed over miles and miles of desert sands into Egypt, whence plenty of fresh water for all needs could be drawn. Then a vast amount of supplies was assembled, and General Allenby prepared to attack the Turkish positions again. These events bring us down to the second Palestine campaign, that of the winter of 1917-18.

A brief exposition of the geographical characteristics of Palestine will help to make clear the further course of the campaign. Palestine resembles roughly a huge oblong, slightly tilted, with its narrower sides running from east to west. Topographically it may be divided into four parallel strips, or divisions, running north and south. First comes the low-lying, coastal plain, the southern portion of which is known in Hebrew as the Shephelah, or "The Lowland." This runs along the Mediterranean Sea from the Egyptian frontier right up to the Lebanon mountains. Parallel to it is the second division, consisting of the upland districts, called in the south the mountains of Judah, and in the north the mountains of Ephraim. The third parallel, the valley of the River Jordan, presents a most remarkable natural phenomenon, for it contains "the longest and deepest trench on the face of the earth," a depression which reaches, in the region of the Dead Sea, a depth of 1300 feet below sea level. Beyond, to the east, is the fourth parallel division, consisting of the plateaus of Hauran, Gilead, and Moab. Of course, these divisions are not always clearly marked, especially in the north, where the great plain of Jezreel breaks into the mountain district, or between Carmel and Lebanon, where the coastal plain narrows down to a very small strip of sandy beach.

When Allenby assumed command of the British army, the battle-line ran from a point a few miles south of Gaza in a south-easterly direction toward Beer-sheba. Turkish resistance rested on the two towns of Gaza and Beer-sheba. In between were other well-fortified positions which the Turks had managed to construct during the calm of the summer season. Early in November, 1917, General Allenby launched strong attacks against the Turkish positions at several points. The attack delivered at Beer-sheba on the Turkish flank was entirely successful; British troops occupied the town only a few hours after the battle began. The loss of Beer-sheba compelled the Turks to modify their whole battle-line and to retreat along the coast. At Gaza, however, General Allenby's cavalry succeeded in getting behind the fleeing army and heading off a great part of it. In this way the town of Gaza and the whole system of fortifications around it fell into British hands, and the Turks retired to the north and to the mountains of Judah, where the nature of the ground offered better chances for defensive warfare.<sup>13</sup>

<sup>13</sup> Although Jewish units for service in Palestine had not yet been formed at this early date, there was, nevertheless, a considerable number of Jews who took part in the first and second campaigns. This is especially true of the London Division and the Australian Light Horse. Many Jewish officers and men serving in other commands of the service had petitioned for transfer to

The way was now open for a drive towards Jaffa, the chief sea-port of southern Palestine, and Jerusalem, the capital of the country. Jaffa lies on the coastal plain, about forty miles north of Gaza, while Jerusalem is situated in the mountains some fifty miles north-east. General Allenby hurriedly pushed up along the coast, meeting with very little difficulty on the way, for the Turks had left intact the railroad they had built from Jaffa down to Gaza. At several points, however, the Turks did make a stand, but their forces were so disorganized that they were hardly a match for the British troops. At Huj and Djemama, for example, which lie within the boundaries of the Jewish settlement of Ruchamah, and at the Jewish colony of Kastinieh, pitched battles were fought. The peaceful settlers of Kastinieh found themselves for a time under a cross-fire from Turkish and British guns, which destroyed their synagogue and did considerable damage to the farm-houses of the colony. But the strength of the British attacks compelled a further Turkish withdrawal, and the colony was spared more serious injury. General Allenby proceeded to take the Turkish positions at Ashdod and Ascalon, two more of the five cities of the Philistines. Continuing, he interrupted communications between Jaffa and Jerusalem by cutting the railway line between these cities at Ramleh, and finally, a week later, his forces entered the town of Jaffa, the most important port in Judaea and the heart of the newer Jewish settlements in Palestine.

the units fighting in Palestine. Captain James de Rothschild, son of Baron Edmond de Rothschild, patron of Jewish colonization in Palestine, also served in the Holy Land. Among the Jews of Palestine who rendered service to the British army was the late Aaron Aaronsohn, director of the Jewish Agricultural Experiment Station.

Among the Jewish settlements along the coast, thus liberated through General Allenby's advance, are some of the best known Jewish colonies. They include Gederah, founded by the Bilu, the pioneers of Palestinian colonization, Rechoboth and Rishon le-Zion, the great wine-producing settlements of Judaea. Near Jaffa is the well-known agricultural school of the Alliance Israélite Universelle, Mikveh Israel, while further inland, along the Jaffa-Jerusalem railway, are the "Herzl forests" of Huldah and Ben-Shamen. It is interesting to note also that a number of British military hospitals were organized in the vicinity of these Jewish colonies, and that officers and men frequently spent their furloughs in these settlements.

With the capture of Jaffa, the first objective of the campaign was attained. Then began the more serious task, the drive for Jerusalem. After assuring himself that his communications were in perfect order, General Allenby attacked the Turkish positions in the mountains. In the south, the army which had been victorious at Beer-sheba, marched up and took Hebron and Beth-lehem. In the north, the British advanced slowly from the direction of Jaffa eastward towards Jerusalem, along the Wadi es-Surar, the valley of Sorek mentioned in the Bible as the scene of Samson's exploits. In the reports issued by the British War Office, communicating the advance of the army through the mountain district, one meets with names hallowed in Jewish history and tradition for similar military exploits. One report, for example, stated that the British army had advanced through Midieh, the Arabic name for Modin, the home of the Maccabees. Another told of a battle which was fought at Beit-Ur-el-Tahta, a name that is reminiscent of Beth-Horon-Tahton (lower Beth-Horon), the famous pass where Judas Maccabaeus met and defeated the Syrian hosts. In less than a month the British troops reached the city of Jerusalem. Although the Holy City was not given up without a struggle, it was spared bombardment, because the British troops had surrounded the city on almost all sides, and compelled the Turks to withdraw their forces. On December 11, 1917, the second day of Hanukkah, 5678, General Allenby made his official entry into the city of Jerusalem, and was acclaimed by the whole population with extraordinary manifestations of joy. He was welcomed by the representatives of the various elements of the population of the Holy City and by the leading rabbis of the Ashkenazi and Sephardi communities at the steps of the traditional Tower of David. In a long proclamation which he read to the inhabitants of the city on the day of his triumphal entry, and which was later posted through the town in Hebrew as well as in other languages, General Allenby assured the people of Jerusalem of his reverence for the traditions of the past with which the name of their city was associated, and promised a just and peaceful administration.<sup>14</sup>

The liberation of Judaea from the Ottoman rule marked the end of the second Palestine campaign. In the latter half of the winter the greatest Jewish colony in Palestine, Petah Tikvah, was liberated, but not until it had suffered serious damage, for the Turks, in withdrawing from that part of the country, had deliberately bombarded the Yemenite suburb of the town, and looted the houses of the other colonists. The neighboring settlement, Kefar-Saba, was totally destroyed, its buildings razed to the ground, and its plantations uprooted.

<sup>14</sup> In order to acquaint the Jewish inhabitants with the progress of British administration in the country, the military authorities published a Hebrew weekly entitled Hadashot me-ha-Arez as the Hebrew edition of the English Palestine News.

During the summer of 1918 there was very little military activity. The British attempted, however, to invade the region of Moab across the Jordan, and cut the Constantinople to Mecca railroad which runs there. British troops succeeded in reaching the town of Es-Salt, but were compelled to withdraw because their flank was threatened by large bodies of the enemy.

This brings us down to the third Palestine campaign, which began in September, 1918. The strategic task that General Allenby had to meet was to overcome two hostile armies: one east of the Jordan in the mountains of Gilead along the Constantinople-Mecca railway, and the other west of the Jordan, among the mountains of Ephraim and the coastal plain of Samaria. The campaign began rather early. On September 18, General Allenby attacked the Turkish forces between the Jordan and the sea on a front of 60 miles. The enemy's resistance along the coast collapsed very early, and General Allenby was thus enabled to send a strong force of cavalry up the coast to get behind the Turkish army, still fighting in the mountains of Samaria, and cut their communications. When the Turks in the mountains finally began to withdraw, they found that the railway on which they had depended for their retreat was already in the hands of the British cavalry. To add to their discomfiture, they learned that their main line of communication with Constantinople was no longer serviceable to them, for Arab irregulars and the forces of the king of the Hedjaz, after seizing the railway station at Deraa (ancient Edrei), had destroyed a number of bridges in the vicinity. The Turks failed also in attempting to cross the Jordan into the fertile lands of Gilead and Bashan, where the British had not yet ventured. The result of this campaign was the total collapse of the Turkish army in the western half of Palestine. Some 80,000 men, together with an enormous quantity of war material including 700 guns, were captured, and the liberation of Samaria was complete.

The victory east of the Jordan was as great as that in the west, although less spectacular. It was in this fighting that the Jewish battalions took a most active part. The whole Jewish world was thrilled when the official British War Report announced that in the fighting across the Jordan "Jewish troops" were pursuing the enemy between Es-Salt and Amman, the site of Rabbath Ammon, the ancient capital of the Ammonites.<sup>15</sup>

Immediately following the liberation of Samaria and Trans-Jordania, General Allenby began to clear Galilee, the fourth and northernmost section of Palestine. Haifa, the sea-port at the foot of Mount Carmel, fell in a few days, as did Tiberias, Nazareth, and Saffed. The British forces pushed ahead in two columns, one along the coast, and the other along the Constantinople-Mecca railway, capturing Sidon, Tyre, and Damascus (October 1), while the French landed at Beirut, and seized the country around it. The capture of these cities properly marks the triumphant end of the Palestine campaign.

<sup>15</sup> "East of the Jordan the enemy is withdrawing toward Amman on the Hedjaz Railway, pursued by Australian, New Zealand, West Indian and Jewish troops, which have reached Es-Salt, capturing guns and prisoners."—From the British Official Report, Sept. 24, 1918.

AMERICAN JEWS IN THE WORLD WAR

BY JULIAN LEAVITT

DIRECTOR, OFFICE OF WAR RECORDS, AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

From the day that the United States entered the war the Jews of America perceived the wisdom of keeping an authentic record of Jewish service in the common cause. The American Jewish Committee therefore assumed this task in November, 1917—at its first annual meeting after the American declaration of war—and has since prosecuted it, with the unstinted co-operation of the Jewish Welfare Board, vigorously and systematically, until to-day it may properly claim a collection of historical and statistical data of the very first importance. In fact, the monumental character of the undertaking—both in justice to those of our coreligionists who were engaged in the great struggle, and as a collection of source material invaluable for Jewish historiography and demography in the future—has become so significant as to make this work comparable, in magnitude, with the greatest publication enterprises of American Jewry.

In spite of the wealth of material available, however—or perhaps because of it—the time has not yet arrived for an adequate, or even a preliminary, historical survey of the contribution of the Jews of America to the winning of the war. All American war records are as yet far behind those of our co-belligerents for the obvious reason that those nations, particularly France and England, had a longer period in which to organize their historical material. The American records are still, at this writing, largely inaccessible, resting in the Central Records Office of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, thousands of miles from the collateral material in Washington. Because of this the War Department has officially withdrawn all so-called histories of divisions that have been published hitherto, and has prohibited the publication of new histories until such time as all the records may be made available in America. These reasons, it is apparent, apply with exceptional force against the possibly premature publication of Jewish historical material pertaining to the war. The present article will therefore limit itself strictly to a consideration of certain statistical data of immediate interest, leaving the greater task of an authentic historical record for future development.

THE NUMBER OF JEWS IN THE VARIOUS BRANCHES OF SERVICE

The outstanding facts developed in the course of our inquiry to date<sup>1</sup> may be summarized as follows:

First, our collection already comprises over 150,000 records of Jews in the military and naval forces of the United States. These are individual records, free of all duplications, and furnishing, in the majority of cases, all service details—such as date of enlistment or induction, branch of service, rank, casualties or citations, etc.—and, in addition, certain details as to age, nativity, occupation, etc., of the greatest possible demographic value.

Many of these records have been forwarded directly from the camps and trenches by the soldiers themselves. Others were sent in by agents of the Jewish Welfare Board overseas, on transports, and at the camps, or by local branches of the Board, without whose untiring co-operation, in fact, this work would have been impossible. Still others were sent by the relatives and friends of the soldiers and sailors, by the Rabbis throughout the country and by the leading Jewish organizations, national and local.

Second, of the 150,000 records at hand about 140,000 have been tabulated and classified by branches of service, rank in the service, states and cities of origin, etc.

Of these 140,000 records some 114,000 are classified in the army, 13,500 in the navy, 2200 in the marine corps, and about 11,000 in service unknown.

Of the 114,000 army records, 24,200 are known to be in the infantry, 7642 in the artillery, 7884 in the medical corps, 4558 in the signal and aviation corps, 2496 in the engineer corps, 1239 in the cavalry, 1385 in ordnance, and 13,264 in other branches. Men whose branches of service are as yet unknown, but the great majority of whom will probably be found later in the infantry, number 51,332.

As to rank, there are so far recorded 7929 Jewish commissioned officers in the army, of whom 32 are colonels, 39 lieutenant-colonels, 340 majors, 1201 captains and 4802 lieutenants. In the navy there were recorded to date 433 commissioned officers, including one rear admiral, and in the marine corps 59 commissioned officers, including one brigadier-general.

As to states and cities of origin, the largest centers of Jewish population have, of course, supplied the greatest number of Jews in the service. New York, state and city, have supplied more than one-third, the total for the state being 50,319, of which 41,376 are from New York City. Pennsylvania follows with 14,586, of which 9596 are from Philadelphia. Illinois is credited with 7203, of which 5967 are from Chicago; and Massachusetts with 5497, of which 1423 are from Boston. Other states will be found pro-rated accordingly. The class "States not known" comprises 29,785, of which probably 40 per cent will ultimately be traceable to New York.

As the full significance of these figures may be grasped only in their relation to certain questions that are, of necessity, uppermost in the minds of those interested in this subject, it may be well to present the information developed so far in the course of the inquiry in the form of questions and answers—it being understood, however, that as these figures are not final, any deductions drawn from them must also lack finality.

What was the total number, and percentage, of the Jews in the army and navy of the United States during the war? The best available evidence indicates that there were from 200,000 to 250,000 Jews in the service, or from 4 to 5 per cent of the total forces of the United States, which numbered approximately 4,800,000 men. These estimates are based upon several independent calculations which tend strongly to confirm one another.<sup>2</sup>

How does the percentage of Jews in the service compare with the percentage of the Jewish population in the United States? The entire Jewish population of the country, according to the latest estimates, is about 3 per cent of the total population. The Jews in the military and naval forces of the United States, however, have constituted from 4 to 5 per cent of the total personnel. On the face of these figures it would seem that the Jews of America contributed at least one-third more than their share to the armed strength of the United States. There is reason to believe, however, that the final figures, when available, will demonstrate that the Jewish contribution has been even greater than this. It is well known that the selective service system has operated more effectively in the North and East than in the South and West, and in the urban more than in the rural districts—that is, in the larger centers of population, which happen also to be the centers of Jewish population. Moreover, the number of industrial exemptions has been greatest in agriculture, mining, and the metal industries, where the Jews are least extensively employed. It has therefore developed, as an unavoidable and incidental feature of the draft system, that the Jewish elements of the population have perhaps been drawn upon more heavily, in proportion to their numbers, than any other elements.

<sup>2</sup> One of these calculations is based upon the fact that our records have until now, for practical reasons that need not be entered into at this point, been gathered by extensive rather than by intensive methods. The 150,000 records in our files, therefore, represent only the first pick. It has been found that in several towns where, for exceptional reasons, an intensive survey was made, at least fifty per cent of new names were added to our present figures. Should this average increment prevail for the country at large, it would add 75,000 names to our present figures, thereby bringing the total to 225,000. In addition to this, New York, in particular, is at present grossly under-represented. When thoroughly surveyed, it will probably add 25,000 more records to the present total, bringing it up to 250,000.

But the principal reason for the high percentage of Jews in the service rests elsewhere. It is to be found in the remarkable number of Jewish volunteers. The evidence as to this is definite and conclusive. The great majority of the records in our files state the exact ages of the men reported. By actual count it has been ascertained that of all the men whose ages were known fully 10 per cent were well outside the draft ages at the time that the count was made—before the registration of September 12. If, in addition to this number, there be added the 15,700 sailors and marines, who are all volunteers, the total of such volunteers at present recorded rises to more than 20 per cent of the total in our files. Should this ratio represent fairly the proportion of Jewish volunteers in all the arms of the service—and at present there is no reason to believe otherwise—this would indicate that there were from 40,000 to 50,000 Jewish volunteers in the service. In other words, the normal Jewish quota of three per cent seems to have been contributed through the draft, and the excess to have been supplied by volunteers.

How were the Jewish soldiers distributed among the combatant and non-combatant branches of the service? Although distinctions of this nature have become, in the organization of modern warfare, almost meaningless, and are therefore not to be over-emphasized, certain comparisons that have been noted in this connection are so striking as to compel instant attention. According to the latest official figures available as to the strength of the United States army as a whole and of each of its component branches, the total strength was, in November, 1918, about 3,700,000, of which the infantry, artillery, cavalry, engineers, and signal-aviation branches together constituted 60 per cent, and the other branches, such as ordnance, quartermaster corps, etc., constituted 40 per cent. But among the 114,000 records of Jewish soldiers in our possession the distribution among the first-named branches is fully 67 per cent. The infantry branch constituted 26.6 per cent of the entire army, while among the Jewish records it constituted 48 per cent. Artillery was 14 per cent of the United States army, 8 per cent of the Jewish total. In cavalry the rate for the entire army is 2 per cent, for the Jews only 1.3 per cent. The engineer corps constituted 11 per cent of the army strength, and but 3 per cent among the Jewish records. The signal and aviation corps represented 7 per cent of the United States total, and 15 per cent of the Jewish total. The medical corps was 8 per cent of the army total, 9 per cent of the Jewish total. Ordnance was 1.7 per cent of the army total, and 1.5 of the Jewish total. The quartermaster corps was 6.2 per cent of the army total and 5.9 per cent of the Jewish total.

If, therefore, such distinctions are still held valid, it may be said truthfully that the relative proportion of Jews in the combatant branches is far greater than in the non-combatant branches.

If additional evidence as to this point is desired, it may be found in a comparative study of two branches of the service differing so widely in their functions as the quartermaster corps and the marine corps. In view of the fact that the quartermaster corps is essentially the business organization of the army, and that the Jewish recruits, as a class, undoubtedly possess greater business training and greater capacity for organization than their non-Jewish comrades, it may reasonably have been expected that this branch of the service would possess a far higher percentage of Jews than all other branches. The evidence at hand, however, points definitely to the contrary. While the personnel in the quartermaster corps constituted 6.2 per cent of the army as a whole, it constituted only 5.9 per cent of the Jewish total.

The marine corps, on the other hand, is essentially a fighting organization. Every man in this corps is a volunteer, enlisted with the full knowledge that the corps would be sent wherever the fighting was thickest. Now of the 65,000 marine corps records examined to date about 2300, or 3.4 per cent, proved to be Jewish, while probably an additional 200 were likewise Jewish, but not definitely traceable by our methods. And of these 2500 Jewish marines, fully 30 per cent joined immediately after June 5, 1918, the day when it was published to the world that the marines were the American "shock troops" at Chateau-Thierry.

QUALITIES

How did these thousands of Jews in the American forces measure up—as soldiers, as comrades, as men? The volume of spontaneous evidence as to the high quality of Jewish courage, loyalty, and devotion on the battlefield is most impressive. No men are better qualified to speak of Jewish heroism than those Americans, non-Jews, who fought side by side with them, commanded them as officers, stayed with them in the trenches, shared with them the miseries of war, and rejoiced with them in the glories of victory. It is no secret that when the regular army officers were, in the early days of mobilization, confronted with the problem of converting the city-bred Jews into what they conceived to be proper soldier material, they were openly sceptical, not to say apprehensive. But it was not long before the ready wit of the Jewish recruits, their cool intelligence, their amenability to discipline, and the deadly seriousness with which they threw themselves into the work, convinced all sceptics of their worth.

It is reported that one of the officers at Camp Upton, who was assigned to a unit which contained 60 per cent of Jewish recruits, at first made no effort to conceal his dismay. Two months later, however, when a call was sent to him to transfer a selected number of his men to Camp Gordon, he was careful to retain practically all of the Jewish boys in his command. He had learned to appraise them accurately; and his revised opinion of their qualities was later thoroughly justified by the conduct of his men in Argonne.

Lieutenant-Colonel Douglas Campbell, addressing a meeting at the Educational Alliance, New York, on April 8, 1919, declared: "The Jewish boys of the 77th Division were the best soldiers on earth. They have participated in the greatest battles, and emerged sound. The 77th Division, of which 40 per cent were Jewish young men, was the only American division to reach the Aisne, after having penetrated into the German lines further than any other division. The fathers, mothers, sisters, and brothers of the Jewish boys may well be proud of them."

The tribute paid by Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, of the 26th Division, is particularly interesting. Speaking at the Temple Ohav Sholem, in Boston, he said: "I want to tell you that the Jews made an enviable record . . . . I remember instances where formerly intolerant Gentiles asked that the Jews be made officers in order that they might be leaders. Many a Jewish lad of the 27th gave his life with a smile on his face."

Captain Harrigan, of the 307th Infantry, is a particular admirer of the Jewish "doughboy." "Too much cannot be said for the boys who went across from the East Side," he has frequently declared. "They stood out for conspicuous bravery and utter disregard for self when they went up against the Germans in France. I wish I could remember all the things that came to my attention when we were in action."

On another occasion, discussing the comparative qualities of the city-bred soldiers, Captain Harrigan said: "They have splendid nervous endurance. They can stand things. But that is not all—not by any means. One particular thing that was proven by the 77th was that there is no better soldier anywhere than the Jewish boy. About 40 per cent of the division were Jews, and what fighters they were! They put into their fighting the same qualities that the Jew puts into business or professional work, and that make him successful; in other words, they use their keen Jewish intelligence in the business of fighting just as they would use it in any other business. The Jew is essentially intelligent, keen, determined to make good; the Jewish boys of the 77th fought just that way. They would go after a concealed German battery just as they would go after the conquest of some business difficulty—and they would get it!”

In a similar vein runs the testimony of Colonel Whittlesey, who won immortal fame for himself and the “Lost Battalion” in the Argonne. “We officers who served with the 77th Division,” Colonel Whittlesey told the present writer, “have had an opportunity to know many Jewish soldiers, and have come to think of them with great admiration. Indeed, I feel reluctant to comment on the bravery of the East Side men, for it is something we have learned to take for granted. But some of them stand out so unforgettably in the memory that it is impossible not to speak of them. There was one man, for example, who seemed the worst possible soldier-material—thick-set, stolid-looking, extremely alien in face and speech—and yet on that day when we were holding the bank of the Vesle he performed feats as a runner that, to my mind, place him in the front ranks. To communicate with our commands it was necessary to send a runner up hill and down hill, through thick underbrush, in a terrain that would have been difficult enough to cover under ordinary circumstances. Under fire this became almost impossible, yet this boy volunteered four different times, and, using reserves of wit and cunning, of physical pluck and nervous endurance that no one would have suspected him to possess, made the trip successfully every time."

HONORS

Evidence as to the high quality of Jewish courage in the war is to be found in the official citations for gallantry in action or devotion "above and beyond the call of duty." Of such honors we have so far recorded some 600 to the credit of American Jews, of which 378 were conferred by the American command, 162 by the French command, and the remainder by other Allied commands. What proportion these six hundred bear to the total of such honors conferred we have, as yet, no means of knowing; but all available evidence would seem to indicate that they greatly exceed the proportion of Jews in the service.

Of the rare Congressional Medal of Honor, the highest distinction awarded by the United States, the Jews have at least three to their credit:

Sergeant Sydney G. Gumpertz, of Chicago, a volunteer in the 132d Infantry, who, on September 26, 1918, in the Bois de Forges, when his advancing line was held up by a machine-gun nest, left his platoon and started, with two other soldiers, through a heavy barrage toward the enemy. Although his two companions were soon killed by a bursting shell, he "continued on alone in the face of direct fire from the machine gun, jumped into the nest, and silenced the gun, capturing nine of the crew" (General Order No. 16, January 22, 1919). Sergeant Gumpertz also received the Medaille Militaire, the highest French honor, and the Croix de Guerre with palm.

A similar exploit earned this medal for Sergeant Benjamin Kaufman, of the 308th Infantry. In the Argonne Forest, on October 4, 1918, he had taken out a platoon to check a machine-gun company. Although separated from his platoon, and his right arm shattered by a machine-gun bullet, "without hesitation he advanced on the German line, throwing grenades with his left hand, and charging with an empty pistol. Thus he scattered the machine-gun crew, and brought the gun and one prisoner back with him to the first-aid station."

Particularly human and moving a story is that of William Sawelson, of the 312th Infantry, who, "in action at Grand Pre, October 26, 1918, hearing a wounded man in a shell-hole some distance away calling for water, upon his own initiative left shelter, and crawled through heavy machine-gun fire to where the man lay, giving him what water he had in his own canteen. He then went back to his own shell-hole, obtained more water and was returning to the wounded man, when he was killed by a machine-gun bullet" (General Order No. 16, January 22, 1919). The medal was awarded after Sawelson's death and presented to his father, Jacob L. Sawelson, at Governor's Island.

The act for which Sawelson was cited—that of risking his own life to save a wounded comrade—is recorded so frequently in the citations of Jewish soldiers that we were prompted to make an investigation of all citations, with a view to determining whether, in fact, this supreme quality of self-sacrifice was a distinguishing characteristic of Jewish soldiers in action. For this purpose we selected for careful study exactly 200 citations of which the official text was available, and—at random—an equal number of citations of non-Jews. It was found that, although these citations described every conceivable act of valor that the circumstances of modern warfare have called forth, they were nevertheless classifiable into six or seven main groups. The outstanding characteristic of each group and the number of Jews and non-Jews in each are indicated below:

	Jews		Non-Jews
	Total	%	Total	%
Stubborn Devotion to Duty: Persistence in carrying out a task, in spite of danger and above and beyond the call of duty. Refusal to leave the field, though wounded.	52	26	63	31.5
Acts of Mercy. Risking Own Life to Save Wounded: In utter disregard of personal safety, leaving shelter and advancing under fire, to administer aid to wounded, or to carry wounded to places of safety. Aiding other wounded, though himself severely wounded and in great pain, refusing medical treatment until other wounded are treated.	64	32	46	23
Runner and Reconnaissance Duty: Volunteering for mission as runner, after others had been shot down, and when going meant almost certain death. Successful accomplishment of mission often saved situation.	37	18.5	26	13
Coolness Under Fire and in Other Dangerous Circumstances: Exhibiting self-composure in critical moment, thereby saving a dangerous situation.	8	4	13	6.5
Intelligence in Action. Resourcefulness: Display of sound judgment and cleverness, instrumental in performing acts of heroism and leading to important results. Exercise of initiative and assumption of responsibility in critical moments. Efficiency in planning and execution of a vital task.	24	12	14	7
Intrepidity in Action. Dare-deviltry: Privates who alone, or with few companions, conquered large group of enemy. Officers who led small detachment which vanquished much larger number.	9	4.5	28	14
Miscellaneous: Unclassifiable.	6	3	10	5
	200	100.00	200	100.00

It will be noticed that in some of the classes the Jews and the non-Jews are approximately even. There is little to choose between them in stubborn devotion to duty, in coolness under dangerous circumstances, and in runner duty. In some of the other classes, however, the difference is striking. In acts of mercy, in risking their own lives to save the lives of wounded comrades, the Jews excel in the proportion of 64 to 45. In intelligence and resourcefulness in action they excel by 24 to 14. In dare-deviltry, in sheer "bull courage" which forges ahead without knowing, or perhaps realizing, the cost, the Jews are easily excelled.

This observation, although it is not advanced as conclusive in any sense, nevertheless demonstrates so well what may have been expected of the Jewish character that it is considered at least worth recording at this point.

CASUALTIES

At the present writing (August, 1919), the War Department is still revising its casualty lists. Any definitive statement as to the number of Jews who have made the supreme sacrifice for their country, or who have been wounded in battle, is therefore impossible. The office of Jewish War Records at present, however, has the records of 2500 deaths, of whom some 1300 were killed in action, 390 died of wounds, and 800 died of accident, disease, and other causes. The list, however, is known to be far from complete, it being estimated that probably 1000 additional names will be recorded in the near future. In other words, the total of Jewish deaths will probably aggregate 3500, or about 5 per cent of the total American deaths recorded to date.

Of wounded there are at present about 8000 on file, with a possible increment of an additional 4000 to be incorporated.

Altogether, therefore, it may be noted that the number of Jews who have either given their lives for their country, or shed their blood for the American cause, will probably aggregate from 15,000 to 16,000.

* * * * *

In conclusion, it has become apparent, from the information now available, that the record of Jewish War Service, when fully developed, will demonstrate incontestably that the Jews of America have contributed their full quota to the winning of the war, and a generous margin beyond their quota; that they have enlisted cheerfully, fought gallantly, and died bravely for the United States. Those who knew the quality of Jewish loyalty needed no proof of this. They knew that the qualities which had enabled the Jew to survive through the centuries—his capacity to endure, without breaking, prolonged and intense nerve strain; his qualities of initiative, his elasticity of mind, his capacity for organization, and above all, his idealism—would make him a worthy fighter in America's cause. In this they have not been disappointed. But to communicate this knowledge to the outside world it becomes necessary to establish the known facts on the soundest possible foundations. This the present record promises to accomplish.

THE PEACE CONFERENCE AND RIGHTS OF MINORITIES

The following paragraphs, which are excerpted from various documents emanating from the Peace Conference, deal with the rights of persons "who differ from the majority of the population in race, language or religion." The vital interest which these excerpts have for the Jews of the world, in general, and for the Jewish populations of the countries concerned, in particular, is patent.

I. THE TREATY WITH GERMANY

(Signed on June 28, 1919)

ARTICLE 86.—The Czecho-Slovak State accepts and agrees to embody in a treaty with the principal Allied and Associated Powers such provisions as may be deemed necessary by the said powers to protect the interests of inhabitants of that State who differ from the majority of the population in race, language or religion.

ARTICLE 93.—Poland accepts and agrees to embody in a treaty with the principal Allied and Associated Powers such provisions as may be deemed necessary by the said powers to protect the interests of inhabitants of Poland who differ from the majority of the population in race, language or religion.

In the reply of the Allied and Associated Powers to the counter-proposals of the German delegates, which was delivered to the latter on June 16, 1919, the following passages appear:

Under Part I, The League of Nations.

III. The Allied and Associated Powers are prepared to accord guarantees, under the protection of the League of Nations, for the educational, religious and cultural rights of German minorities in territories transferred from the German Empire to the new states created by the Treaty. They take note of the statement of the German Delegates that Germany is determined to treat foreign minorities within her territory according to the same principles.

Under Poland, Upper Silesia.

The restoration of the Polish State is a great historical act which cannot be achieved without breaking many ties and causing temporary difficulty and distress to many individuals. But it has been the special concern of the Allied and Associated Powers to provide for the adequate protection of those Germans who will find themselves transferred to Poland, as well as of all other religious, racial or linguistic minorities. There is in the Treaty a clause by which there will be secured to them the enjoyment of religious liberty and also the right to use their own language and that of having their children educated in their own language. They will not be subjected to persecution similar to that which Poles had to endure from the Prussian State.

II. THE TREATY WITH POLAND

CHAPTER I

ARTICLE 1.—Poland undertakes that the stipulations contained in Articles 2 to 8 of this Chapter shall be recognized as fundamental laws, and that no law, regulation or official action shall conflict or interfere with these stipulations, nor shall any law, regulation or official action prevail over them.

ARTICLE 2.—Poland undertakes to assure full and complete protection of life and liberty to all inhabitants of Poland without distinction of birth, nationality, language, race or religion.

All inhabitants of Poland shall be entitled to the free exercise, whether public or private, of any creed, religion or belief, whose practices are not inconsistent with public order or public morals.

ARTICLE 3.—Poland admits and declares to be Polish nationals ipso facto and without the requirement of any formality German, Austrian, Hungarian or Russian nationals habitually resident at the date of the coming into force of the present Treaty in territory which is or may be recognized as forming part of Poland, but subject to any provision in the Treaties of Peace with Germany or Austria respectively relating to persons who became resident in such territory after a specified date.

Nevertheless, the persons referred to above who are over eighteen years of age will be entitled under the conditions contained in the said Treaties to opt for any other nationality which may be open to them. Option by a husband will cover his wife and option by parents will cover their children under eighteen years of age.

Persons who have exercised the above right to opt must, except where it is otherwise provided in the Treaty of Peace with Germany, transfer within the succeeding twelve months their place of residence to the State for which they have opted. They will be entitled to retain their immovable property in Polish territory. They may carry with them their movable property of every description. No export duties may be imposed upon them in connection with the removal of such property.

ARTICLE 4.—Poland admits and declares to be Polish nationals ipso facto and without the requirement of any formality persons of German, Austrian, Hungarian or Russian nationality who were born in the said territory of parents habitually resident there, even if at the date of the coming into force of the present Treaty they are not themselves habitually resident there.

Nevertheless, within two years after the coming into force of the present Treaty, these persons may make a declaration before the competent Polish authorities in the country in which they are resident, stating that they abandon Polish nationality, and they will then cease to be considered as Polish nationals. In this connection a declaration by a husband will cover his wife, and a declaration by parents will cover their children under eighteen years of age.

ARTICLE 5.—Poland undertakes to put no hindrance in the way of the exercise of the right which the persons concerned have, under the Treaties concluded or to be concluded by the Allied and Associated Powers with Germany, Austria, Hungary or Russia, to choose whether or not they will acquire Polish nationality.

ARTICLE 6.—All persons born in Polish territory who are not born nationals of another State shall ipso facto become Polish nationals.

ARTICLE 7.—All Polish nationals shall be equal before the law and shall enjoy the same civil and political rights without distinction as to race, language or religion.

Differences of religion, creed or confession shall not prejudice any Polish national in matters relating to the enjoyment of civil or political rights, as for instance admission to public employments, functions and honours, or the exercise of professions and industries.

No restriction shall be imposed on the free use by any Polish national of any language in private intercourse, in commerce, in religion, in the press or in publications of any kind, or at public meetings.

Notwithstanding any establishment by the Polish Government of an official language, adequate facilities shall be given to Polish nationals of non-Polish speech for the use of their language, either orally or in writing, before the courts.

ARTICLE 8.—Polish nationals who belong to racial, religious or linguistic minorities shall enjoy the same treatment and security in law and in fact as the other Polish nationals. In particular they shall have an equal right to establish, manage and control at their own expense charitable, religious and social institutions, schools and other educational establishments, with the right to use their own language and to exercise their religion freely therein.

ARTICLE 9.—Poland will provide in the public educational system in towns and districts in which a considerable proportion of Polish nationals of other than Polish speech are residents adequate facilities for ensuring that in the primary schools the instruction shall be given the children of such Polish nationals through the medium of their own language. This provision shall not prevent the Polish Government from making the teaching of the Polish language obligatory in the said schools.

In towns and districts where there is a considerable proportion of Polish nationals belonging to racial, religious or linguistic minorities, these minorities shall be assured an equitable share in the enjoyment and application of the sums which may be provided out of public funds under the State, municipal or other budget, for educational, religious or charitable purposes.

The provisions of this Article shall apply to Polish citizens of German speech only in that part of Poland which was German territory in August, 1914.

ARTICLE 10.—Educational Committees appointed locally by the Jewish communities of Poland will, subject to the general control of the State, provide for the distribution of the proportional share of public funds allocated to Jewish schools in accordance with Article 9, and for the organization and management of these schools.

The provisions of Article 9 concerning the use of languages in schools shall apply to these schools.

ARTICLE 11.—Jews shall not be compelled to perform any act which constitutes a violation of their Sabbath, nor shall they be placed under any disability by reason of their refusal to attend courts of law or to perform any legal business on their Sabbath. This provision however shall not exempt Jews from such obligations as shall be imposed upon all other Polish citizens for the necessary purposes of military service, national defence or the preservation of public order.

Poland declares her intention to refrain from ordering or permitting elections, whether general or local, to be held on a Saturday, nor will registration for electoral or other purposes be compelled to be performed on a Saturday.

ARTICLE 12.—Poland agrees that the stipulations in the foregoing Articles, so far as they affect persons belonging to racial, religious or linguistic minorities, constitute obligations of international concern and shall be placed under the guarantee of the League of Nations. They shall not be modified without the assent of a majority of the Council of the League of Nations. The United States, the British Empire, France, Italy and Japan hereby agree not to withhold their assent from any modification in these Articles which is in due form assented to by a majority of the Council of the League of Nations.

Poland agrees that any Member of the Council of the League of Nations shall have the right to bring to the attention of the Council any infraction, or any danger of infraction, of any of these obligations, and that the Council may thereupon take such action and give such direction as it may deem proper and effective in the circumstances.

Poland further agrees that any difference of opinion as to questions of law or fact arising out of these Articles between the Polish Government and any one of the Principal Allied and Associated Powers or any other Power, a Member of the Council of the League of Nations, shall be held to be a dispute of an international character under Article 14 of the Covenant of the League of Nations. The Polish Government hereby consents that any such dispute shall, if the other party thereto demands, be referred to the Permanent Court of International Justice. The decision of the Permanent Court shall be final and shall have the same force and effect as an award under Article 13 of the Covenant.

Following is the text of the letter addressed to I. J. Paderewski by Georges Clemenceau, the President of the Conference, on June 24, 1919, transmitting to him the Treaty to be signed by Poland under Article 93 of the Treaty with Germany:

SIR:

On behalf of the Supreme Council of the Principal Allied and Associated Powers, I have the honour to communicate to you herewith, in its final form, the text of the Treaty which, in accordance with Article 93 of the Treaty of Peace with Germany, Poland will be asked to sign on the occasion of the confirmation of her recognition as an independent State and of the transference to her of the territories included in the former German Empire which are assigned to her by the said Treaty. The principal provisions were communicated to the Polish Delegation in Paris in May last, and were subsequently communicated direct to the Polish Government through the French Minister at Warsaw. The Council have since had the advantage of the suggestions which you were good enough to convey to them in your memorandum of the 16th June, and as the result of a study of these suggestions modifications have been introduced in the text of the Treaty. The Council believe that it will be found that by these modifications the principal points to which attention was drawn in your memorandum have, in so far as they relate to specific provisions of the Treaty, been adequately covered.

In formally communicating to you the final decision of the Principal Allied and Associated Powers in this matter, I should desire to take this opportunity of explaining in a more formal manner than has hitherto been done the considerations by which the Principal Allied and Associated Powers have been guided in dealing with the question.

1. In the first place, I would point out that this Treaty does not constitute any fresh departure. It has for long been the established procedure of the public law of Europe that when a State is created, or even when large accessions of territory are made to an established State, the joint and formal recognition by the Great Powers should be accompanied by the requirement that such State should, in the form of a binding international convention, undertake to comply with certain principles of government. This principle, for which there are numerous other precedents, received the most explicit sanction when, at the last great assembly of European Powers—the Congress of Berlin—the sovereignty and independence of Serbia, Montenegro, and Roumania were recognized. It is desirable to recall the words used on this occasion by the British, French, Italian, and German Plenipotentiaries, as recorded in the Protocol of the 28th June, 1878:

"Lord Salisbury recognises the independence of Serbia, but is of opinion that it would be desirable to stipulate in the Principality the great principle of religious liberty.

* * * * *

"M. Waddington believes that it is important to take advantage of this solemn opportunity to cause the principles of religious liberty to be affirmed by the representatives of Europe. His Excellency adds that Serbia, who claims to enter the European family on the same basis as other States, must previously recognise the principles which are the basis of social organisation in all States of Europe and accept them as a necessary condition of the favour which she asks for."

* * * * *

"Prince Bismark, associating himself with the French proposal, declares that the assent of Germany is always assured to any motion favourable to religious liberty.

* * * * *

"Count de Launay says that, in the name of Italy, he desires to adhere to the principle of religious liberty, which forms one of the essential bases of the institutions in his country, and that he associates himself with the declarations made on this subject by Germany, France, and Great Britain.

"Count Andrassy expresses himself to the same effect, and the Ottoman Plenipotentiaries raise no objection.

"Prince Bismark, after having summed up the results of the vote, declares that Germany admits the independence of Serbia, but on condition that religious liberty will be recognised in the Principality. His Serene Highness adds that the Drafting Committee, when they formulate this decision, will affirm the connection established by the Conference between the proclamation of Serbian independence and the recognition of religious liberty."

2. The Principal Allied and Associated Powers are of opinion that they would be false to the responsibility which rests upon them if, on this occasion, they departed from what has become an established tradition. In this connection I must also recall to your consideration the fact that it is to the endeavours and sacrifices of the Powers in whose name I am addressing you that the Polish nation owes the recovery of its independence. It is by their decision that Polish sovereignty is being re-established over the territories in question and that the inhabitants of these territories are being incorporated in the Polish nation. It is on the support which resources of these Powers will afford to the League of Nations that, for the future, Poland will to a large extent depend for the secure possession of these territories. There rests, therefore, upon these Powers an obligation, which they cannot evade, to secure in the most permanent and solemn form guarantees for certain essential rights which will afford to the inhabitants the necessary protection, whatever changes may take place in the internal constitution of the Polish State.

It is in accordance with this obligation that Clause 93 was inserted in the Treaty of Peace with Germany. This clause relates only to Poland, but a similar clause applies the same principles to Czecho-Slovakia, and other clauses have been inserted in the Treaty of Peace with Austria and will be inserted in those with Hungary and with Bulgaria, under which similar obligations will be undertaken by other States, which under those Treaties receive large accessions of territory.

The consideration of these facts will be sufficient to show that by the requirement addressed to Poland at the time when it receives in the most solemn manner the joint recognition of the re-establishment of its sovereignty and independence and when large accessions of territory are being assigned to it, no doubt is thrown upon the sincerity of the desire of the Polish Government and the Polish nation to maintain the general principles of justice and liberty. Any such doubt would be far from the intention of the Principal Allied and Associated Powers.

3. It is indeed true that the new Treaty differs in form from earlier Conventions dealing with similar matters. The change of form is a necessary consequence and an essential part of the new system of international relations which is now being built up by the establishment of the League of Nations. Under the older system the guarantee for the execution of similar provisions was vested in the Great Powers. Experience has shown that this was in practice ineffective, and it was also open to the criticism that it might give to the Great Powers, either individually or in combination, a right to interfere in the internal constitution of the States affected which could be used for political purposes. Under the new system the guarantee is entrusted to the League of Nations. The clauses dealing with this guarantee have been carefully drafted so as to make it clear that Poland will not be in any way under the tutelage of those Powers who are signatories to the Treaty.

I should desire, moreover, to point out to you that provision has been inserted in the Treaty by which disputes arising out of its provisions may be brought before the Court of the League of Nations. In this way differences which might arise will be removed from the political sphere and placed in the hands of a judicial court, and it is hoped that thereby an impartial decision will be facilitated, while at the same time any danger of political interference by the Powers in the internal affairs of Poland will be avoided.

4. The particular provisions to which Poland and the other States will be asked to adhere differ to some extent from those which were imposed on the new States at the Congress of Berlin. But the obligations imposed upon new States seeking recognition have at all times varied with the particular circumstances. The Kingdom of the United Netherlands in 1814 formally undertook precise obligations with regard to the Belgian provinces at the time annexed to the kingdom which formed an important restriction on the unlimited exercise of its sovereignty. It was determined at the establishment of the Kingdom of Greece that the Government of that State should take a particular form, viz., it should be both monarchical and constitutional; when Thessaly was annexed to Greece, it was stipulated that the lives, property, honour, religion and customs of those of the inhabitants of the localities ceded to Greece, who remained under the Hellenic administration should be scrupulously respected, and that they should enjoy exactly the same civil and political rights as Hellenic subjects of origin. In addition, very precise stipulations were inserted safeguarding the interests of the Mohammedan population of these territories.

The situation with which the Powers have now to deal is new, and experience has shown that new provisions are necessary. The territories now being transferred both to Poland and to other States inevitably include a large population speaking languages and belonging to races different from that of the people with whom they will be incorporated. Unfortunately, the races have been estranged by long years of bitter hostility. It is believed that these populations will be more easily reconciled to their new position if they knew that from the very beginning they have assured protection and adequate guarantees against any danger of unjust treatment or oppression. The very knowledge that these guarantees exist will, it is hoped, materially help the reconciliation which all desire, and will indeed do much to prevent the necessity of its enforcement.

5. To turn to the individual clauses of the present Treaty, Article 2 guarantees to all inhabitants those elementary rights, which are, as a matter of fact, secured in every civilized State. Clauses 3 to 6 are designed to insure that all the genuine residents in the territories now transferred to Polish sovereignty shall in fact be assured of the full privileges of citizenship. Articles 7 and 8, which are in accordance with precedent, provide against any discrimination against those Polish citizens who, by their religion, their language, or their race, differ from the large mass of the Polish population. It is understood that, far from raising any objection to the matter of these articles, the Polish Government have already, of their own accord, declared their firm intention of basing their institutions on the cardinal principles enunciated therein.

The following articles are of rather a different nature, in that they provide more special privileges to certain groups of those minorities. In the final revision of these latter articles, the Powers have been impressed by the suggestions made in your memorandum of the 16th June, and the articles have in consequence been subjected to some material modifications. In the final text of the Treaty it has been made clear that the special privileges accorded in Article 9 are extended to Polish citizens of German speech only in such parts of Poland as are, by the Treaty with Germany, transferred from Germany to Poland. Germans in other parts of Poland will be unable under this article to claim to avail themselves of these privileges. They will, therefore, in this matter be dependent solely on the generosity of the Polish Government, and will, in fact, be in the same position as German citizens of Polish speech in Germany.

6. Clauses 10 and 12 deal specifically with the Jewish citizens of Poland. The information at the disposal of the Principal Allied and Associated Powers as to the existing relations between the Jews and the other Polish citizens has led them to the conclusion that, in view of the historical development of the Jewish question and the great animosity aroused by it, special protection is necessary for the Jews in Poland. These clauses have been limited to the minimum which seems necessary under the circumstances of the present day, viz., the maintenance of Jewish schools and the protection of the Jews in the religious observance of their Sabbath. It is believed that these stipulations will not create any obstacle to the political unity of Poland. They do not constitute any recognition of the Jews as a separate political community within the Polish State. The educational provisions contain nothing beyond what is in fact provided in the educational institutions of many highly organized modern States. There is nothing inconsistent with the sovereignty of the State in recognizing and supporting schools in which children shall be brought up in the religious influences to which they are accustomed in their home. Ample safeguards against any use of non-Polish languages to encourage a spirit of national separation have been provided in the express acknowledgment that the provisions of this Treaty do not prevent the Polish State from making the Polish language obligatory in all its schools and educational institutions.

7. The economic clauses contained in Chapter II of the Treaty have been drafted with the view of facilitating the establishment of equitable commercial relations between independent Poland and the other Allied and Associated Powers. They include provisions for reciprocal diplomatic and consular representation, for freedom of transit, and for the adhesion of the Polish Government to certain international conventions.

In these clauses the Principal Allied and Associated Powers have not been actuated by any desire to secure for themselves special commercial advantages. It will be observed that the rights accorded to them by these clauses are extended equally to all States who are members of the League of Nations. Some of the provisions are of a transitional character, and have been introduced only with the necessary object of bridging over the short interval which must elapse before general regulations can be established by Poland herself or by commercial treaties or general conventions approved by the League of Nations.

In conclusion, I am to express to you, on behalf of the Allied and Associated Powers, the very sincere satisfaction which they feel at the re-establishment of Poland as an independent State. They cordially welcome the Polish nation on its re-entry into the family of nations. They recall the great services which the ancient Kingdom of Poland rendered to Europe both in public affairs and by its contributions to the progress of mankind, which is the common work of all civilized nations. They believe that the voice of Poland will add to the wisdom of their common deliberations in the cause of peace and harmony, that its influence will be used to further the spirit of liberty and justice, both in internal and external affairs, and that thereby it will help in the work of reconciliation between the nations which, with the conclusion of Peace, will be the common task of humanity.

The Treaty by which Poland solemnly declares before the world her determination to maintain the principles of justice, liberty, and toleration, which were the guiding spirit of the ancient Kingdom of Poland, and also receives in its most explicit and binding form the confirmation of her restoration to the family of independent nations, will be signed by Poland and by the Principal Allied and Associated Powers on the occasion of, and at the same time as, the signature of the Treaty of Peace with Germany.

I have, etc.,

CLEMENCEAU.

III. THE TREATY WITH AUSTRIA

Up to the time of printing, the full text of the proposed Treaty with Austria had not been made public. Following, however, are extracts from the official summary of the draft of that document dealing with the protection of racial, linguistic or religious minorities in Czecho-Slovakia, the Serb-Croat-Slovene State (Jugo-Slavia), Roumania, and Austria:

Czecho-Slovakia agrees to embody in a Treaty with the Principal Allied and Associated Powers such provision as they may deem necessary to protect racial, religious, or linguistic minorities.

The Serb-Croat-Slovene State agrees to a similar Treaty for the protection of minorities.

Roumania agrees to a similar treaty as to the protection of minorities.

In a series of special clauses Austria undertakes to bring her institutions into conformity with the principles of liberty and justice, and acknowledges that the obligations for the protection of minorities are matters of international concern over which the League of Nations has jurisdiction. She assures complete protection of life and liberty to all inhabitants of Austria, without distinction of birth, nationality, language, race or religion, together with the right of free exercise of any creed.

All Austrian nationals, without distinction of race, language, or religion, are to be equal before the law. No restrictions are to be imposed on the free use of any language in private or public, and reasonable facilities are to be given Austrian nationals of non-German speech for the use of their language before the Courts. Austrian nationals belonging to racial, religious, or linguistic minorities are to enjoy the same protection as other Austrian nationals, in particular with regard to schools and other educational establishments; and in districts where a considerable proportion of Austrian nationals of other than German speech are resident, facilities are to be given in schools for the instruction of children in their own language, and an equitable share of public funds is to be provided for the purpose. These provisions do not preclude the Austrian Government from making the teaching of German obligatory. They are to be embodied by Austria in her fundamental law as a Bill of Rights, and provisions regarding them are to be under the protection of the League of Nations.

IV. RUSSIA

The following passage is excerpted from the note of the four Powers, Great Britain, the United States, France, and Japan, addressed to Admiral Alexander Kolchak, head of the All-Russian Government at Omsk, on May 26, 1919:

Thirdly, that they will countenance no attempt to revise the special privilege of any class or order in Russia. The Allied and Associated Powers have noted with satisfaction the solemn declaration made by Admiral Kolchak and his associates that they have no intention of restoring the former land system. They feel that the principles to be followed in the solution of this and other internal questions must be left to the free decision of the Russian Constituent Assembly. But they wish to be assured that those whom they are prepared to assist stand for the civil and religious liberty of all Russian citizens and will make no attempt to reintroduce the régime which the revolution has destroyed.

Following is the part of Admiral Kolchak's reply, received in Paris on June 5, 1919, which refers to this point:

8. Having set ourselves the task of re-establishing order and justice and of insuring individual security to the population, which is tired of trials and exactions, the Government affirms the equality before the law of all citizens without any special privilege. All shall receive, without distinction of origin or of religion, the protection of the State and of the law.

EVENTS IN 5679

JUNE 1, 1918, TO MAY 31, 1919

INTRODUCTION

The period covered by the chronology which follows lies partly within the time of war and partly after the armistice. It is thus a period of transition, and the events recorded exhibit clearly the effect of the uncertainty, confusion, and rapid transformation, characteristic of such a time, upon the life of the Jewish people throughout the world. Confusion and turmoil are most apparent in eastern Europe where old frontiers are being rapidly effaced and new boundaries created, and where hitherto suppressed peoples are experiencing a rebirth of intense national feeling, as a result of which many new wars on a smaller scale have taken the place of the titanic world struggle which ended but yesterday. In consequence of the many battles, sieges, and invasions, there exist in numerous localities a laxity of public order and a bewildering political uncertainty more or less approaching anarchy.

Due to a combination of political, economic, social, and religious factors, the Jewries of eastern Europe appear to be among the greatest sufferers from these chaotic conditions. Wherever we turn, we find the Jews being ground between the upper and nether millstones. The explanation of this lamentable condition is not far to seek. Several generations will come and go before the non-Jewish peoples of eastern Europe will be able to live down the inimical attitude toward their Jewish compatriots which was inculcated in them by the spectacle of a people upon whom the official stamp of outlawry has been placed in the shape of a mass of special laws, interpretations, decisions, and regulations calculated to lead to their ultimate annihilation. It will be many decades before the Jews of the erstwhile Russian empire will recover from the effects of the long oppressive and repressive régime of Czars, Ignatievs, Pobiedonostsevs, and Stolypins; it will be many years before the peoples of eastern Europe will forget the Pale of Settlement, the educational percentage norm, and the thousand and one commercial, industrial, and domiciliary restrictions which hedged the Jews about for so many generations. The true emancipation of the Jews of eastern Europe will come only with the emancipation of the non-Jews from the rôle of oppressor, from the psychology of the persecutor.

The bitter fruits of Czarism are now being gathered everywhere. In that part of Russia known as Central or "Soviet" Russia, we find the Jews oppressed as bourgeois, on the one hand, by the Bolsheviki, and massacred or proscribed, on the other hand, to be made to expiate the sins of the few leaders of the Maximalists who happen to be of Jewish origin. It does not matter that for each Trotsky, Kamenev, and Sverdlov, there are dozens of Vinavers, Dans, Minors, Gotzes, and Sliosbergs; it is of no moment that the Jews are bearing their share of proscription, oppression, and confiscation at the hands of the Bolshevik oligarchy. No, it was not in vain that the Czar and his ministers taught the ingenious stratagem of making the Jews the scapegoat of every misfortune that befell Russia.

In Poland, the artificial breach consciously created between Jews and Poles by the common oppressor, has resulted in a deep-seated mutual suspicion and distrust, which has been accentuated by the Polish chauvinists. Here, too, the Jews are being made to suffer avowedly on the ground of the prominence of men of Jewish birth in the Bolshevik dictatorship. Added to this is the fact that Poland is warring against all her neighbors—against Lithuania on the north, Russia on the east, and Ukraine on the south and south-east. As a consequence we have frequent outbreaks of anti-Jewish riots, wholesale looting of Jewish commercial and domestic property, summary executions without trial, levying of "contributions," taking of hostages, arson, rapine, and murder, which, at such times and under such conditions, fall to the lot of an unprotected minority regarded by the constituted authorities as even less than step-children of the state.

In the Ukraine, this condition of affairs is reported to be many times worse than in Poland. In that region, political chaos prevails, and the very existence of the Jewish population is in jeopardy. Some notion of the magnitude of a single pogrom may be had from the statement of a representative of the Ukrainian Government that it had appropriated the sum of three million rubles to indemnify the "accidental victims" of the riots which took place at Berditchev last January. The latest reports from reputable sources place the number of Jews who have lost their lives in Ukrainian riots and pogroms at upwards of one hundred and twenty thousand.

But little is known of the condition of our coreligionists in Lithuania and in what were formerly the Baltic provinces of the Russian empire. Although the Lithuanian and Lettish peoples appear to be actuated by an enlightened self-interest in their attitude toward the Jews, to be inclined to admit them to the state councils, and to give them a share in the government, yet sporadic anti-Jewish outbreaks are not altogether absent in this region. Here, too, the Jews suffered at the hands of both camps in the sanguinary struggles between the Bolsheviks and their opponents.

In Roumania, our brethren appear to have been free from any pogroms on a large scale, although the anti-Jewish agitation which has always existed in that country is still in progress. True to the precedent set after the Treaty of Berlin, in 1878, the several attempts of the Roumanian politicians at the ostensible emancipation of the Jews, both after the pledge made in the Treaty of Bucharest with Germany, and later in an attempt to anticipate the action of the Peace Conference, were so insincere and so cynical as to have called forth the indignation of all fair-minded statesmen and publicists.

The economic conditions of our brethren throughout eastern Europe are so degraded as to beggar description. The representatives of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, who spent several months in investigating these conditions, are unanimous in their verdict that the Jewry of the world has never before been faced by such indescribable destitution and poverty. The task of reconstruction which lies before us is huge enough to overtax all the philanthropic resources of the more fortunate countries of western Europe and America for at least a generation.

These poignant sufferings of our people completely overshadow and render almost nugatory their feeble attempts at communal reorganization and reconstruction, their many conferences and congresses with their resolutions, pronunciamientos, and memorials. Events in Jewish communal life, therefore, occupy but little space in the following pages as compared with the bare recital of attacks and pogroms. These have served to draw our people together for common defence, and we see the result in the numerous national councils, that have been organized in the various countries, and in the growth of the Zionist movement, which has been stimulated by the appearance of its program as a subject for international discussion at the Peace Conference, and by the sympathetic attitude manifested toward it by the governments of a number of countries. But these reconstructive, healing, and consolidating influences are pitifully inadequate when compared to the immeasurable misfortune which has befallen half of our race.

The picture becomes brighter as we pass westward, and yet here, too, it is not lacking in shadows. The decline in the military fortunes of the Central Empires was the signal for the blazing-up of anti-Jewish feelings which had always smouldered there. The various revolutions which have occurred in Austria, in Germany, and in Hungary, with their unsettling effects on public life, have served to give free sway to the passions of the bigoted and reactionary elements in those countries, leading in some cases to violent outbreaks. Due to the war, we have had very little authentic information of the life of the Jews in these countries for the past three years, but the few reports that have been received indicate that they have borne their share of the heavy sacrifices and intense suffering which have been the lot of the entire population.

The hopeful forecasts of the political future of Palestine, the assurance that it will at least have an enlightened and free government, under whose benign influence and protection the Jewish settlements in that country will be able to increase and prosper, have filled the Jews of the Holy Land with enthusiasm, and they are setting to work with a will to reorganize and reconstruct their communal and educational institutions. Thousands of refugees from Turkish oppression are returning to Palestine, new schools are being opened, new asylums for the orphans and aged are being established, the corner-stone of a Hebrew University has been laid, and new hospitals and dispensaries are opening their doors.

The western Jewries have been completely absorbed by three outstanding activities. During the months of the war, they were bending all their energies to bear their share of the responsibilities of their respective nations, and at the same time to bring what help they could to their suffering brethren in the east. After the conclusion of hostilities, the Jewish communities of western Europe and America strained every effort to secure from the Peace Conference a charter of liberty for the Jews, as well as for all other racial and religious minorities, in all new states and in those to which new territory was to be annexed. The success of the Jewish delegations to the Peace Conference in achieving this aim is demonstrated in the opening clauses of the Treaty with Poland (see above, pp. 157-160), similar clauses will form part of the treaties with Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary, Jugo-Slavia, and Roumania. In these charters of liberty, by which minorities may appeal from injustice and discrimination at the hands of their governments to the League of Nations, lies the hope of the future regeneration of our down-trodden and persecuted brethren with the consequent unhampered development of the principles and institutions of Judaism.

ACTIVITY IN BEHALF OF JEWS OF EASTERN EUROPE:—
 NOVEMBER 10. New York City: At twelfth annual meeting of the American Jewish Committee, Judge Julian W. Mack reads following cablegram received by the Zionist Organization of America: "Received alarming news from absolutely reliable sources. Jews of all east-European countries threatened by greatest danger of pogroms. Riots in country and approaching demobilization lead to general anarchy of which Jews will be first victims. Wild agitation rousing basest instincts everywhere especially Roumania-Poland. In Duminica Poprului, circulated by authorities amongst peasants, Minister of Education recommends cruel practices to force Jews to emigrate. The well-known politician Mille preaches boycott against aliens (meaning Jews) severer than in Poland. Posters incite population slaughter Jews. Pogroms expected to break out any moment. Black Hundred receiving arms from army while Jewish self-defence impossible for lack of arms. Also in Poland agitation for pogroms. At Warsaw Jews attacked in streets, and shops demolished, plundered. Worse pogroms than 1905 dreaded. Chief Commander of Polish forces, General Vitold Orski, in proclamation October 8, denounced Jews as leaders of Bolshevism, demands as hostages all Jewish representatives, corporations, and municipal councils, all rabbis and directors of schools, and synagogues to be shot moment of beginning Bolshevik activity. In this minute of panic and agony, Jewish population, seeking protection from cruel excesses, regards as only hope immediate effective international intervention. It must be made clear claims of only such nations will be recognized who by treatment of national minorities prove worthy of political national independence. Only immediate acting can save millions of Jews from terrible danger. In name of these millions we urge for help. Fulfil your duty, help save our brethren." All reports agree that pogroms are widespread, are accompanied by pillage and atrocious acts, and are abetted by local authorities and militia. In some villages not a single Jewish home is left unlooted; looters destroy what they cannot remove; Jews are left without shelter, food, or clothing; bedding and linen taken. In Warsaw many Jews are injured; students and intelligenza encourage mob by accusing Jews of Bolshevism. Report received at The Hague from Jewish National Council at Vienna states that indescribable acts followed Polish occupation of Lemberg. Pogrom lasted from Friday morning until Sunday noon. Deputation appeared before officials and pleaded in vain for intervention. Legionaries marched through Jewish quarter in double file, and pillaged systematically, breaking into business houses with bayonets and hand grenades, surrounding homes, and burning them down; Jews who tried to save themselves by jumping out of windows, were shot; about ten thousand left without shelter; eighty per cent of Jewish population ruined; eighty Jewish houses razed; several Jews killed; three synagogues destroyed.—JANUARY 24. Budapest: Convention of Hungarian Zionist Organization adopts resolutions thanking the powers for their sympathy with Zionism and expressing regret that, during the war, anti-Semitism has superseded the former liberalism of Hungary.—30. Sa'toralja Ujhely (Hungary): Gendarmes detain all Jews in the streets, stop prayers in the synagogue, and drive congregation to the police station, charging them with profiteering. All persons arrested prove their innocence and are released. Local community requests that Jewish deputies demand satisfaction for the insult. Count Szechenyi, the prefect, states, at meeting of the administrative committee, that the action against the Jews had been ordered by the highest authorities and carried out in his absence and without his knowledge, and that he has resigned in protest.—SEPTEMBER 6. Vienna: Dr. Stern, at meeting of the Jewish Communal Council, reads memorial to the Government declaring that, despite many insults, the Jews, out of regard to the prestige of the Dual Monarchy, had heretofore refrained from protesting openly, but that Jews no longer held themselves responsible for the consequences of the open hostilities against them, and are obliged to organize self-defence committees.—Four hundred Austro-Hungarian Jewish communities adopt resolutions protesting against pogrom agitation carried on throughout the empire with the knowledge and even with the help of the police and other authorities.—16. Dr. Nagy, Hungarian Food Minister, replying to the bishop, at a convention of Protestant Churches, warns the churches against the growing religious intolerance, and appeals to them to stand aloof from the agitation. Dr. H. P. Chajes, new chief rabbi of Vienna, in audience with emperor, asserts that Jewish masses in Galicia regard themselves as a nation, and that national autonomy is essential to the amelioration of their condition.—Bureau of the Hungarian Jewish Communities issues manifesto declaring that all classes of Jews are grieved at the latest display of Jew-hatred by the police and military authorities, who profaned Jewish places of worship, set aside rights of Jews as citizens, and violated their personal safety; that they feel justly offended at accusations made about their share in the war and at the silence of those officials whose duty it is to repudiate the libels; and that, though leading Jews endeavor to hold within bounds the just indignation of the Jewish masses, the Jews would, nevertheless, feel obliged to organize themselves to defend their interests as Jews and as citizens.—12. Vienna: Conference of the Austrian Zionists decides to create Jewish national council to include delegates from the Imperial Council and Landstag, and representatives of all Jewish national parties. ## 1. GENERAL EVENTS OF INTEREST TO JEWS

MAY 18-20. Conference of Jewish representatives of twenty-two labor organizations decides to institute Jewish National Labor Council of Great Britain for the purpose of organizing labor unions among Jews, of promoting co-operation among all labor organizations, of fostering Jewish national ideas among Jewish workers, to agitate for: (1) a national home for the Jewish people in Palestine; (2) national autonomy for Jews in countries where they are in large masses; (3) political and civil rights for Jews in all countries.—31. London: The Foreign Office issues following statement: "Reports of an anti-Semitic pogrom in Warsaw have reached His Majesty's Government. Should the reports prove true, His Majesty's Government could not but take a most serious view of such incidents. Such incidents are an encouragement to the forces of disorder and violence which are already threatening the life of every population between the Rhine and the Volga. The victory of freedom, just attained, will be of little avail if the world is to see the rule of force, so recently vanquished, reincarnated in other forms no less repugnant to the principles of liberty. The Allies and the United States stand ready to lend their whole resources to the work of restoring the economic bases of orderly and civilized life to those countries, but to those countries alone which show by their acts that they desire order and civilization. If any of the peoples of Central Europe give rein to the appetite of disorder, the Western democracies will be unable to do anything to promote their reconstruction. They will only be able to wait in patience and enforced inactivity for the restoration of conditions which will open the door to the processes of peace."—30. Memorial submitted by representative Mohammedans of India to the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and dealing with the future of Turkish empire in Asia, declares that if the Peace Conference were to decide to create Palestine into a self-governing state, the entire Muslim world would resent its being placed under any but a Muslim ruler; not only is Jerusalem intimately associated with the Mohammedan religion and its religious traditions, but in the long course of fourteen centuries the land has become covered with the memorials of this faith. Thus only one-seventh of the population of Palestine is Jewish.

Lucien Wolf, on behalf of the Joint Committee of the Board of Deputies and the Anglo-Jewish Association, addresses memorial to the Peace Conference, praying that: (1) in each chapter of the treaty which deals with creation of a new, or the enlargement of an old state in eastern Europe and western Asia, or with any other case in which such conditions of good government may appear to be necessary, there should be inserted clauses provid-

German authorities order Jewish athletic and boy scout organizations to suspend activities; headquarters closed.—Warsaw: Deutsche Warschauer Zeitung, official organ, publishes declaration contradicting the impression gained by the Jewish deputation, which met the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, that the latter favored the Jewish national claims in Poland; it declares that Germany has no intention of forcing any solution of Jewish questions on Poland, but is willing to leave it to the Polish state to determine whether Jews should be recognized as a nationality and receive cultural autonomy; moreover the German Government is aware that the Jews themselves are not united on the question of recognition as a nationality.—JULY 19. Representations made to M. Stetzky, Assistant Minister of the Interior, that the requirements for re-admission of refugees, namely, a knowledge of Polish and proof of having been permanently settled in Poland before the war, were harsh, as under the old régime the study of Polish was obstructed by the Tsars' officials, and documents issued by them contained no proofs of permanent residence in a city.—25. Polish Ministry for Religious Affairs resolves to open a modern rabbinical seminary at Warsaw to prepare rabbis for Poland.—NOVEMBER 1. Committee of the Polish Ministry of Education prepares scheme of reforms in the administration of the Jewish communities, by which civil affairs of the communities will be administered by secretaries, whose appointments will have to be confirmed by the Ministry. Warsaw: Parliament adopts resolution introduced by Stanislaw Grabski, a leader of the National Democratic party, providing for appointment of a Commission to study the Jewish question; resolution is regarded as Government's response to assertion of Noah Prilutski, Jewish deputy, that all Jews are systematically persecuted, no matter what their walk in life.—Economic conditions of three-quarters of Jews reported to be extremely poor. Drs. Paul Nathan and Arthur Hantke interview heads of Jewish communities in several towns, leaders of political parties, and members of the Government, with a view to formulating a policy for the regulation of the position of the Jews.—30. Premier Marghiloman states to deputation of Union of Native-Born Jews that he hopes to present a measure by which nine-tenths of the Roumanian Jews could become naturalized, but he would grant no facilities to Galician and Russian Jews to become citizens; that the Roumanian Constituent Assembly, and ultimately the Peace Conference, will have to find a fundamental solution of the Jewish question; that he is taking steps to suppress persecution of Jews in Bessarabia; that an investigation of the alleged outrages has been ordered.—SEPTEMBER 13. Drs. Paul Nathan and Arthur Hantke announce that, though they could not persuade the Government to agree to full emancipation, they, nevertheless, had obtained assurances that the naturalization law would be applied in a liberal spirit and that the vast majority of Jews would benefit by it.—Liberal party organs reproach the Conservative leaders for giving rights to the Jews. Conservative newspapers retort that Liberals have promised even broader concessions. Lumina, democratic organ, advocates complete emancipation of Jews in the interests of the state, expresses dissatisfaction with the naturalization law, and doubts the Premier's statement that the majority of Jews would benefit by it.—27. M. Arion, Minister for Foreign Affairs, announces that an endeavor to find a fundamental solution of the Jewish question will be made by the Constituent Assembly soon after its convocation. Union of Native-Born Jews presents memorials to cabinet and to parliament, pointing out defects of the present regulations and modifications required, and declaring that Jews would consider their question solved only when all obtain equal rights.—Government sets up commissions in every district to examine claims of Jews for naturalization. The crown solicitor has the right to oppose each claim, and both sides may appeal to a superior court.—OCTOBER 4. Resolution introduced in parliament demanding control by the Government of the Jewish communal organizations and schools. Minister for Foreign Affairs declares that the Government will not support the measure, because control of the institutions would necessarily entail an obligation on the part of the Government to provide for their maintenance.—11. All are kept in concentration camp, and, unlike Christian prisoners, are not permitted to return to civil life.—NOVEMBER. Bucharest: Committee of Professors and Savants, including a former Minister of Education, collect two hundred thousand leis to resume publication of the anti-Semitic organ, Semanatorul; Jew-baiting leaflets, known as Duminica Poprului, to urge the population to boycott and kill the Jews, are extensively circulated.—M. Take Jonescu, in interview, declares that Roumania can never consent to minority national rights for Jews. Number of Jews in enlarged Roumania would probably be 850,000, or one-fourth of urban population, but as they form in no province a sufficiently compact mass, national minority rights are out of the question. M. Jonescu declares that reports of persecution of Jews are greatly exaggerated, all anti-Jewish restrictions having in reality never been strictly enforced.—High court rules that the recent royal decree granting equal rights to Jews is illegal without approval of Parliament; courts refuse to grant naturalization to the many Jews.—MAY 16. New regulations governing elections to the Constituent Assembly in Transylvania provide that non-Roumanians can only obtain right to vote on proving that they were citizens of the state and that they have been living in Transylvania uninterruptedly.—Five thousand Jewish volunteers register to form a Jewish national guard for Palestine for purpose of relieving some of the troops of the army of occupation or to compose future garrison.—31. ## JEWISH NATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS IN THE UNITED STATES

In the following list information is given respecting those Jewish organizations which have a national scope as distinguished from societies of a local character which are listed in the Directory of Local Jewish Organizations, pp. 330-583. Seventy-six bodies are listed below. Although these organizations vary widely in their functions, they may be classified into ten broad groups. Of course, there are several organizations which, owing to their manifold aims and purposes, could be placed into more than one class, but these were grouped in accordance with their most prominent activity. In the international group are such bodies as the American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress, and the organizations interested in the welfare of the Jews of Roumania; the Zionist organizations have been grouped separately. In the educational class are the Council of Young Men's Hebrew and Kindred Associations, the Intercollegiate Menorah Association, the Jewish Chautauqua Society, and others of a similar character. The three Theological Seminaries and the Dropsie College for Hebrew and Cognate Learning are given separately. As research institutions are classed the American Jewish Historical Society, the Bureau of Jewish Social Research, and the Jewish Academicans of America. Professional associations include the various rabbinical societies and the National Conference of Jewish Social Service. The Religious Unions include the congregational federations and their national auxiliaries. No explanation of the other groups is necessary.

Following is a table showing the number of organizations in each class, the number of branches and of members:

Character of Organization	Total Number	Number reporting Branches	Number of Branches	Number reporting Members	Number of Members
Fraternal Orders and Mutual Benefit Associations	15	11	2,421	15	574,163
Philanthropic Organizations..	15	9	576	5	230,114
Zionist Organizations.....	8	5	1,028	4	160,455
Religious Unions and affiliated bodies	5	2	400	..	.....
International Organizations...	6	2	90	3	60,400
Educational Organizations....	6	2	434	5	30,318
Fraternities .....	6	4	55	6	3,901
Professional Associations.....	8	..	....	8	2,633
Colleges .....	4	..	....	..	.....
Research Institutions.....	3	..	....	2	423
Total .....	76	35	5,004	49	1,062,412

Several interesting facts are apparent in the foregoing table. Over a million of the Jews of the United States are connected with National Organizations; over a half million are affiliated with fraternal orders or mutual benefit associations; a quarter of a million help to maintain philanthropic enterprises of national scope; and thirty-five of the organizations report a total of 5004 branches, affiliated bodies, or agencies. The number of these must be taken into account when we consider the number of local organizations.

DIRECTORY OF JEWISH LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS IN THE UNITED STATES

INTRODUCTION

This Directory is intended to supersede the list published in THE AMERICAN JEWISH YEAR BOOK 5668 and all the supplementary lists printed in the subsequent issues. Except for New York City, the Directory was mostly compiled from data received from the organizations themselves, in response to questionnaires which were mailed to every organization of which there was any record in the office of the American Jewish Committee. The bulk of these questionnaires were mailed during the year 1918, and, in the main, the facts here recorded are assumed to be correct as of last year, although during the past six months an endeavor has been made to have the information corrected as much as possible without resorting again to the individual organizations for data, but by securing the services of public-spirited and well-informed individuals in each locality. In only a few cases was any personal canvassing done. Wherever possible, advantage was taken of notices of and references to organizations appearing in the general and Jewish press.

Societies which are known to exist, but which did not respond to repeated requests for information, are indicated by an asterisk; those with respect to which information was secured from authentic though not official sources are indicated by two asterisks.

The following abbreviations have been employed:

CEM., for Cemetery.	M. B., for Mutual Benefit Society.
CG., for Congregation.	PRES., for President.
CHAR., for Charitable or Philanthropic Society.	PRIN., for Principal.
DIR., for Director.	SEC., for Secretary.
EDUC., for Educational Organization.	SUPT., for Superintendent.
EXEC., for Executive.	TREAS., for Treasurer.
	ZION., for Zionist Society.

Abbreviations are also sometimes used by the organizations themselves in reporting their names. Among these the most common are K. K., for Kahal Kadosh; K. U. V., for Kranken Unterstützungs Verein; M. B. A., for Mutual Benefit Association; A. C., for Athletic Club; Y. M. B. A. and Y. L. B. A., for Young Men's and Young Ladies' Benevolent Association, respectively. Following the practice of past years, all Hebrew names are given as transliterated by the organizations themselves.

The list for New York City is based entirely upon the various directories given in The Jewish Communal Register of New York City, issued by the Kehillah (Jewish Community) of New York City in 1918. Following is a summary of the information respecting the local organizations of that city as recorded in the Register:

Total number of organizations .....	3637
Congregations .....	858
Schools .....	69
Recreational and Cultural Agencies .....	101
Mutual Aid Societies and other Economic Agencies .....	2168
Philanthropic and Correctional Agencies .....	164
Other Organizations .....	277

With respect to the synagogues in New York City, the following information will be found of interest:

Total number of synagogues .....	1127
Permanent synagogues .....	784
Temporary synagogues .....	343
Permanent synagogues with buildings of their own .....	237
Permanent synagogues without buildings .....	547
Seating capacity of permanent synagogues .....	217,725
Seating capacity of temporary synagogues .....	163,638
Language of prayer in permanent synagogues:
Hebrew .....	723
Hebrew and English .....	36

Language of sermon and public announcements in permanent synagogues:
Yiddish .....	617
English .....	79
Total membership of permanent synagogues .....	79,480

Following are several tables exhibiting the main facts respecting local organizations in the United States, outside of New York City. It must be borne in mind that it is not claimed that the information given here is complete; the manner in which the data were collected—almost exclusively through the mails—cannot be expected to yield complete and accurate results. The information is, however, of great value for comparison.

The 1843 congregations listed herewith, added to the 1127 reported for New York City, make a total of 2960 for the country. Of the 503 which report the time of service, 243, or almost one-half, hold services on Sabbaths and Festivals only; 154, a little over one-third, hold services daily; 51, or about ten per cent, convene only during the Festivals; and about an equal number report holding services irregularly, as fortnightly, or every two months, etc.

Of the 829 congregations which report the language employed at service, 496, or nearly sixty per cent, use Hebrew; of these, 19 report the use of Yiddish in sermons or in public announcements. About thirty per cent use both Hebrew and English, and a little less than ten per cent use English exclusively.

From Table II it will be seen that only one-fourth of the total number of congregations report a total membership of 48,205, an average of little over one hundred members for each congregation. Assuming that this average obtains throughout the United States, we may infer that the total membership of all the congregations listed in the Directory is about 180,000. This number, added to the membership of the permanent synagogues in New York City, gives us a total of 260,000 for the entire country. In most cases, as is well known, membership in congregations is restricted to heads of families. Assuming that each of the 260,000 members represents a family of only three, we may make the conservative estimate that over three-quarters of a million of the Jewish population of the country are regularly affiliated with congregations. If we take into account, however, those who attend divine services during the High Festivals—in New York City, the number of these is five times the regular membership—we are led to the conclusion that two and one-half million of the three and one-third million Jews of the country, or nearly five out of six, come into direct contact with Jewish religious influences sometime during the year.

As regards congregational religious schools, Table II shows that 584 congregations, which report having such schools—a great many which have do not report them—have 2568 classes, most of which meet once weekly, and 48,534 pupils.

In attempting to estimate the number of charitable agencies, we must add, to the 907 given in Table III, 164 reported for New York City, making a total of 1071 for the entire country. We must also take into consideration the 14 National Jewish Organizations which have philanthropic functions and which report 576 branches and a total membership of over one-quarter of a million individuals. (See DIRECTORY OF JEWISH NATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS IN THE UNITED STATES, pp. 303-329.) Most of the large Jewish communities have charitable federations, and reference to the LIST OF FEDERATED JEWISH CHARITIES IN THE UNITED STATES (pp. 584-586) will show that of the 46 organizations in that list, 41 report an aggregate income, in 1918, of $6,325,661.69. Unfortunately, sufficient data on which to base an estimate of the income of non-federated agencies are not available.

To the 566 educational agencies given in Table III, 170 must be added for New York City, making a total of 736; six national organizations with educational objects report 434 branches, and 5 of them report an aggregate membership of 30,318.

To the 177 Mutual Benefit Societies listed in the same table must be added 1016 reported for New York City, and the 2421 branches of 11 out of the 15 national fraternal orders whose aggregate membership is over half a million individuals. To the 214 clubs listed we must add 15 reported for New York City.

The number of cemeteries given is misleading, because, in some instances, congregations which have merely a plot in a larger cemetery report the possession of a cemetery of their own. The number given, however, cannot be very far from the truth, as it is an average of only ten Jewish cemeteries for each state of the Union. New York City reports fifteen Jewish cemeteries.

JEWISH PERIODICALS APPEARING IN THE UNITED STATES

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS

Following is a list of Jewish periodicals which were being published in the United States up to the time of printing. Sixteen periodicals given in YEAR BOOK 5679 suspended publication during the past year. The only important one in this group was The American Jewish Chronicle, established in 1916, and published in New York City; its last weekly number appeared on October 18, 1918. Several weeks later another issue was published containing the announcement that beginning with that number the periodical would appear as a monthly. No other number, however, appeared. On March 1, 1919, The Day, established in October, 1914, and Die Wahrheit, established in 1905, both daily newspapers published in Yiddish in New York City, became amalgamated as The Day-Die Wahrheit. Another important event in the field of Jewish journalism was the establishment of the Chicago Jewish Daily Forward, on January 1, 1919.

The following list of periodicals is divided into two sections: (A) General Newspapers and Magazines; (B) Organs of Associations and Trade Journals. This classification, it is hoped, will give a clearer view of the field.

Of the ten daily newspapers listed in Group A, four are published in New York City, three in Chicago, and one each in Philadelphia, Cleveland, and Milwaukee. The seventy-six periodicals in this group are published in twenty-nine cities. Twenty-seven appear in New York; ten in Chicago; three each in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Philadelphia, and San Francisco; two each in Boston, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh, and St. Louis; and one in each of the following cities: Baltimore, Bridgeport, Buffalo, Columbus, Dayton, Detroit, Fort Worth, Houston, Los Angeles, Memphis, Minneapolis, New Orleans, Omaha, Portland (Ore.), Providence, Schenectady, Seattle, Toledo, and Wheeling.

Forty of these periodicals were established within the past ten years. Nine have been appearing for from eleven to fourteen years; six for from sixteen to twenty years; seven for from twenty-one to twenty-nine years, and fourteen for thirty years or more. The American Israelite, established in 1854, is the oldest Jewish periodical, being now in its sixty-fifth year. This weekly and The Jewish Times, of San Francisco, and the American Hebrew, of New York City, are over half a century old.

The following tables give the languages in which the periodicals of each group are published and the frequency with which they appear:

STATISTICS OF JEWS

A. JEWISH POPULATION OF THE WORLD

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

The statistics of Jewish population given below are based largely upon estimates made before the European war. In only a few cases, as Russia, Germany, and Austria-Hungary, are the figures official. The tables given in the previous issue of the YEAR BOOK are repeated, with a few modifications which are duly noted. Political subdivisions as they existed before the war are still given as the geographical units, in the absence of accurate figures for the new states which have come or are likely to come into existence. In the case of countries which have participated actively in the recent war, no allowances have been made for the effect of the war on the size of the population. It is certain that in several of these countries the war has resulted in a considerable increase in the death rate, and that this affected the Jews no less than the rest of the population. In some regions, notably, Poland, Courland, Lithuania, Galicia, and Roumania, the Jews probably suffered more than their proportionate share of the loss of life. On the other hand, it must be noted first that in many cases the figures of Jewish population are based upon estimates only, and, secondly, that in most instances the statistics cited are from five to ten years old and that deductions to be made because of war fatalities would be counterbalanced by the natural increase in population. Another factor to be considered is the emigration of Jews, before the war, from such countries as Russia, Austria-Hungary, and Roumania.

<sup>2</sup> This is the figure given in the Canadian census of 1911. Since that time the Jewish immigration to Canada has aggregated 27,301. Assuming that the natural increase was two per cent per annum, and that there was not any considerable emigration from Canada, there should now be approximately 120,000 Jews in British North America.

B. JEWISH POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES

The Government of the United States, in making its various censuses, takes no count of religious affiliations. There are, therefore, no official, authoritative statistics of the Jewish population of the United States. All figures concerning the number of Jews in this country are based entirely upon estimates. Following is a table giving the number of Jews in the United States as estimated by various authorities at different times.

TABLE V
ESTIMATES OF THE JEWISH POPULATION MADE AT VARIOUS TIMES

Year	Authority	Number
1818	Mordecai M. Noah.....	3,000

1905	The Jewish Encyclopedia.....	1,508,435
1907	American Jewish Year Book.....	1,777,185
1910	American Jewish Year Book.....	2,043,762
1914	Bureau of Jewish Statistics and Research.....	2,933,374
1918	Bureau of Jewish Statistics and Research.....	3,300,000

The latest estimate, that for 1918, was made by the Bureau of Jewish Statistics and Research of the American Jewish Committee, under the direction of Doctor Samson D. Oppenheim. A complete statement of the methods of computation which resulted in the figure presented is contained in the AMERICAN JEWISH YEAR BOOK 5679 on pp. 31-74.

The last previous estimate, that made by the editor of the AMERICAN JEWISH YEAR BOOK in 1910, was based on the increase in the population of fifty cities during the years 1907-1910. For these fifty cities, the total population in 1910, as estimated by the Industrial Removal Office, was 15 per cent greater than that estimated by the editor of the AMERICAN JEWISH YEAR BOOK 5668. It was assumed that there had been a similar increase in the Jewish population throughout the country, and that the total Jewish population for 1907, given as 1,777,185, had by 1910 become 2,043,762.

The estimate made in 1907 by the editor of the AMERICAN JEWISH YEAR BOOK 5668 was obtained by securing from individuals in almost every Jewish community an estimate of the Jewish population of the place. These were added together and gave, as a basis for calculation, the figure 1,777,185. Table VI gives the Jewish population, by states, as estimated at that time, and eleven years later by the Bureau of Jewish Statistics. It will be noted that, assuming these estimates to have been valid, the Jewish population of the United States has practically doubled within eleven years. The explanation of this extraordinary increase lies chiefly in the movement of Jews from abroad, the total number of Jewish immigrants during the period being 863,526.

Table VII, arranged according to geographical sections, will facilitate comparison with population tables given by the United States Census Bureau.

In the article on the Jewish Population of the United States, in AMERICAN JEWISH YEAR BOOK 5679, attention was called to the interesting fact that nine-tenths of all Jews in the country live in the following twelve states of the Union: New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Massachusetts, Ohio, New Jersey, Missouri, Connecticut, California, Maryland, Michigan, and Indiana (see Table VIII). It will be noted that seventy-five per cent of the total are residents of the five states ranking first in manufactures, according to the United States census of 1910, namely, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Massachusetts, and Ohio.

Another point of interest developed by the inquiry of the Bureau of Jewish Statistics and Research is that approximately three-quarters of the Jewish population of the United States are concentrated in only ten cities which hold only about 14 per cent of the total general population of the United States. This brings out graphically the industrial and commercial tendencies of the Jewish population of the United States.

Approximately half the Jews in the United States reside in the city of New York, where they constitute about twenty-five per cent of the total population. The following table of the Jewish population of New York City, by boroughs, as estimated from figures of public school attendance by Doctor Alexander Dushkin, is taken from the Jewish Communal Register, published by the New York Kehillah, in 1918.

It is interesting to note that, while New York contains such a large quota of the Jews of the United States, it is not proportionately the most Jewish city. Chelsea, Mass., has a Jewish population of 13,000, or twenty-eight per cent of the general population. The three Jewish agricultural colonies which make up the bulk of the populations of Rosenhayn, Carmel, and Woodbine, all in New Jersey, constitute, respectively, fifty per cent, sixty per cent, and one hundred per cent of the general population of those places.

C. JEWISH IMMIGRATION INTO THE UNITED STATES

The following tables give the main figures relating to the Jewish immigration to the United States from the year 1881 to June 30, 1919. For the earlier years, from 1881 to 1900, the results are only for the ports of New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore; from 1899 onwards, the figures are from the reports of the Commissioner-General of Immigration. In some instances the figures refer only to the year 1917-1918, continuing those of previous issues of the YEAR BOOK.

The complete statistics of immigration to the United States, as shown by the Commissioner-General's reports, are given below for the period 1899-1919. It will be seen that for this period of twenty-one years Jewish immigration has been 1,551,315, amounting to 10.43 per cent of the total immigration.

Since 1908, the number of aliens leaving the United States is given as well as the number admitted. It will be observed that for the twelve years the total number of Jews returning is approximately 7 per cent of the Jews admitted. This figure contrasts strikingly with the total number of departures, over 34 per cent.

The Jewish immigration since 1881 is approximately 2,150,000. On the basis of the percentage leaving the United States since 1908, the total number departed during this period would be 149,000, leaving a net increase through immigration of 2,001,000.

Of interest in connection with the number of immigrants admitted are the data for those rejected on application for admission and those returned from the United States after admission. The figures are shown in the table below.

During a period of twenty-one years, the number of Jews rejected on application for landing was 20,953, or approximately 7.41 per cent of the total number of immigrants debarred. This is considerably less than the proportion which Jews form of the total immigration for the same period 10.43 per cent.

For the same period, the number of Jews returned after landing was 2510, or 6.89 per cent of the total number deported. This, again, is lower than the proportion of Jews in the total immigration.

IMMIGRATION 1918-1919

During the year ending June 30, 1919, there were admitted 3055 Jews. The number departing was 373. The net increase through migration was thus 2682. The net increase for 1917-1918 was 2985. The figures for 1918-1919 as also those for the three previous years betray the influence of the European war, and the unsettled conditions following it, on Jewish as on general immigration. Detailed figures covering the Jewish immigration for this year were not available in time for printing. Such figures for the year 1917-1918 are given below.

For six months, July to December, 1917. It was impossible to obtain figures for immigrants arriving at the port of New York during the year 1918. The port of New York and the immigration station at Ellis Island came under the jurisdiction of the War Department, and the Department of Justice prohibited the gathering of any data. The Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society estimates that 1000 Jewish immigrants arrived at the port of New York during the six months ending June 30, 1918.

Complete data for the 1918-1919 immigration are not yet available. The significant facts descriptive of the immigrants, the countries of origin, and their distribution in the United States, are here reproduced for 1917-1918.

D. JEWISH IMMIGRATION INTO CANADA

For a period of nineteen years, beginning July 1, 1900, the Jewish immigration into Canada was 75,998. The immigration during the past fiscal year, ending March 31, 1919, was only 22.

Below are shown the yearly figures. It will be observed that during this period the Jewish immigration has amounted to approximately 10 per cent of the immigration from all countries exclusive of the United States and the United Kingdom, but less than 3 per cent of the total immigration.

JEWS OF EASTERN EUROPE

Judge Julian W. Mack read the following cablegram, which had just been received by the Zionist Organization of America, respecting the precarious condition of the Jews of Poland, Galicia, and Roumania:

Received alarming news from absolutely reliable sources. Jews of all East European countries threatened by greatest danger of pogroms. Riots in country and approaching demobilization lead to general anarchy of which Jews will be first victims. Wild agitation rousing basest instincts everywhere especially Roumania-Poland. In Paper Duminica Poprului, circulated by authorities amongst peasants, Minister of Education recommends cruel practices to force Jews emigrate. The well-known politician Mille preaches boycott against aliens (meaning Jews) severer than in Poland. Posters incite population slaughter Jews. Pogroms expected to break out any moment. Black Hundred receiving arms from army, while Jewish self-defence impossible lack of arms. Also in Poland agitation for pogroms. At Warsaw Jews attacked in streets, and shops demolished, plundered. Worse pogroms than 1905 dreaded. Chief Commander Polish forces General Vitold Orski, in proclamation October 8, denounces Jews as leaders Bolshevism, demands as hostages, all Jewish representatives, corporations, and municipal councils, all Rabbis and directors schools, synagogues to be shot moment of beginning Bolshevik activity. In this minute of panic, agony, Jewish population, seeking protection from cruel excesses, regards as only hope immediate effective international intervention. It must be made clear claims of only such nations will be recognized who by treatment national minorities prove worthy of political, national independence. Only immediate acting can save millions Jews from terrible danger. In name of these millions we urge for help. Fulfil your duty, help save our brethren.

After discussion, and upon motion of Jacob H. Schiff, Esq., it was resolved that the President of the Committee be requested to take such steps in co-operation with Judge Mack, President of the Zionist Organization of America, as may be deemed advisable to bring about action for the amelioration of these conditions.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED

Louis E. Levy, Esq., presented the following resolution, with the recommendation that it be referred to the Executive Committee for action, and upon motion, it was resolved so to refer it:

In view of the deplorable conditions and unjust discriminations under which the Jews of eastern Europe have long been forced to live, the Jews of America feel the urgent necessity at this time for the declaration and protection of the rights of these Jews in their respective lands, there to enjoy civil and political equality with the other inhabitants.

Therefore be it resolved, jointly by the National Executive Committee of the Zionist Organization of America, the American Jewish Committee, and the Administrative Committee of the Jewish Congress, that the following Jewish Organizations of the United States be requested to send representatives to a general Jewish Conference to be held in the City of New York on            at            for the purpose of considering these grave problems of vital importance to humanity and taking such action as may be necessary to insure their just solution.

In the course of the discussion on this resolution, Colonel Harry Cutler announced that a meeting of the Administrative Committee of the American Jewish Congress is to be held shortly to take up the question of the time of convening the Congress, in accordance with the decision to postpone such convention until the cessation of hostilities.

A letter was presented from Messrs. A. Walter Freiberg, Isaac W. Bernheim, and David Philipson, respecting the attitude of the Committee toward international Jewish questions. Upon motion, it was resolved that this letter, as well as the entire subject to which it had reference, be referred to the Executive Committee, with power.

A resolution was presented by Doctor P. A. Siegelstein upon the situation of the Jews in Roumania.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE:

Your Executive Committee begs leave to submit the following report of its activities during the past year:

A. NATIONAL ACTIVITIES

1. JEWISH WAR SERVICE STATISTICS

A year ago, when we assembled for our Eleventh Annual Meeting, our beloved country had but recently girded on its armor resolved to fight for the overthrow of autocracy and for the re-establishment of international justice. On that occasion, this Committee solemnly pledged to our Government and to its flag "our unstinting and whole-hearted support," and we fervently dedicated "to the perpetuation of American ideals and institutions, to the maintenance of the honor of our country and the preservation of the principles for which it stands, our lives, our possessions, and those we hold most dear, to the end that liberty shall not perish from the earth."

To-day, when, thanks to the valor and courage of our military and naval forces and those of the nations associated with us, and to the industry, self-sacrifice, and devotion of those at home, we stand on the threshold of a victorious conclusion of the titanic struggle, the Jews of America can say with pride and satisfaction that they have observed that pledge, that they have given, unstintedly and whole-heartedly, their lives, their possessions, and those they hold most dear, for the preservation of those principles which we, as earnest seekers after liberty, know so well how to love and cherish.

And this we may say with the conviction born of knowledge, because one of the major activities of the Committee during the past year was the collection of authentic data respecting the participation of the Jews of America in the war. The importance of this work was realized by you when at your last meeting you directed that it be undertaken. Your Committee, at its meeting on December 9, adopted a resolution directing the Bureau of Statistics and the various agencies of the Committee to prosecute earnestly this special task. In order to keep in close touch with Government Departments, with a view to securing access to official records if possible, an office was established in Washington, at the beginning of the present year, under the charge of Mr. Julian Leavitt. This office was discontinued in June, after it had been found that access could not be had to official records, without unduly hampering the war work of the Departments and Bureaus of the Government, and Mr. Leavitt was transferred to the main office in New York City, and was placed in charge of the work there.

Our aim is to determine not only how many of our brethren were with the colors, but also to ascertain other pertinent facts such as their nativity, the branches of the service with which they were identified, the number of those who had been honored with commissions, decorations, and the like, the roster of those who had been wounded or who had made the supreme sacrifice.

We were not content to secure or to arrive at estimates on these points, however reliable the data for such estimates might be. We determined that ours was to be as nearly as possible an actual roster of the service and a faithful account of the participation of the Jews of our country in the greatest of wars.

Every source for such information was sought, and every agency that could help was appealed to. Our calls for assistance and co-operation met with a gratifying response on every hand. Especially valuable was the aid of the Jewish Welfare Board in the United States Army and Navy, from whose files we obtained a great mass of data in our files, and which were freely placed at our disposal. The aid of the Rabbis of the country and of the National Jewish Organizations was also freely and enthusiastically given.

The work is not yet completed. Indeed it is a task of such magnitude and significance that it may require many months of sustained and conscientious effort to bring it to completion even if all the facts were available. But much material still remains to be gathered, collated, and edited. Judging by the results already achieved, it may be confidently asserted that the completed record will show that the Jews of America have assumed a conspicuous share of the burdens and responsibilities of America's citizenry.

A report, which is necessarily only tentative, will be presented later.

II. ANTI-JEWISH DISCRIMINATION

Our country is composed of numerous racial, national, and religious elements. This heterogeneity, so noticeable in civil life, becomes an acute problem when hundreds of thousands of men of all the various races, nationalities, and religions are brought together in gigantic camps and cantonments, or are associated in the great civilian administrative and industrial establishments which a war of great magnitude brings into existence. Under such conditions, friction and misunderstanding are dangerous. It is the duty of every patriot at such times to submerge all individual differences and to regard himself, as he is, an integral part of the great nation at war.

It is at the same time the duty of every patriot to do all he can to minimize the friction and misunderstanding and to strive for the preservation of the underlying principle of our national life, the equality of all citizens irrespective of race, creed, or origin.

The task of eliminating causes for friction, in so far as Jews in the armed forces are concerned, is being ably and conscientiously performed by the Jewish Welfare Board in the United States Army and Navy, the chairman of which is a member of your Executive Committee and upon whose directorate are several of your colleagues. It is not within the province of your Committee to report on the work of that organization. There is no doubt that the Board and its co-operating agencies have done much to help the Jew in the ranks of our Army and Navy to render his full measure of service.

To your Committee fell the correlative task of guarding, in these critical times, the rights of our coreligionists, by combating all manifestations of racial or religious discrimination. It is proper to repeat here that, in doing this, we had as much at heart the danger to our country from any act of injustice and illiberalism as the welfare of the individuals on whose behalf we acted. Your Committee is pleased to report that all the responsible officials of our Government were swift to correct any act of injustice called to their attention.

Many complaints of discrimination were referred to your Committee for attention. Our course was always to investigate the facts before taking any action. Only a few cases will be mentioned in this report. They are typical of the many.

1. DISCRIMINATION AGAINST JEWS BY ARMY CONTRACTORS

This subject was referred to at our meeting last year. A few days before it was held, newspaper advertisements appeared calling for carpenters to work in Government camps and specifying that only Christians were wanted. In a letter, dated November 14, 1917, the President of the Committee called this matter to the attention of the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War. The following correspondence indicates the promptness and energy with which Secretary Baker took the necessary action.

November 14, 1917.

DEAR MR. SECRETARY:

In the public interest, I deem it my duty to call your attention to a number of advertisements which have recently appeared in the New York World, copies of which, taken from that publication appearing on November 8 and 9, 1917, I enclose. You will observe that the advertisements call for carpenters to work in the Government camps. In one case 200 and in another 1000 are called for. In each instance the advertisement indicates that the carpenters desired for the work, under Government contract, are required to be Christians. The manifest purpose is to exclude Jewish carpenters from performing work at the soldiers' camps carried on under Government contract. The Yiddish press has commented on these advertisements, and has also shown that a large number of Jewish carpenters, who were employed on contract work at Yaphank and at other camps, have been discharged without apparent reason.

This is a slur upon a body of industrious citizens which should not be permitted, and which obviously can only lead to unfortunate consequences, if it were understood that Jews are to be excluded from rendering service under contracts with the Government to which they owe allegiance and to which they are as loyal as any other part of our population. This subject is one of sufficient importance to warrant a thorough investigation. It requires no argument to support the proposition that no contract should be entered into by our Government under which it can be possible for its co-contractor to indulge in such offensive discrimination as is indicated in these advertisements against a large body of American citizens. Non-action by the Government, in the face of the intolerant spirit manifested, is likely to be construed into a tacit approval of it.

. Very truly yours,

(Signed) LOUIS MARSHALL.

HON. NEWTON D. BAKER,
Secretary of War,
Washington, D. C.

---

November 19, 1917.

HON. LOUIS MARSHALL,
120 Broadway,
New York City.

MY DEAR MR. MARSHALL:

Thank you for calling my attention to the advertisement in the New York World which seeks to discriminate against Jewish carpenters in work done by contractors at government camps.

The loyalty of the Jewish race in this country is well known to me and cannot be questioned.

It has been my policy not to permit the slightest discrimination against persons by reason of their race; and to forthwith correct any attempt at such discrimination whether by officials of this Department or by persons contracting with them. This policy has been adopted not merely as an act of justice to all races that go to make up the American people, but also to safeguard the very institutions which we are now at the greatest sacrifice engaged in defending, and which any racial discrimination must endanger.

I am having an investigation made for the purpose of determining whether any contractors with the government are responsible for the discrimination to which you have called my attention; and to require the strictest compliance with the policy which I have above outlined.

I have this day issued an order directing all contractors to be advised of the position taken by this Department with reference to any attempted discrimination against the races which make up the citizenship of this country.

Very truly yours,

NEWTON D. BAKER, Secretary of War.

WAR DEPARTMENT

Washington, November 19, 1917.

General Orders:

My attention has been called to an advertisement for carpenters appearing in the Press, the purpose of which is to deny employment to carpenters of the Jewish race.

It is the policy of this Department not to permit the slightest discrimination against any persons by reason of their race. This policy has been adopted not merely as an act of justice to all the races that go to make up the American people, but also to safeguard the very institutions which this country is now engaged in defending, and which any racial discrimination must endanger.

All contracting officers are required to enforce this order in spirit as well as in letter and to report at once for action any refusal to comply with its terms.

(Signed) NEWTON D. BAKER,

Secretary of War.

2. MANUAL FOR MEDICAL ADVISORY BOARDS

On February 14, last, there was issued by the office of the Provost Marshal General, in connection with the Selective Service Draft, a Manual of Instructions for Medical Advisory Boards, prepared under the direction of the Surgeon General of the Army. On page 92 of this Manual the following statement appeared: "The foreign born, especially Jews, are more apt to malingering than the native born." When this was called to the attention of the President of your Committee, he immediately sent the following telegram to the President of the United States, the Secretary of War, the Provost Marshal General, and the Surgeon General.

March 1, 1918.

My attention has been called to a statement appearing on page ninety-two of Form sixty-four, issued on February 14, 1918, by the Secretary of War from the office of the Provost Marshal General, purporting to have been prepared under the direction of the Surgeon General of the Army, being the Manual of Instructions for Medical Advisory Boards. After warning Medical Examiners to be on the alert for deception, the following announcement is made: "The foreign born, especially Jews, are more apt to malingering than the native born." Other derogatory remarks appear in the same paragraph. As the President of the American Jewish Committee, I protest against this characterization of an important and loyal part of our population. It is most mischievous in its tendency. It gives official sanction to race prejudice and religious intolerance. It constitutes an insult to men who have proven their devotion to our country. It cannot fail to have a demoralizing influence on the men in the ranks. It will encourage the ignorant and unthinking to treat their fellows with contempt. It is contrary to the spirit of America. While I am sure that the promulgation of this official document is due to inadvertence on the part of those high in authority, justice and the public welfare require that the further use of this Form shall be at once discontinued; that every copy of it that has been issued should be recalled by telegram; and that proper explanation be made, so as to expunge from the archives of the United States the unwarranted stigma upon three millions of our people. As a member of the District Board of the City of New York, who has since August last examined thousands of records of applicants for exemption from conscription, I can certify that there is not the slightest foundation in fact for the charge which has thus received official sanction. My associates and hundreds of members of the Local Boards of this City are prepared to testify to the untruthfulness of this characterization. I am confident that prompt action will be taken for the eradication of this wrong.

A few days later, Mr. Tumulty, the President's secretary, notified Mr. Marshall by telegram that the President had at once ordered the excision of the objectionable paragraph. This action was confirmed by the following letter from the Honorable Benedict Crowell, Acting Secretary of War.

March 4, 1918.

MY DEAR MR. MARSHALL:

The subject-matter of your telegram of March 1st, respecting the "Manual of Instructions for Medical Advisory Boards," has received the prompt attention of the President, who directs me to say, in reply to your telegram, that he has this day issued orders directing the omission from the Regulations of the objectionable language to which you refer. In accordance with his orders, the Surgeon General has submitted an amendment of the paragraph of the Regulations in which the objectionable language occurs, and the Provost Marshal General has telegraphed this amendment to all the boards. A reprint of the Regulations will be distributed just as soon as received from the Government Printing Office, and the edition already distributed will be recalled and destroyed.

In communicating his orders on this subject, the President expressed his regret that the sentences quoted in your telegram should have been contained in the draft instructions to medical advisory boards, and added: "They, of course, represent a view absolutely contrary to that of the administration and express a prejudice which ought never to have been expressed or entertained." He further directed that you be advised of the action he had taken.

Permit me to add an expression of my own regret that this objectionable language found its way, through inadvertence, into a public document issued by the War Department.

Very respectfully,

(Signed) BENEDICT CROWELL,
Acting Secretary of War.

The letter of President Wilson to Mr. Crowell follows:

March 4, 1918.

MY DEAR MR. SECRETARY:

I am very much distressed that the sentences quoted in the enclosed telegram should have been contained in the draft instructions to the medical advisory boards. They, of course, represent a view absolutely contrary to that of the administration and express a prejudice which ought never to have been expressed or entertained. In all of this I am sure you will agree with me, and I hope that you will be kind enough to make an immediate excision of these sentences and instruct the medical advisory boards accordingly, letting it be known, if you will be kind enough, to the senders of the enclosed telegrams that you have done so.

I am making this request with all the greater confidence because I am sure you will sympathize with my point of view in the matter.

Cordially and sincerely yours,

(Signed) WOODROW WILSON.

HON. BENEDICT CROWELL,

Acting Secretary of War.

On March 4, the orders of the President were put into effect. The Provost Marshal General sent a telegram to the governors of all states, giving the text of a substitute for the paragraph in which the objectionable sentence occurred and ordering the return of the defective Manuals as soon as the revised copies were received. A full statement of the matter appeared in the United States Official Bulletin of March 6, 1918.

3. UNITED STATES SHIPPING BOARD ADVERTISEMENT

In July last, there appeared in the New York Times an advertisement for a file clerk to be employed in an office of the United States Shipping Board. As originally submitted, this advertisement contained the word "Christian." As published it contained the request that applicants state their religion and nationality.

Your President promptly lodged a protest with the United States Shipping Board through the Honorable Bainbridge Colby, one of its members. The following correspondence resulted:

Knollwood, Saranac Lake, N. Y.

July 25, 1918.

MY DEAR MR. COLBY:

Mr. Louis Wiley has sent to me, as the President of the American Jewish Committee, a copy of his correspondence with you concerning an advertisement by the Shipping Board in The Times, the form in which it was first offered for insertion and the truculent attitude of Mr. Hudson when interrogated concerning his action. I desire to supplement Mr. Wiley's letter with the statement that my attention has been directed to similar conduct in various other departments of, and on the part of contractors with, the Government, the Red Cross, the Air Nitrate Corporation, a corporation under contract with the Aircraft Bureau, contractors constructing military camps, etc. In the last-mentioned case Secretary Baker made a general order which officially reprimanded those engaged in such reprehensible conduct. This sort of advertising is infamous. At a time when every part of the nation is expected to do its utmost for its protection and perpetuation, it is depressing to find a governmental agency engaged in the vilest of Prussian practices. Anti-Semitism in its modern form is a plant of Prussian growth. We are fighting Prussianism, and yet we find our own governmental agencies aping it in its nastiest and most degrading manifestations. I know that you propose an investigation. What more is needed to make out a case than the facts?

1. That the advertisement as submitted contained the word "Christian," thereby manifestly indicating the purpose to exclude Jews.

2. That the advertisement as published asked for information as to the religion and nationality of the applicant.

3. That the remarks made to The Times reporter, who had no motive for making a false statement, establish the quo animo of your District Supervisor.

This is a matter of vital importance. It cannot be blinked or disposed of by the ordinary platitudes. Mr. Hudson will, of course, asseverate that he meant no harm and that "some of his best friends are—Hebrews." Nor will a rose-water reprimand fit such a disregard of the very genius of American institutions. Not because of any desire for inflicting punishment, but for the sake of example and the establishment of a necessary precedent, this offence should be followed by a dismissal from the public service of the offender, and the public should be informed of the reason.

With best regards, I am,

Cordially yours,

(Signed) LOUIS MARSHALL.

HON. BAINBRIDGE COLBY,

United States Shipping Board,
Washington, August 8, 1918.

DEAR MR. MARSHALL:

When your letter of July 25th was received I referred it to the Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, Mr. Charles M. Schwab, who in a letter received yesterday advises me that the matter is receiving his personal attention, and that I may be assured of a definite report on the subject. Just as soon as I am told what action has been or is proposed to be taken I shall be glad to write you further.

Faithfully yours,

LOUIS MARSHALL, Esq.,
Knollwood,

Saranac Lake, New York.

MY DEAR MR. MARSHALL:

The Emergency Fleet Corporation has sent a circular to its various department heads, of which I send you a copy. From this it appears that there can be no mistaking the disapproval with which the Corporation looks upon any intrusion of a religious test in the selection of its employees. I beg also to include a copy of Mr. Schwab's letter to me on the subject. I sent him your letter, which had his careful consideration.

Yours faithfully,

UNITED STATES SHIPPING BOARD EMERGENCY FLEET CORPORATION

Philadelphia, Pa., August 8, 1918.

MR. BAINBRIDGE COLBY,
United States Shipping Board,
Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. COLBY:

Referring again to your letter of August 2nd and also to yours of August 7th, and returning herewith letter from Mr. Louis Marshall, of the law firm of Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall, dated July 25th, regarding an advertisement of an objectionable character which was placed in The New York Times.

As promised you in my letter of August 5th, I have had this matter thoroughly investigated and beg leave to make the following report:

This advertisement was placed in The New York Times by a clerk in charge of the files in our New York Office, without the knowledge or approval of our District Supervisor, although it was called to his attention later.

In a vast organization like ours, it is sometimes difficult to prevent occurrences of this kind, but it may be stated to Mr. Marshall in most positive terms that this is not the policy of the corporation, as no recognition whatever of religious principles is considered in the employment of our people. The person placing this advertisement has been severely reprimanded and positive instructions issued to prevent a recurrence.

Mr. Marshall suggests that the person who inserted the advertisement be discharged and a statement published as to why this discharge was made. In view of the fact, however, that the person who placed this advertisement is a woman, it seems to me that if we give Mr. Marshall our assurances that the incident will not occur again, he should feel satisfied to let the matter rest as it is. While I agree with you that her action was thoughtless, I believe a discharge in this particular case would be too severe an action.

In this connection, I am attaching copy of a memorandum issued to the Heads of all departments by Vice-President Coonley under date of July 26th, calling special attention to the fact that religious principles are to have no bearing whatever in the making of appointments.

I trust this will enable you to adjust the matter to the satisfaction of all concerned.

If you wish, however, I shall be pleased to see Mr. Marshall on the subject.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) C. M. SCHWAB,
Director-General.

July 26, 1918.

Memorandum to Heads of Departments:

SUBJECT: RELIGIOUS CONSIDERATIONS IN MAKING APPOINTMENTS

The attention of the management has been called to a very serious mistake in judgment on the part of one of the employes of the Corporation authorized to make employments. Through the publication of an improper advertisement for office help, the Emergency Fleet Corporation was placed in the position of having established the policy of giving consideration to religious connections when making appointments.

In view of the fact of the many appointments made by or in the name of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, the case referred to above is the first that has been brought to the attention of this office, it appears that the Fleet Corporation executives are generally aware of the fact that the employment policy of this Corporation expressly prohibits giving any consideration whatsoever to an applicant's religious beliefs as a point for or against his or her appointment.

That there be no misunderstanding in the future, however, the management desires to notify all officers and employes of this Corporation, authorized to make employments for or in our name, of the following: (1) Applicants for positions must not be questioned about their religious beliefs by any employing officer of this Corporation. (2) Advertisements, printed forms, or informal communications must without exception exclude every reference direct or indirect to this question.

The Division Heads concerned are directed to apprise their field subordinates authorized to make employments, of the substance of this memorandum.

(Signed) HOWARD COONLEY,
Vice-President.

4. ADVERTISEMENT OF LIBERTY LOAN COMMITTEE

Similar action was taken when, during the recent campaign for the Fourth Liberty Loan, there appeared in a New York newspaper an advertisement for a "Stenographer for Liberty Loan Committee (Christian)."

Your President at once called the attention of Benjamin Strong, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank and chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee, to this advertisement, and urged the Committee to take immediate and vigorous action to minimize the harm occasioned by such a publication. Governor Strong, at once wrote to the Employment Exchange, which, without authorization, had placed the advertisement, the following letter, which was also published in the newspaper in which the advertisement had appeared.

DEAR SIRS:

The Liberty Loan Committee is informed that an advertisement was placed in the Journal of Commerce by your Employment agency in the following language:

"STENOGRAPHER FOR LIBERTY LOAN COMMITTEE (CHRISTIAN). Must have executive ability; choice position in downtown office or uptown hotel, $25. American Commercial Exchange, 7 Pine Street."

This advertisement, we understand, was placed by you following an application for a stenographer, made to your office by some one acting in behalf of one of the trade committees of the Liberty Loan Organization. We are informed that the person who made this application made no suggestion whatever that only a Christian was wanted, nor was any intimation given that discrimination would be made as to race or religion. The Liberty Loan Organization throughout includes many Jews, who are loyal, efficient, and devoted workers, and whose services have been of inestimable value.

Publishing an advertisement in the terms of this one, which was unauthorized, placed the Liberty Loan Organization in the light of exercising a discrimination which is not the fact. It was, likewise, an improper advertisement, inasmuch as it was certain to give grave offense to many patriotic citizens of this country, at a time when patriotism is the great war asset of the nation. It was, in fact, an unpatriotic act in itself.

I am, therefore, writing you this letter, which will be given publicity for the purpose of doing what little can be done to correct a most unfortunate and regrettable incident, for which the Liberty Loan Organization is not in any way responsible, but the odium of which might have been imposed upon them through your unauthorized act.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) BENJ. STRONG,
Chairman.

Secretary McAdoo, to whose attention the article was also called, expressed in vigorous terms his reprobation of the advertisement, and denounced it as an unpatriotic act.

5. PROCLAMATION OF THE GOVERNOR OF IOWA

On May 23, 1918, the Honorable W. L. Harding, governor of Iowa, issued a proclamation to the people of that state in which he asserted that the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech extends only to the use of the English language, and that the constitutional guarantee of freedom of worship does not extend to the use of a foreign language. The proclamation then laid down the following rules which "should obtain in Iowa during the war":

"First—English should and must be the only medium of instruction in public, private, denominational or other similar schools.

Second—Conversation in public places, on trains and over the telephone should be in the English language.

Third—All public addresses should be in the English language.

Fourth—Let those who cannot speak or understand the English language conduct their religious worship in their homes."

The establishment of a precedent which might be followed by the governors of other states was a dangerous possibility. Your President, therefore, felt that it was the duty of your Committee to register a protest, and, in several letters to Governor Harding, Mr. Marshall pointed out not only the unconstitutionality of the proclamation, but also the numerous objections to it on other grounds. The governor admitted that the proclamation was merely a request, and did not have the force of an executive order.

6. The Liberty Bell

A coarse and stupid "joke" which appeared in the Liberty Bell, a paper published in the interests of the Third Liberty Loan in the Ninth Federal Reserve District, called to the attention of your Committee, during the campaign for that loan, elicited the following letter from the Honorable William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury:

Washington, May 17, 1918.

MY DEAR MR. MARSHALL:

* * * I am thoroughly in accord with your views as to the offensiveness and unfairness of the article, and deeply grieved that any such publication should have been made in connection with the Liberty Loan. I hope you will agree with me that it would not be wise for me publicly to repudiate the story. It is unfortunately true that in many cases of publicity, the correction of an unfair or offensive story only serves to circulate an insult on a more extensive scale. If I should denounce the story publicly, I fear that is what would happen. On the other hand, I am giving very earnest consideration to the question of whether I must not prohibit altogether local publications of this sort in connection with War Loans. In such things an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. You may rest assured that action will be taken not only to signify further my displeasure in the present instance but to prevent in the future the circulation of stupid and irresponsible publications at the Government's expense.

7. HAZING IN A STATE NAUTICAL SCHOOL

In December of last year, the attention of the President of your Committee was called to the fact that two Jewish cadets of a Nautical School, maintained by a State Government, had been subjected to hazing by their fellow-cadets, in the course of which they were maltreated in such an unbelievably cruel and shameful manner, that they found residence at the School intolerable. As admitted by the Superintendent of the School, this hazing was inflicted upon the Jewish cadets entirely because of anti-Jewish prejudice.

Your President called the facts to the attention of every member of the Board of Governors of the School, who instituted an investigation, as the result of which two of the ringleaders in the hazing were expelled from the School and a number of others severely punished. The cadets were also warned that anyone convicted of hazing in the future would be summarily expelled. The Board of Governors also extended an invitation to the two Jewish cadets to return to the School, "with the assurance that they will receive absolutely proper treatment and fair play both from the Board of Governors and the officers of the ship."

8. THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

In May last, there appeared in The New York Times the report of an address of an Associate Director of the Bureau of Personnel of the American Red Cross to the New York State Conference of the Organization. After stating that five thousand more Red Cross workers were needed in France, Italy, and Belgium, the Director added:

No one with German antecedents for even three generations back will be accepted. It is a business problem and the men who meet all qualifications must bring strong letters to prove their loyalty before they are accepted.

Your Committee regarded such a rule as a humiliating insult to hundreds of thousands of loyal American citizens, whom it would rob of their natural enthusiasm for America's cause, because it virtually served notice that Americans whose ancestors were born in Germany, which would include many of highly respected Jewish citizens, might expect to be subjected to further discrimination. The harm that such an impression would cause to the work of the Red Cross was also obvious.

The President of your Committee, therefore, called the incident to the attention of the national officers of the Red Cross, strongly urging that the statement of the Associate Director be repudiated.

The War Work Council of the Red Cross at once recognized the validity of the objections to the course announced, denied in the most positive manner that any such rule existed, and issued a public statement disavowing the action of the officer responsible for it.

9. DISCRIMINATION IN QUARTERMASTER DEPARTMENT

Several weeks ago the attention of your Committee was called to the fact that an officer in the Quartermaster Department had stated, in reference to the application of a young woman for the position as secretary to him, that he preferred not to have any Jews upon his staff. This action was called to the attention of the authorities by your President, and after an investigation, the officer in question was reprimanded for his position in the matter and warned that he must not express his personal prejudices in his official relations.

10. THE JUNIOR PLATTSBURG MANUAL

In the Junior Plattsburg Manual, published for the guidance of students in United States officers' training camps, the statement is made that "the ideal officer is a Christian gentleman who has no task too small to faithfully perform." When this matter was called to his attention, your President communicated with the publishers, pointing out that, while the authors were not conscious of giving offence by the use of the word Christian in connection with the word gentleman, yet, as there were a great many officers in the army who are gentlemen and possess all the other qualifications except that they are not Christians, it would seem that the use of the word "Christian" is superfluous. The president of the publishing company promptly replied that in the forthcoming editions of the book the expression would be changed to read "the ideal officer is a courteous gentleman, etc."

OTHER CASES

The foregoing recital will serve to give an idea of the varied forms in which racial and religious discrimination has been attempted or practised. They are merely illustrative of a long list of similar incidents with which your Committee had to deal during the past year. A number of complaints of discrimination suffered by Jews in the Army and Navy, and in affiliated organizations, were referred to your Committee, and, where investigation showed them to be well-founded, they were brought to the attention of the proper authorities, who, it is satisfying to announce, exhibited every disposition to have the matters complained of fairly and properly adjusted and a recurrence of them made impossible. As so aptly stated by Secretary Baker: "This policy has been adopted not merely as an act of justice to all races that go to make up the American people, but also to safeguard the very institutions which we are now engaged in defending and which any racial discrimination must endanger."

B. INTERNATIONAL QUESTIONS

A year ago the attention of all loyal Americans was focused upon the single thought of bringing the war to a speedy and successful conclusion. This, however, did not prevent your Committee from giving attention to the condition of our brethren in Europe and the Orient. At no time did it relax its vigilance in respect to occurrences which, in any way, affected the welfare or political status of our coreligionists.

At the present moment it is both timely and necessary to take a brief survey of the effect which the war has had upon millions of Jews whose status is or has been exceptional and, at the same time, to consider the potential factors that may shape their destiny. The lands with which we are particularly concerned are the homes of well-nigh three quarters of our people. Consequently, it is of the utmost importance for us to know and clearly understand their position in these countries in order that we may, in the pursuance of the objects and aims of this Committee, strive to assist in the solution of their problems. The countries referred to, in the order of their Jewish population, are Russia, Poland, Roumania, and Palestine.

I. RUSSIA

A few days after your meeting in November last the political confusion in Russia became worse confounded, and culminated in the overthrow first of the Provisional Government of Prince Lvov as Premier and Professor Miliukov as Foreign Minister, and later of the succeeding Government of Kerensky, followed by the ascendancy of the so-called Bolsheviki or Maximalists, headed by Nicolai Lenine.

Although the control of this group has not remained uncontested, it has exercised unrestrained and despotic power, with the result that chaos and anarchy with all the evils that follow in their wake have held unbroken sway.

One of the first acts of the Provisional Government, set up immediately after the Revolution, was to abolish at a single stroke all laws and regulations which discriminated against any race or religion. Thus the shackles which had for generations bound the Jews of Russia were struck off, and the door to unrestricted opportunity was opened to them. The document embodying this decree, which is one of the most important in Jewish history, and which, in spite of the change in government, remains in force, is appended to this report.

But, in the access of the Bolsheviki to power, there was substituted for the religious discrimination, which had prevailed under the Tsar, an economic discrimination, which had for its aim the persecution of all who possessed property. The indescribable confusion, disorder, and crime which resulted are only partially known to the western world. Although the vast majority of the Jews of Russia are the victims of the Bolsheviki, being engaged in trade and the professions and thus, as members of the bourgeoisie, coming under the ban of the Bolsheviki, yet, because several of the leaders of this group are Jews, the impression has been sought to be created in many quarters that the Jews of Russia are identified with the Bolsheviki and their excesses.

From information which your Committee has been able to secure of the state of affairs in that distracted country it can say with confidence that this assertion is entirely unfounded, and that the Jews of Russia as a mass are ranged on the side of those who are struggling for the restoration of decency and order and who are patriotically striving to deliver Russia from its present unhappy condition.

Your Committee feels confident that the democratic government of Russia, which is bound to emerge from the present chaos, will not repudiate the decree of the Lvov-Miliukov Provisional Government abolishing all the discriminatory laws and edicts which had been in force under the Tsars. Your Committee is fortified in this belief by the universally-recognized love of the intelligenza, the leaders of Russian thought, for justice and their belief in the equality of all human beings. Your Committee is confident that the soul of Russia was not expressed by those who made Kishinev a synonym for unspeakable horror, nor by those who sullied the good name of Russia with the execrable "ritual" murder accusations, nor by those who wished to solve the Jewish question by exterminating the Jews. It believes, rather, that the real Russia spoke through those intrepid liberals who, three years ago, when the Jews were being made the scape-goat for the corruption and treachery which were leading Russia to military ruin, made this eloquent plea: "Russians, let us remember that the Russian Jew has no other country than Russia, and that nothing is dearer to a man than the soil on which he was born. Let us remember that the prosperity and power of Russia are inseparable from the well-being and the liberty of all the nationalities which constitute its vast empire. * * * The Russian empire can and must draw its strength from the complete union of all nationalities inhabiting Russia, and only by placing of all citizens upon an equal footing will the power of Russia become indestructible."

II. POLAND

Although its territorial limits have not yet been defined, nor the form of its Government laid down, there appears to be no doubt that, at the close of the war, Poland will be a free and independent nation. This will certainly contain the region formerly known as Russian Poland, the Jewish population of which, before the war, was over one and a half million souls, about 15 per cent of the total population. To this nucleus may be added the Austro-Hungarian province of Galicia with a Jewish population of over a million, who, although they have suffered from economic difficulties, have been happily free from political and civil disabilities. It is likewise possible that part of the ancient kingdom of Poland, now incorporated in Prussia, may become a part of the new Poland, adding another million of Jews to the population.

The ultimate fate of nearly four million Jews who would then dwell in Poland is a matter of deep concern to their brethren throughout the world. Will the new Poland be controlled by enlightened and broad-minded men who will administer it as a great civilized state upon the basis of justice and equality now recognized to be the foundation of all modern civilized nations, or will the new state be the victim of those extreme Chauvinists whose motto has been publicly proclaimed as "Poland for the Poles," and who for the past six years have maintained against the Jews an unrelenting economic boycott of huge proportions, and who continue to this hour to manifest the most bitter animosity against the Jews, most of whom have lived in Poland for centuries?

The answer to this question may perhaps be fairly inferred from two sources: (1) The treatment of the Jews under the semi-autonomous Government, set up in Russian Poland by the Central Powers, and which existed during the past two years; (2) The attitude of those Polish leaders, living outside of Poland, who have been making propaganda for a free Poland to be constituted in a manner favored by them.

Under the regency set up by the Central Powers, the Jews of Poland were ostensibly given a status of equality. In actual practice, however, they were subjected in many ways to exceptional treatment, especially with regard to the maintenance of their educational and religious institutions. The Poles, having the controlling voice in the Supreme National Council and in the Municipal Governments, systematically discouraged the establishment of Jewish schools in which Yiddish is the language of instruction, insisting that Polish is the language of the country, and that it alone should be employed in the schools. This the Jews regard as a serious hardship because only a small percentage of them are familiar with any language other than Yiddish, the use of the Polish tongue having been discouraged by the former Russian Government. In general, the Jews are virtually not represented in the Polish Government because the Jewish minorities in the Polish Councils are practically powerless in the face of the combined opposition of all the Polish delegates. It is manifest that the antagonism of the Poles against the Jews is so deep-seated, that some extraordinary provision with proper guarantees must be arranged to safeguard their political, educational, and religious rights.

In the social and economic life of the Jews, this hostility is manifested by the boycott which has prevailed in Poland for many years, and which became greatly intensified in July, 1912, because of an election controversy in Warsaw. This boycott is so systematic and so merciless, that the economic field of the Jews is practically confined to themselves, and has resulted in making their poverty more abject and degrading. It was largely in an endeavor to secure the aid of the Catholic Church toward putting an end to this boycott that your Committee addressed its petition to His Holiness Pope Benedict XV, in December, 1915, to which he gave a favorable and sympathetic response. But alas! his admonitions were not heeded by those to whom they were directed.

The inventors and instigators of this fiendish agency for the economic extinction of the Jews of Poland are among the leaders of the so-called Polish National Committee which represents the Poles of the Allied countries. Your Committee has been informed that this Committee recently adopted a resolution, one of whose provisions reads:

The Polish State must have a democratic constitution. It must govern along principles of liberty and justice, coordinated with principles of order. Without such principles, no effort toward civilization, no progress are realizable. No privileged classes should exist in New Poland; Polish citizens, without distinction as to origin, race, or creed, must all stand equal before the law.

When it is remembered that the President of the Polish National Committee is Roman Dmowski, who, as editor of the notorious Dwa Grosza, was the chief exponent of the boycott idea, and who admits that he is responsible for the boycott, it will be realized that something more definite than this vague statement is required. Thus it will be seen that the future of the Jews in Poland is shrouded in doubt. It will not suffice for the great Powers, which will, no doubt, lay down the conditions for the establishment of Poland as a sovereign state, to content themselves by merely making stipulations for the equality of all inhabitants in a treaty or protocol. The weakness and inconclusiveness of such a security is evidenced by the sad experience of the Jews of Roumania during the past forty years. That country, or rather, the anti-Semitic oligarchy which controlled it, had no difficulty in finding an ingenious way to circumvent the letter of the provision in the Treaty of Berlin, adopted in 1878, which stipulated:

In Roumania the difference of religious creed and confessions shall not be alleged against any person as a ground for exclusion or incapacity in matters relating to the enjoyment of civil and political rights, admission to public employments, functions and honors, or the exercise of the various professions and industries in any locality whatsoever.

Although the signatory powers of this treaty were, during all these years, cognizant of this open violation of its solemn declaration, none of them made any attempt to correct the great injustice. Hence the future of the Jews of Poland will be extremely insecure unless the Powers shall add to the stipulations of the Polish charter and constitution some effectual and enforceable guarantee for its observance, both in letter and in spirit.

III. ROUMANIA

A year ago Roumania was a belligerent ranged on the side of the Allies. After the Russian Revolution in March, 1917, had decreed the emancipation of the Jews, Roumania was the only European state which perpetuated the medieval practice, rendered all the more obsolete by the intelligent action of the new Russia, of oppressing its Jewish inhabitants. As already pointed out, Roumania persisted in its deliberate course of violating a solemn treaty to which she had pledged her honor. During the war her astute politicians made bids to regain the respect of public opinion by repeating those promises of amendment which had so often before been shamelessly evaded or broken. They asserted that they had experienced a change of heart and were anxious to confer complete political and civil equality upon the Jews at the first opportune moment; this could not be done, however, until after the war, because it would require an amendment of the Constitution. When confronted with the fact that a constituante or constitutional assembly was then sitting, they retorted with the ever-ready evasiveness that this constituante was empowered only to pass upon two definite matters: electoral reform and the agrarian situation.

Your Committee has not been informed that there has been any change in the leadership of Roumania. On the contrary, that the control of the Government is still in the hands of the anti-Semitic oligarchy is evidenced by the terms of those clauses in the Treaty of Bucharest, between Roumania and the Central Powers, which purport to establish in Roumania civil and political equality of all citizens irrespective of race or creed:

Differences of religious opinions shall not exercise in Roumania any influence upon the legal status of the inhabitants, particularly upon their political and civil rights.

The principle laid down in Clause 1 will be applied in such manner as will result in the naturalization of the population of the Roumanian state, including the Jews, up to the present time considered as aliens. With this end in view and pending the ratification of the Treaty of Peace, a law will be promulgated in Roumania by which all stateless persons who have taken part in the war either in active service or in the auxiliary services and those who themselves were born in the country of parents born in the country should be considered without any other formality as Roumanian citizens, enjoying full rights, and may as such have themselves registered upon the official rosters; the acquisition of Roumanian nationality will extend equally to the wives or widows and to the minor children of such persons.

The difficulty which the great mass of the Jews of Roumania would have in supplying documentary proof of their Roumanian nativity and of the Roumanian nativity of their parents is apparent. Public registers of births did not exist in Roumania before 1866, and were not in general use until about 1880. It will be very difficult, therefore, for Jews above the age of fifteen—that is, those whose parents were born between 1866 and 1880—to claim naturalization under these provisions. Added to this is the fact that the Jews of military age living in Wallachia, one of the two former principalities which constitute Roumania, would be at a disadvantage, because they could not have taken part in the war for the reason that the mobilization in Wallachia was not completed due to its early occupation by the forces of the Central Powers. Further abridgments and delimiting interpretations are likely to reduce still more the number of Jews who will finally be benefited by these specious provisions of the treaty, just as during the Balkan Wars, in 1912, a promise to enfranchise all Jews who served the country became so hedged-in and narrowed by casuistic interpretations that the final result was that a mere handful of Jews was naturalized.

The fear of such chicanery is expressed even in the countries of the Central Powers. Recently the Berliner Tageblatt, in an editorial, made this significant statement, which demonstrated the hollowness of the pretences of the Central Powers and the inadequacy of the terms of the Treaty of Bucharest:

It has already been pointed out by us that the wording agreed upon at Bucharest and accepted without sufficient examination by the representative of the Central Powers gives the Roumanian Government the possibility of evading its pledges by new tricks. The Roumanian Government will always be able to deny citizenship to a Jew by insisting that there is no adequate proof that he was born in Roumania of parents born there or that he took part in the war. Most Roumanian Jews have lost the necessary documents, and the Government will not help them to get them. Roumanian guile can evade the prescriptions of the treaty of Bucharest as of the treaty of Berlin.

As Roumania hopes after the war to secure the return of its so-called "Lost Provinces," Transylvania, Bukowina, and Bessarabia, the concern of the Jews in the future of Roumania becomes accentuated, because to the 250,000 Jews of Roumania proper will be added another 300,000 of Bessarabia, and the Jewish population of Transylvania and Bukowina, amounting to nearly 200,000, making an aggregate of 750,000. The Roumanian Jewish question therefore is likely to approach in magnitude the Polish Jewish question, and the solution in both cases must be the same: effective and enforceable treaty stipulations with adequate guarantees of their observance.

IV. PALESTINE

It is a relief to turn from a review of the Jewish question in Poland and in Roumania to an estimate of the future of the Jews in the Holy Land.

Mr. Arthur James Balfour, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs of the British Government, in a letter to Lord Rothschild, dated November 2, 1917, declared that:

His Majesty's Government view with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country.

This declaration was shortly followed by the capture of Jerusalem by the British forces under General Allenby, this victory being the first of a series which has since resulted in the conquest of the whole of Palestine. The Balfour declaration removed the future of the Jews in Palestine from the realm of idealistic conjecture and political propaganda to the plane of a practical probability, if not a reality. It opened up a vista of inspiring possibilities which filled all Jews with sacred enthusiasm. Your Committee, desirous of joining in this general acclaim of all Jews, and of expressing its willingness to aid in the realization of the success of this great and responsible undertaking, made a careful study of the Balfour declaration, and drafted a statement of such views of it as was felt would be endorsed by the great majority of American Jews, irrespective of their previous attitude toward the subject. This statement, submitted to you for ratification at a special meeting called for that purpose on April 28, 1918, in New York City, was adopted by you. It is well to repeat it at this time:

The American Jewish Committee was organized primarily to obtain for the Jews in every part of the world civil and religious rights, to protect them against unfavorable discrimination, and to secure for them equality of economic, social, and educational opportunity. These will continue to be its objects.

The Committee regards it as axiomatic that the Jews of the United States have here established a permanent home for themselves and their children, have acquired the rights and assumed the correlative duties of American citizenship, and recognize their unqualified allegiance to this country, which they love and cherish and of whose people they constitute an integral part.

This Committee, however, is not unmindful that there are Jews everywhere who, moved by traditional sentiment, yearn for a home in the Holy Land for the Jewish people. This hope, nurtured for centuries, has our whole-hearted sympathy.

We recognize, however, that but a part of the Jewish people would take up their domicile in Palestine. The greater number will continue to live in the lands of whose citizenship they now form a component part, where they enjoy full civil and religious liberty, and where, as loyal and patriotic citizens, they will maintain and develop the principles and institutions of Judaism.

When, therefore, the British Government recently made the declaration, now supported by the French Government, that "they view with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object," the announcement was received by this Committee with profound appreciation. The conditions annexed to this declaration are regarded as of essential importance, stipulating as they do that "nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country." These conditions correspond fully with the general purposes for which this Committee has striven and with the ideals of the Jews of America.

The opportunity will be welcomed by this Committee to aid in the realization of the British declaration, under such protectorate or suzerainty as the Peace Congress may determine, and, to that end, to co-operate with those who, attracted by religious or historic associations, shall seek to establish in Palestine a center for Judaism, for the stimulation of our faith, for the pursuit and development of literature, science, and art in a Jewish environment, and for the rehabilitation of the land.

V. OTHER COUNTRIES

While the most acute problems confronting us exist in the four countries considered in the foregoing review, there are also vital questions to be settled in other lands which should not be overlooked.

In our discussion of the unsettled state of affairs in Russia we referred to what is known as Great Russia, to that part of the former empire which is now under the more or less loose control of the Bolsheviki. It will be recalled, however, that a large part of south-western Russia, known as Little Russia, has declared its independence, and has set up the Republic of the Ukraine. This region comprises all but two of the non-Jewish provinces of the former Pale, and was the home of almost three million Jews before the war. If the new state shall retain its sovereignty when the international situation is adjusted after the war, the safeguarding of the rights of the Jews in the Ukraine will need close study and attention. It is true that the new republic has adopted laws conferring upon Jews, Great Russians, and Poles, so-called "national autonomy," or freedom to organize and control, with state aid and authority, their educational, cultural, and religious life through governing bodies constituted by themselves. But there are persistent reports that the Jews are not enjoying complete equality and the adequate protection of the state against violence.

In Lithuania and Courland, which have also set up independent governments, a similar situation obtains.

The rights of the Jews in other new states and in Jugoslavia, in Czecho-Slovakia, and in the Greece, and the Turkey which may emerge from central and eastern Europe, will also need scrutiny. It is entirely possible that the boundaries of these countries may be changed, and it has happened in the past, notably after the Balkan War, that when Jewish populations have been transferred from the sovereignty of one state to that of another, the necessity has arisen for special measures to insure the enjoyment by them of complete civil, political, and religious equality in the new states to which they are transferred.

With respect to all these countries, it will be the duty of the Jews of the free western democracies to lend every assistance in their power to help in bringing the age-long struggle for emancipation to a successful culmination.

4. FINANCES.

In the early months of the present year your Committee was confronted with the need of greatly increased funds in order to meet the cost of the collection of war service statistics of Jews. Inasmuch as it was expected that the general fund would, as in past years, be barely sufficient for the ordinary expenses of the Committee, your Executive Committee, deeming the war statistics work of vital importance, adopted a resolution doubling for the present year the quotas of all the Districts and requesting all contributors to double their annual contributions in order to provide funds to carry on that work.

The response to this appeal on the part of most of the contributors was very gratifying, and resulted in the collection of $19,007.65, as over against a total of $13,587.83 raised last year. A statement of the receipts from the various Districts, as compared with their quotas, follows:

District	Quota	Amount contributed

Several months ago your Committee realized that even with the increment provided by its contributors, its funds would be insufficient to meet the cost of the collection of the war service statistics, and it therefore brought this matter to the attention of the Jewish Welfare Board. Its Executive Committee undertook to pay half of the expenses of the work which renders it possible to prosecute the investigation in a more thorough manner.

The Committee has also received financial aid for this work from the Executive Committee for the celebration of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the settlement of Jews in America, in the form of a donation of the sum of $1481.72, which was the balance of the fund collected for the celebration of that anniversary and which it had been announced would be expended in the preparation of a popular "History of the Jews of the United States." This sum was donated to, and accepted by your Committee on the condition that it be applied toward defraying the expenses of the collection of the statistics of the participation of the Jews of the United States in the present war, with a view to the publication of these and kindred data in a book on "The Jews in the Wars of the United States" within a reasonable time after the termination of this war.

5. THE BUREAU OF STATISTICS

During the past year, under the direction of Doctor S. D. Oppenheim, the Bureau of Jewish Statistics and Research of the American Jewish Committee which is, in part, supported by the New York Foundation, was mainly engaged in dealing with the following matters: First, the collection of the Jewish War Service Statistics; second, the completion of the "census" of the Jews of the United States, begun last year; third, the preparation of the manuscript for the American Jewish Year Book 5679; and fourth, the preparation of a new Directory of Local Organizations in the United States.

The first task has already been referred to in detail.

The methods employed for estimating the Jewish population of the United States and the results arrived at form the subject of one of the special articles in the American Jewish Year Book 5679. Some of the interesting results of these methods may be mentioned here. The total Jewish population of the United States is estimated to be 3,300,000, of which number one and a half million are in the city of New York. Seventy-five per cent of the total Jewish population is concentrated in ten cities, namely, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Boston, Baltimore, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Newark, and Detroit. The inquiry also developed the fact that there appears to be a direct relationship between the general population of cities and the Jewish population, the proportion of Jews rising as the general population is greater. Thus, in the nine largest cities, excluding New York which is exceptional, the Jews form about 10 per cent of the general population; in the sixty-two next largest cities, those having a population of 100,000, or over, the ratio averages a little less than 4.5 per cent; in cities of between 50,000 and 100,000 the average ratio is 3 per cent.

Besides the population article, the Year Book contains special articles on the following subjects: The Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies of New York City, by Dr. I. Edwin Goldwasser; The Jews of Serbia, by Dr. I. Alcalay; The Jewish Welfare Board, by Chester Jacob Teller; The Collection of Jewish War Statistics, by Julian Leavitt, Esq. The Year Book 5679 contains also the Eleventh Annual Report of this Committee, an index to all the Year Books of which it is the twentieth issue, and the usual lists of organizations, events and promotions, honors, and necrologies, as well as statistical tables of the Jewish population of the world and its various political and geographical subdivisions and of the immigration of Jews to the United States.

The new Directory of Local Organizations has not been completed, but it is expected that it will be ready for inclusion in the American Jewish Year Book for 5680.

Respectfully submitted,

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

REPORT OF THE BUREAU OF JEWISH STATISTICS AND RESEARCH OF THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

TO THE COMMITTEE IN CHARGE OF THE BUREAU OF JEWISH STATISTICS AND RESEARCH:

Gentlemen:

Herewith I beg to submit the following report of the work of the Bureau of Jewish Statistics and Research of the American Jewish Committee during the past year ending November 1. The efforts of the Bureau have been particularly directed toward the obtaining of statistics concerning Jews serving the country in the present war, with the result that the names and various particulars regarding probably about half the Jews in the United States Army and Navy have been collected and carded. Details concerning the statistics in question are given at length in the special report made by Mr. Julian Leavitt, who has had immediate charge of the War Statistics subdivision of the Bureau.

As to the balance of the labors of the Bureau, they were mainly devoted to the completion of the Religious Census for the United States Bureau of the Census and the enumeration of the Jews of the United States, with the consequence that a number of tables have been constructed, showing the Jewish population of practically all cities and towns in the country having a general population of 20,000 inhabitants or more; and from these data various other tabulations have been formed, giving the Jewish population of the United States, by cities of various classes, as well as by states. These tables have been printed in one of the leading articles of the American Jewish Year Book for 1918-19, together with a detailed account of the methods used in procuring the information therein exhibited.

Second perhaps in importance to this work has been the compilation of a Directory of Jewish Local Organizations of the United States. It had originally been intended to publish this in the Year Book just issued, but owing to various unforeseen causes, it was not found possible to complete the compilation in time, and the publication of the Directory has, therefore, been deferred until another year.

The preparation of the Year Book itself has been a third principal element in the work of the Bureau; and here it may not be amiss to draw attention to the following novelties contained in volume 5679, namely, four timely articles on (1) The New York Federation, (2) The Jewish Welfare Board, (3) The Jews of Serbia, and (4) an introductory monograph on the subject of Jews in the military service of the nation; also an Index of the contents of the entire twenty volumes of the series of Year Books, a table showing the Jewish Philanthropic Federations of the entire country, with certain statistics concerning their incomes, expenditures, etc., and a greatly enlarged list of Jewish officers in the United States Army and Navy.

The Director has asked and obtained permission to be relieved of his duties at the end of the present calendar year.

The financial statement is hereto attached. It shows that the receipts for the ten months, ending September 30, 1918, have been $5500, and that the expenditures have thus far exceeded the receipts by a little more than $300. Independently of the foregoing, the War Statistics Division has received from the American Jewish Committee $6500, and from the Jewish Welfare Board $3,213.69. Regarding the expenditure of these funds, a separate statement is hereto appended.

Of the $4000 expected from the New York Foundation, only $2000 was received by the Bureau proper, which is at the present time in debt to the extent of about $500, mainly, to the American Jewish Committee. The balance available November 1 for the support of the War Statistics Division will be exhausted before the end of the current month.

The Director will be glad to have his accounts audited.

REPORT OF THE KEHILLAH (JEWISH COMMUNITY) OF NEW YORK CITY

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE:

The Jews of New York are determined to have a Kehillah. They wish to have their community life organized, well-ordered; and they wish to do it through the medium of a democratic organization which will voice their needs, their hopes, and their aspirations. This was the unmistakable lesson of the Ninth Annual Kehillah Convention, which was held Saturday evening, June 1, and Sunday, June 2, 1918. It was a representative convention—the delegates coming from every group, shade, and section of New York Jewry. It was a constructive convention—a convention which devoted itself to the serious business of planning a building for the future. All attempts to launch aimless discussions were emphatically rejected by the assembled delegates. They felt that the time was past for indulging in generalities. They were determined to keep the convention to its real functions: (1) To inform them as to the progress of the Jewish community during the past year. (2) To work out the community program for the next year.

The opening session of the convention was devoted to a review of the community's progress in the past year. The reviewers were Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, Mr. Louis Marshall, Professor Israel Friedlaender, Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, Mr. Joseph Schlossberg, and Dr. J. L. Magnes.

It was a festive and enthusiastic audience which gathered at Carnegie Hall on Saturday evening. They came from all parts of the metropolis, and fairly filled the large auditorium, in spite of the hot spell which scorched the city that evening. Evidently they placed the business of the community above personal comfort. They really wanted to learn how they and their brothers were faring. The key-note speech of the session was delivered by Mr. Schiff, who opened the meeting. Solidarity, mutual regard, the willingness to co-operate for a common purpose—this, in the opinion of the speaker, was the net gain of the past year for the Jewish community of this city. The ten-million-dollar drive for war relief, the successful campaign for 50,000 new members by the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, the progress made in the field of Jewish education, the peace between capital and labor in Jewish industries—all of these were symptomatic of a deep current of brotherhood and unity which is beginning to manifest itself in Jewish life. "Looking at all these achievements of the past year," concluded Mr. Schiff, "we are justified in maintaining that the net result was a distinct gain for the Jewish community. It simply shows the community point of view in the ascendancy, the idea that the entire communal responsibility must be equally and evenly distributed among all the component parts of the community. The Kehillah has been preaching this idea for many years. Now the time has come for the Kehillah idea to materialize."

Mr. Louis Marshall, speaking on the "Present Status of International Jewry," sounded a high patriotic note. "The Jew," he said, "demands the right to give his life for the only country the Jews could call their home since the destruction of Jerusalem. Every Jew in the United States thoroughly appreciates the duty of the hour and his obligation to the country, and he is prepared to demonstrate to the world that the Jew as a citizen is the embodiment of loyalty and patriotism." Mr. Marshall further declared that the American Jewish Committee had gathered authentic information to the effect that the Jews of America are represented in both the Army and Navy of the United States in a larger proportion than any other group or people in America.

Dr. Israel Friedlaender followed Mr. Marshall with an address on "Palestine and America." In speaking of the declaration of Great Britain, promising to use its best endeavors toward the establishment of a national home for the Jewish people in Palestine, Dr. Friedlaender said: "The best way of showing our gratitude for the prospects opened up by the British declaration is to take the fullest advantage of them. The Jews of the world must help in the realization of these possibilities. This obligation rests in particular upon the Jews of America, for, as a result of the events in Russia, the Jewry of America has become the leading Jewry of the world, both by reason of her numbers and of her material and moral resources."

Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, the next speaker, reviewed the year's progress in Jewish philanthropy, education, and religious organization. He pointed to the organization and growth of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies as the most striking of communal activities during the past year. With a membership of over 70,000, virtually representing some 300,000 Jewish souls, the Federation is the largest Jewish philanthropic organization in the world. "What an encouraging indication this is of the possibility of uniting all the Jews of New York in those fundamental communal needs, which are the mainstay of every Jewish community," concluded the speaker.

A successful effort was also made to stabilize the finances of the religious schools of the city through the organization of the Board of Jewish School Aid, and a Committee on Religious Affairs was established for the purpose of solving the manifold religious problems which have been concerning us now for many years.

Mr. Joseph Schlossberg, general secretary of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, spoke on the "Jewish Workingmen and an Organized Jewish Community." The speaker reviewed the development of the Jewish working class in this country, the rise of the great labor unions among the Jewish immigrants, the bitter struggles and self-sacrifice which they were subjected to before the world began to recognize Jewish organized labor as a great power to be honored and respected. "There are certain Jewish interests of which only an agency like the Kehillah can take care. Hence all the Jewish organizations are required to unite their forces for the purpose of looking after these interests. The Jewish Labor movement is now ready to make its contribution to that field of activity. A number of Jewish unions are already represented in the Kehillah, and others are likely to follow soon. They will, of course, require that the Kehillah be democratically organized and conducted."

A brief review of the activities of the Kehillah during the past year was presented by the chairman of the Executive Committee of the Kehillah. He pointed to the successful working of the new plan of representation and administration, which resulted in the organization of the 15 Kehillah Districts, and the enrolment of 17,000 Kehillah members.

He also gave a brief outline of the work which the Kehillah is planning for the next year, and appealed to the Jews of New York for their co-operation and support in the work of the Kehillah. The Chairman's address may be summarized as follows:

What has the Kehillah accomplished during the past year?

1. The organization of the 15 Kehillah Districts.
2. The membership campaign which resulted in an enrolment of 17,000 individual Kehillah members.
3. The publication of the Jewish Communal Register—a 1,600-page book of Jewish facts.

These are steps toward the creation of a democratic Kehillah—securing information about Jewish life and Jewish work, carrying the Kehillah home to the Jews of New York, and opening the doors to the big Jewish masses to come and make the Kehillah their Kehillah.

What are the Kehillah plans for next year?

1. Affiliation of 100,000 individual members and 1000 organizations.
2. The Jewish Community Month to be devoted to conferences of the heads of Jewish institutions and organizations to consider their various problems.
3. The Jewish Communal Exhibit, which, through pictures, tables, graphs, records, and models, will give a graphic picture of Jewish community life in this city.
4. The Jewish Communal Review, a monthly bulletin for the interpretation of Jewish communal events.
5. Department of Speakers, to spread the idea of community organization and community responsibility.
6. Kehillah Centres of Information and Personal Service for the various Kehillah Districts, to give advice and information to those in need of it.
7. Salaried professionals for the main Committees of the Kehillah Administration—Education, Religious Affairs, Philanthropy, Discrimination, Industry, etc.—to keep in touch with communal sentiment, both reflecting and guiding it in the spirit of an organized Kehillah.

8. The creation of a Finance Committee which shall raise, in a democratic fashion, the $200,000 needed for the next year's work of the Kehillah.

Following the opening session of the Convention at Carnegie Hall, two business sessions were held the following day at the Central Jewish Institute, 125 E. 85th Street. These sessions lasted from 10 o'clock Sunday morning till 7 o'clock in the evening, with one hour's intermission for luncheon. The day was spent in considering a large number of resolutions dealing with the various problems of the community and of community organization.

Dr. S. Benderly, the chairman of the Administrative Council, started the proceedings by an elaborate exposition of the Kehillah program, reviewing that part of the program which was accomplished during the past year and outlining the work of the Kehillah for the future. This survey of the Kehillah work prepared the delegates for an intelligent discussion of the great number of resolutions that claimed the attention of the Convention for the rest of the day. Only twice were the deliberations of the resolutions interrupted; once to give the delegates an opportunity to announce their membership pledges, and the second time when there was a spontaneous desire on the part of the delegates to announce their contributions to the $200,000 Kehillah fund. It was immediately after the unanimous adoption of the resolution approving the plan for securing 100,000 individual members and the affiliation of at least 1000 organizations with the Kehillah during the coming year, when the membership pledges were announced. Over 13,000 new members were pledged in the course of a few minutes, the pledges ranging from 25 members to 5000 members.

When the resolution approving the main outlines of the plan for financing the Kehillah on a democratic basis was adopted, the delegates thought it fit to make the start for the new $200,000 fund there and then.

A very lively but amicable debate took place on the resolution calling for the publication by the Kehillah of a monthly digest interpreting Jewish communal events, to be known as The Jewish Communal Review. The issue at stake was: Yiddish or English. There were those who pleaded for Yiddish in the name of the great Jewish masses to whom English is still an unaccustomed medium of expression. On the other hand, there were those who pleaded for English in the name of the young generation, the future members of the Jewish community. Both sides defended their views eloquently and vigorously, and the only possible solution was a modification of the resolution to the effect that the Jewish Communal Review be printed both in Yiddish and in English.

Some of the resolutions submitted to the Convention had been formulated at the various District Assemblies held prior to the Convention, others were brought in by the Executive Committee of the Kehillah, and still others were presented by delegates to the Committee on Resolutions at the Convention.

Masliansky delivered a short but inspiring address on the great function of the Kehillah in these critical times to the Jewish people. He particularly emphasized the high plane upon which all the proceedings had been carried on during the day, and he saw in it a clear indication of the growing Jewish communal consciousness.

The closing remarks were made by the chairman, who heralded the Ninth Annual Convention as the first anniversary of a democratic Kehillah—a Kehillah which will in the future draw its strength and inspiration from the entire Jewry of New York City.

Respectfully submitted,

J. L. MAGNES,

REPORT OF THE JEWISH COMMUNITY OF PHILADELPHIA

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE:

Gentlemen:

Considerable agitation was aroused in the Philadelphia Jewish Community early last spring by various reports of discriminations against Jewish applicants for employment at the Hog Island Ship Building plant, in this city. A thorough investigation of these reports by the office of the Community proving them to be well founded, the undersigned went to Washington to bring the matter to the attention of the United States Shipping Board. After a consultation on the subject with Congressman J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia, a written statement of the facts, citing in detail a particularly flagrant case of this nature, was forwarded, through intermediation of Congressman Moore, to Mr. E. N. Hurley, Chairman of the Board, and by him transmitted to Admiral Bowles, in Philadelphia, for such action as the conditions required. Thereupon a representative of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, Mr. Charles D. Weirbach, called on the undersigned bringing assurances that the discriminations complained of were without the knowledge or approval of that corporation. Copies of the testimony of two Jewish workmen, whose cases were quite typical of many others, were furnished through Mr. Weirbach to the local office of the Shipping Board, and acknowledged under date of April 4, with assurances that the facts submitted would be given serious consideration. Thereafter no further complaints of this nature reached the office of the Community.

In an official communication dated April 18, from the Mizrahi Organization of Zionists through its president, Rabbi M. Berlin, the President of the Community, was invited to attend the then forthcoming annual convention of the Mizrahi in Philadelphia as representative of the Community and as a guest of the Organization. The invitation was duly accepted, and a hearty welcome to Philadelphia was addressed to the Convention on behalf of the Philadelphia Jewish Community.

The movement started last year for the mobilization of school-boys for farm work during the summer vacation was continued by the Community during the past season, again with the co-operation of the local Association for Protection of Jewish Immigrants. Circulars sent out to over one hundred Jewish farmers in the country surrounding Philadelphia brought applications for help from some twenty of them, but scarcely any of the boys found the conditions of employment or the pay offered them acceptable. The farmers could not compete with the attractive offers of employment so largely opened to boys of less than military age in the various war industries and other city employments this past year, and so this farm movement, not only in its Jewish aspect but also in general, had but little practical results.

Our usual communications to the various official authorities in Philadelphia, calling their attention to the Jewish holidays of the year and requesting that leave of absence on those occasions be granted to employees or pupils requesting such leave, were sent out by the office of the Community in due course, eliciting a number of affirmative responses. Some difficulty in this respect having been brought to the attention of the Community by the Chevra Bikur Cholim, through a committee of its members, who called at the office for that purpose, the subject was taken up by the undersigned in a personal interview with the Assistant Postmaster having charge of the matter. A letter from the Postmaster, Mr. Thornton, dated July 26, brought assurance that the leave of absence requested would be cheerfully granted as far as possible without detriment to the postal service. A letter received from the Chevra Bikur Cholim expresses that Society's appreciation of the Community's action.

On October 4, the office of the Community was called upon by the Philadelphia Board of Health to co-operate in the dissemination of the rules adopted to check the further spread of the prevailing epidemic of influenza. Copies of the rules received from the Board were sent out by the Community to all the Jewish Congregations and schools registered in the city, together with a letter from the office of the Community calling attention to the rules. This action was supplemented by a notice to the same effect, with a full citation of the rules, published by the Community in all the Jewish papers in the city.

On October 11, a legal notice appeared in a local publication stating that application would be duly made in court for a charter of an intended corporation to be called the Philadelphia Lutheran Association for Jewish Missions, the object of which was indicated in its title. This notice being called to the attention of the Community, the question arose as to the presentation of formal objections to the granting of such a charter. In a discussion of this question by the undersigned with Judge Sulzberger, a member of the Council of the Community, it was proposed by him that the matter be brought to the attention of the State Attorney-General before any further action be taken. This was done through Judge Sulzberger's intermediation, with the result that on October 28 the application was formally withdrawn.

The share of the Committee's expenses, as increased this year, required from the Philadelphia Community, is being collected, and only a small fraction of the amount remains to be paid in.

Respectfully submitted,

LOUIS E. LEVY,

President.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE JEWISH PUBLICATION SOCIETY OF AMERICA

The Annual Meeting of the Jewish Publication Society of America was held on Sunday afternoon, March 30, 1919, at the Dropsie College for Hebrew and Cognate Learning, Philadelphia, Pa. The meeting was opened with prayer by the Reverend Doctor Henry Berkowitz, of Philadelphia. The President of the Society, Mr. Simon Miller, acted as Chairman, and Mr. I. George Dobseavage, of Philadelphia, as Secretary.

The President then read his annual address.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Ladies and Gentlemen: That an institution cannot remain prosperous unless it advances is the experience of mankind. "He who stands still goes backward." It is thus the privilege of the Board of Trustees at the conclusion of the thirty-first year of the Society's activities, to be able to report that in many ways the fiscal year 1918-1919 has been the Society's most prosperous year. It may be of interest to restate at this time what the Society has accomplished during the thirty-one years, and what plans it has for the future. We have published nearly one hundred and ten books, and distributed more than one and a half million copies of our publications. Who can tell how many of the sixty authors whose works have been published by the Society might have remained unknown but for the opportunity and incentive provided by the Society? Who can tell whether the works of distinguished foreign authors would have become known to the English-speaking public except through the translations of the Society? Israel

Zangwill, speaking of his own indebtedness to the Society, said: "Without its stimulation I might never have written my 'Children of the Ghetto.' What was needed to draw this book from my subconsciousness was the wise and understanding policy of the Society in giving the artist a free hand."

If it had realized nothing but the publication of the New Translation of the Bible, it would have earned the eternal gratitude of our people and justified its existence. When one considers, however, the programme it has mapped out for the future, the importance of the Society as an intellectual and spiritual force in the life of English-speaking Jews becomes very apparent. That we have grown numerically and in point of service, the figures presented to you to-day testify. Though this has been a trying year, we have, nevertheless, received from our members over $46,000 in dues, which is almost twice as much as was realized about six or seven years ago, and the receipts from the sales of our books, other than the Bible, amount to $36,000, which is about $8000 more than was received last year. The sales of our publications amounted to $61,000, which is $25,000 more than last year. We have distributed this year 50,000 copies of our new publications and 45,000 of our older publications. In addition, we have published 370,000 Bibles and prayer-books for Jewish soldiers and sailors, and have supplied the various cantonments and camps in America and abroad with thousands of our books. We have also enrolled about 4000 new members, making a total membership of nearly 16,000, the largest in the history of the Society.

These figures are impressive, but, on the other hand, we have been confronted with conditions which seriously threatened our activities. The cost of production and distribution, the overhead management, the salaries and authors' fees, etc., have grown so much in the last few years that computations originally made have fallen far short of the actual cost in every direction, so that, while at the time of our foundation every member of the Society was actually contributing his portion to its upkeep, the condition had changed, and the Society reached the anomalous stage where every new member increased the deficit. Accordingly, the trustees, at their meeting, held December 15, 1918, voted that a special meeting of the Society should be convened on January 26, 1919, for the purpose of amending the by-laws, authorizing an increase of dues from $3 to $5 a year.

The appeal for an increase in dues, however, was made not only to meet the deficit which in 1918 amounted to about $11,000, but for much more important reasons. The plans and scope of the Society thirty years ago, catering to a 750,000 Jewish population, does not suffice for the 3,300,000 of to-day. There is an ever-growing demand for Jewish literature of every sort. It is not enough to publish four books a year. The increased cost of material and labor must be met. The destruction of institutions and presses in Europe places upon the Jews of this country an added obligation. There is no individual or corporation anywhere in the English-speaking world prepared to do the work undertaken by the Society, and these duties could not be met unless the membership was ready to adopt the necessary amendments.

On January 26, 1919, at the special meeting, by a practically unanimous vote, the Society decided to increase the dues from $3 to $5 a year. It is gratifying to note that in the hundreds of letters received from every state in the Union an overwhelming majority of the members replied that they were in favor of the proposed increase. Though we cannot fully estimate the status of our membership at this stage, it is pleasing to report that we have received, as membership dues on the new basis, more money than in the corresponding month of March a year ago, and, by actual count, as many members have already paid their dues as did last year. What the final outcome will be we shall know in a few months.

The publications issued by the Society were favorably received by the members and the press. The first of these was Volume II of Dubnow's History of the Jews in Russia and Poland. The want of a work of this kind has long been keenly felt by those interested in Jewish life. Dubnow's power of grasping and presenting the broad aspects of general Jewish history and his life-long, painstaking labors in the particular field of Russian-Jewish history fit him in a singular measure to cope with this task. Dubnow's work limits itself to the history of the Jewish population in the Russian empire, and it throws a lurid light on conditions in that country in pre-revolutionary times. The attitude of a country towards its Jewish citizens may be said to serve as the barometer of its civilization. Those who are amazed by the collapse of the colossal empire of the Czar will find an answer in Dubnow's account of the incessant barbarities inflicted by them upon their Jewish subjects. Volume III of this work, which will deal with the reign of Nicholas II, the last of the Romanovs, will bring the story of Russian Jewry to our own days. Jewry owes a great debt to the translator, Professor Israel Friedlaender, who not only adapted the Russian manuscript to the requirements of an English version, but so successfully bridged the wide gap which stretches between the Russian and English reading public.

The American Jewish Year Book 5679 was edited by Dr. Samson D. Oppenheim, and contained, in addition to the usual material, an extensive study of the Jewish population in the United States. This was quite a unique and important contribution to the subject. The Year Book also contained an article on the Jews of Serbia, by Dr. Alcalay, chief rabbi of that country; an article on the Jewish Welfare Board, and a statement on the collection of Jewish War Statistics, which, when completed, will demonstrate what the Jews have done in the great war, so happily ended.

The third book of the year was a volume by Dr. Joseph Jacobs, entitled Jewish Contributions to Civilization. Indeed, this book itself is a contribution of considerable importance. The late Dr. Jacobs was a thinker and writer of unusual breadth and versatility. Without being apologetic, Dr. Jacobs has pointed out the share of the Jews in the world's progress, and puts forth his claims substantiated by facts.

The Society is now forwarding the fourth book of the year, Under the Sabbath Lamp, from the pen of Prof. Abram S. Isaacs. There is so great a demand for juvenile literature, and the number of writers who can supply this want is so limited, that we are indeed fortunate in having so capable a student of the juvenile mind in the person of Prof. Isaacs. This volume contains sixteen short stories depicting idyllic aspects of Jewish life in the past generation. These sketches, written in simple, charming language, will prove of interest to young and old. Each tale may be said to be an echo of the not distant past.

The Society has also been instrumental in subventioning the publication of a volume by the Hon. Simon Wolf, entitled Presidents I Have Known. This is a book of nearly 500 pages, and, outside its interest as a human document, will prove a source book for future historians.

Among the works to be issued shortly is a volume by Norman Bentwich entitled Hellenism. This book deals with one of the most fascinating phases of Jewish history. The author has skilfully handled the difficult material, and has presented an excellent sketch of Jewish life and activity during the two centuries that preceded the destruction of the Temple and the subsequent periods. It is the second in the Movement Series, of which the first was the volume on Zionism, by Professor Gottheil. Other books in this series are volumes dealing with Reform Judaism, by Samuel Schulman; Mysticism, by Dr. Joseph H. Hertz; Rationalism, by Dr. Isaac Husik, and a volume on Pharisaism, which has not as yet been assigned.

The forthcoming American Jewish Year Book, which is being edited by Mr. Harry Schneiderman, will contain elaborate essays on the part played in the great war by Jews of the Allied countries. These essays are being prepared by specialists in their respective countries. The Year Book will also contain a complete directory of Jewish local organizations throughout the United States.

Then will follow a volume by the late Prof. Solomon Schechter, consisting of a hitherto unpublished collection of essays forming the third of the series of Studies in Judaism. Dr. Israel Abrahams' By-Paths in Hebraic Bookland and Prof. Henry Malter's volume dealing with Saadia will also be published this year. The latter will be the first volume in the Loeb Fund Series, and it is safe to state that it will supersede all other works on this subject.

Owing to the thoughtfulness of Messrs. Jesse and Joseph L. Gitterman, of New York, who have created a trust fund of several thousand dollars for the purpose of offering prizes for essays on subjects of Jewish interest, it is hoped that a number of students may be inspired to devote themselves to Jewish literary works, and that many other Jews may be led to subvention the Society for similar purposes.

The Committee on the Jewish Classics met during the year, and discussed plans to further the publication of the translations and texts in the series. Several manuscripts have already been received, and it is hoped that volumes will appear soon. This hope is certain of realization, particularly as the establishment of a Hebrew press has been assured. The funds for this purpose have already been subscribed by a number of friends of the Society. With this press a reality, it will not be necessary any more for American Israel to go to Europe and Asia to print Hebrew texts. On the contrary, we look forward to the time when from America may come forth volumes of Hebrew lore. The first publications from the Hebrew press will be volumes of the classic series, which is intended to represent the entire range of Jewish literature since the close of the biblical era. The series will demonstrate what is generally not known, even to the educated world, that the Jewish genius and thought did not close with the Bible, but continued to be active throughout the centuries in all the departments of literature.

The war, though it has stimulated the reading of religious books, was not an opportune time for projecting plans for the wider distribution of our Bible. We have thus far distributed nearly 40,000 copies of Holy Scripture. Soon we shall go to press with another edition, and we are adopting several methods of reaching the Jewish public, which insure a larger distribution of the Bible.

Leading Bible critics are agreed as to the merits of the New Jewish Translation of the Bible. It is considered by many scholars, Jews and Gentiles, as the best English version, and should supersede all existing translations.

The Committee on Bible Commentaries has been organized with Dr. Cyrus Adler as chairman, and Dr. Max L. Margolis as secretary; Dr. S. Solis Cohen, Dr. Israel Friedlaender, Dr. Alexander Marx, Dr. David Philipson, Dr. Samuel Schulman, and Judge Mayer Sulzberger, ex-officio.

It has been deemed advisable to commence with the Pentateuch and the Book of Psalms, and these six books have been assigned to competent scholars, whose acceptance is still awaited.

The commentary will represent the result of sound scholarship and be as little technical as possible. It is to be a popular commentary, and will be written in simple language and in an attractive style. The text upon which the commentary is to be based will be that of the New Translation of the Bible. The commentator may offer in the commentary a tentative rendering, but this will be introduced sparingly, and only when the change has a bearing on the interpretation. Jewish commentators will be used by the contributors, and will be given credit wherever possible.

The work of the Jewish Publication Society of America in behalf of the Jews in the United States service naturally divided itself into two branches: the distribution of books already in existence, and the publication and distribution of special books of a spiritual character.

A few days after the United States entered the great war, the President of the Jewish Publication Society of America, at an informal conference held in New York City, which considered the question of organizing a board to minister to the religious welfare of Jews in the army and navy of the United States, stated that the Society would arrange to supply the Jews in the service with the literature needed to maintain their spiritual interest in the trying days before them. As a result, thousands of the Society's books, particularly the New Translation of the Bible, Graetz's History of the Jews, volumes dealing with the lives of famous Jews, and essays on religious subjects, as well as its large collection of fiction, were distributed to individual soldiers. Complete sets of all the Society's publications were also sent to the cantonments and camp libraries. Hundreds of the Society's publications were likewise sent to the American Expeditionary Forces abroad, the selection being made from those books which particularly appeal to the soldier's frame of mind.

In conclusion the trustees hope that their stewardship as shown by this report meets with your approbation, and wish to thank you for your continued interest in the Society. They invite any suggestions that may lead to a constructive betterment of the work of the Society.

In concluding the reading of his report, Mr. Miller paid a warm tribute to the memory of the late Louis Edward Levy, of Philadelphia, Pa., who, he said, had been always a staunch supporter of the Society.
